Veterans Toss Medals Away

By STUART LOORY
(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

WASHINGTON — About 600 Vietnam veterans returned their Indochina war medals and papers to the U.S. government Friday — some vengefully, some contemptuously, but most with simple resignation.

They hurled them over a wood and wire barricade onto the Capitol grounds in protest against the war in which they had fought and many had been wounded.

When they finished the two-hour ceremony, a statue of John Marshall, the first chief justice of the United States, and the plaza in front of it were strewn with a pile of Distinguished Service Crosses and Navy Crosses (the second highest military honor of the U.S.), gold stars contributed by wives and mothers, Silver and Bronze Stars, dozens and dozens of Purple Hearts, Air Medals, a drill sergeant's badge, various types of commendations, ribbons, certificates of promotion, commissions, identification cards, pieces of uniforms, discharge papers, a helmet, aiguillettes, smashed toy M-16 rifles, one bar of soap thrown with the hope that President Nixon use it "to clean his mind," and one pair of black Viet Cong pyjamas.

Space Builders May Be Joined by Fleet

Cosmonauts Shatalov, Yeliseyev, Rukavishnikov

MOSCOW (UPI) — The commander of the three-man Soviet space ship Soyuz 10 fired it into a new orbit Friday, heading toward a rendezvous with an unmanned Sputnik to begin construction of the first orbiting space station.

Moscow sources said two or three more manned ships would be launched to participate in the construction of the station.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Col. Vladimir Shatalov, the ship's commander, manually fired the engine for a mid-course correction that sent the capsule into a new orbit after he received instructions from the ground.

A ground controller told the cosmonauts prior to the adjustment, "We have thrown you up a little too high, but that's okay."

The government newspaper Izvestia, giving new details on the space flight, said Soyuz 10 and the unmanned capsule Salute were equipped for joint use of their scientific instruments, which would open up "wide prospects" for exploration of the Earth, the sun and surrounding outer space.

Izvestia said Soyuz 10 was equipped with a powerful engine and fuel reserve sufficient to manoeuvre widely near the Earth or soar to a height of 931 miles above the Earth.

Soyuz 10 blasted off from Baikonur space centre in Soviet central Asia just before dawn, carrying the most experienced space crew ever assembled. Two of its crew members were on their third ventures into space.

Moscow sources said shortly after the launch as many as three other spacecraft would go up within the next few days. They predicted the manned ships would link up into the first manned orbiting space platform — perhaps forming a cartwheel shape with Salute as the hub. The United States does not plan such a venture before 1973.

Cosmonaut Alexei Yeliseyev, the flight engineer aboard Soyuz 10, confirmed officially this was the maiden voyage for such a space construction program, in a televised interview aired Friday.

"We have started a new stage in space exploration, connected with the preparation of orbital stations," he said.

The other member of the Soyuz roster is test engineer Nikolai Rukavishnikov, the only rookie.

Keep Out Tankers —Bennett

Premier Bennett said Friday the provincial government wants giant tankers proposed for transportation of Alaskan oil to keep "well out to sea" and away from B.C.'s coastline.

He also suggested that the tankers stay right out of Juan de Fuca Strait and as an alternative, deliver crude oil to California from where it could be piped back to Puget Sound, if required, for refining.

The premier made the suggestion after a 25-minute talk with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, which Bennett described as a "meeting of the minds."

"We both want to make sure that we protect the environment of Canada's West Coast," Bennett later told reporters.

Bennett said he was alarmed by the prospect of oil transportation on a major scale down the West Coast.

"We have the only Pacific Coast that Canada has, so we are vitally concerned with protecting our environment," the premier said.

"If the United States decides in its wisdom that it needs their own oil in Alaska, and they wish to keep control themselves and not go through a foreign country, then they should keep it well out to sea and not come into areas close to British Columbia.

"They could take it down to California and then pipe it from there."

He said B.C. expects to be represented "at the specialist level" at any meetings between the Canadian and U.S. governments over transportation of Alaskan oil from Valdez to the Cherry Point refinery in Puget Sound.

Conservationists, so far, have managed to delay the construction of the proposed

600,000 Flee To India

From AP - Reuter

NEW DELHI, India — The number of East Pakistanis crossing into India to escape the advancing Pakistan army passed the 600,000 mark Friday.

India requested UN aid for refugees, and the Red Cross planned mass innoculations to control an outbreak of cholera and smallpox among them.

Waffle Power Surprises In Quebec-Issue Defeat

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party leadership convention voted 853 to 423 Friday against a joint move by the Quebec and radical Waffle wings in favor of self-determination for Quebec.

The Waffle's strength appeared surprisingly strong on the issue. It is generally credited with having not more than 20 per cent of delegate strength. There are only 36 delegates from Quebec ridings.

The convention favored by a big majority, with a show of hands, a compromise resolution calling for a united Canada but instructing the party's 100-member federal council to draw up an unambiguous and lasting agreement on relations between French and English Canada.

The convention also called for more public ownership of resource industries but rejected the Waffle's tough fight for a harder line on nationalization.

All five candidates for the party leadership — the voting starts at 2 p.m. today — spoke on the Quebec issue.

Only the Waffle's James Laxer favored self-determination for Quebec. He called for a new alliance between Quebec and the people of Canada and referred to French and English Canada as "both of these nations."

Candidate Ed Broadbent said the union must be preserved but also that Quebec must have the right to decide whether or not it remains in Confederation.

A Broadbent supporter, John MacMillan of Ottawa, moved a resolution to this

She Couldn't Let Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — All she has left to remember Alberto are six bright medals on the steps of the Capitol to ered his coffin.

Those treasures in her arms, his mother marched with 1,000 Vietnam war veterans Friday to cast down their medals on the steps af the Capitol to protest the Indochina war.

Then, when the time came, she couldn't let go.

And she couldn't watch as the veterans plucked ribbons and badges from their chests, hurling them over a barricade to clatter against the statue of Chief Justice John Marshall.

Evelyn Carrasquillo of Miami, Fla., didn't know of the planned gesture when she decided to join the veterans' march from a dusty camp on the mall.

"This is what I have left of Alberto," she said clutching the flag and the case of medals, including the Bronze Star.

"Here is Alberto.

"I don't want to turn it back to them; I just wanted to talk to the people who can stop the war."

Anna Pine of Trenton, N.J., wanted to discard her dead son Fred's medals.

But she had already turned away crying when the first ex-soldier announced, hands trembling, "And so we cast away these symbols of dishonor, shame and inhumanity."

The other parent in the demonstration, Wade Olsen of Russel, Pa., played the Last Post on a tarnished bugle in memory of his son William.

"Bill knew this war was a fraud from the start. He wouldn't want the damn things," he said of the medals.

Downtown Toronto

Roadside Full of Lead

TORONTO (UPI)—Disturbingly high lead contamination levels have been found in soil and vegetation adjacent to high density traffic streets in downtown Toronto, a University of Toronto scientist reported Friday.

Samples of soil taken at Queen's Park, the downtown seat of the Ontario legislature, showed 2,000 parts per million of lead, said Prof. Tom Hutchinson, of the university's botany department.

Average lead content of soil is 40 ppm.

Lead is poisonous if taken in certain concentrations, though scientists are not agreed on the precise amounts. Lead poisoning affects the nervous system, interfering particularly with the ability to think.

Hutchinson said abnormally high concentrations of cadmium, another poisonous metal, have also been found in downtown soil.

Average cadmium content of soil is .1 ppm. Traffic road levels of 6, 7 and 8 ppm have been found.

Keep Tankers Out—Bennett

800-mile oil pipeline from Prudhoe Bay on the North Slope of Alaska to the port of Valdez. Meanwhile, Canada has proposed an alternative pipeline route down the Mackenzie Valley, which would avert the danger of oil spills from wrecked tankers.

Before taking part in further talks on the oil spill danger with officials of Victoria's Environment 100, Stanfield told reporters as he left the premier's office he had a "very pleasant" meeting with Bennett.

"We are of similar concern about the danger (posed by oil spills) to the environment of British Columbia," Stanfield said. He added they had talked about national affairs and particularly about the constitution.

"We both agreed there are some problems around but its a great country just the same," the Tory leader said.

David Anderson, Liberal MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said from Ottawa Friday he was astonished that Stanfield is now interested in the proposed coastal tanker route.

He said it was the Progressive Conservative Party's idea last month to refuse Anderson's parliamentary pollution committee permission to hold West Coast hearings into the tanker plan.

"Mr. Stanfield first turns down the committee's proposal then jumps an aircraft and goes to B.C. to make the statements we now are hearing," said Anderson.

Stanfield also spent 75 minutes Friday having an aerial look at the proposed approach route for tankers bringing Alaskan oil to refineries at Cherry Point, Wash.

But at a news conference in Vancouver after his flight over the island-studded waters, he was non-committal over the potential dangers of oil spillage.

Stanfield said he is not technically competent to judge this question. An answer would depend on the amount of traffic using the route and also such factors as navigation aids.

He added, however, that the coastal waters of B.C. and Washington state should be subject to joint U.S.-Canadian control, with a high degree of sophistication in handling all sea-going traffic.

The Opposition leader said there are two important gaps — a research gap and an information gap — involved in the whole issue of the trans-Alaska pipeline system.

"There is still a good deal of uncertainty concerning such things as the safety standards that should be imposed on tankers and on the navigational controls that are called for.

"Secondly, there is an information gap involving the final destination of the oil that would be leaving the port of Valdez. Is the bulk of it going far down the west coast of the United States, or is a large proportion going into Puget Sound for trans-shipment elsewhere?" he asked.

Veterans Toss Medals

"Here's 13 years of my life," one former staff sergeant said as he tossed his ribbons and medals over the fence.

"Peace to all men. I got a lot of crap to give back," shouted another veteran.

"This war is immoral, inhumane, and not right with God," said a blonde youth called Goldie who walked with a limp.

"Here's an achievement medal for disservice to my country," one veteran said, "and here's a model for peace."

Purple Heart

A Korean war veteran returned what he described as "my Uncle Sammy's purple heart from the Second World War."

A Second World War veteran threw his Veterans and Foreign Wars lifetime membership card over the fence.

"I pray that time will forgive me and my brother for what we did," one man called out.

"We don't want to fight anymore but if we have to fight, it will be to take these (Capitol) steps," said another.

"I got a Presidential Unit Citation and now I got a place for the president to put it," one veteran said as the citation went into the air.

Husband Killed

"They gave me this gold star when my husband was killed," said a young woman. "It's supposed to take his place. You see what good it will do."

When it was all over, one of the veterans took a wooden stanchion on which Capitol police had placed a sign marked "trash" to mark a waste disposal area, and propped it against the statue.

Atop the stanchion they placed a military helmet and on it they tacked an American and South Vietnamese flag with a silver star pinned to that.

Then they abandoned the pile, leaving it unprotected. At mid-afternoon, several hours after they left, it was still there, the papers blowing in the wind.

Protest Today

Meanwhile the veterans, their five days of protest against the war completed, made final appearances at two Congressional hearings and then disbanded, leaving the city free for an estimated 100,000 civilian demonstrators who were expected to make their protest today.

However, 2,500 persons, including 300 active-duty military officers, crowded into Washington's National Cathedral Friday night for a memorial service for all Indochina war dead.

"We are the ones who have listened to our brothers rolling, bleeding on the ground and cursing those who sent them there to die," Specialist Charles Balent told the service sponsored by the Concerned Officers Movement.

Come Quietly

"We are not the ones who come back from war shouting, 'glory.' We come back quietly because our war is not yet over."

Although government officials from the White House down were expecting a peaceful protest today and the leaders of the demonstration had vowed to keep it non-violent, the Pentagon disclosed that some federal troops had been alerted for duty.

The protestors charged that the alert was called to keep troops of nearby military bases from joining in the demonstrations.

At either end of Pennsylvania Avenue, the Capitol and the White House will be closed to tourists for the day as has become standard procedure during protests.

The marchers will gather on the ellipse near the Washington Monument and other sites in town and march down Pennsylvania to Capitol Hill where they will meet under the building's west front.

That protest is sponsored by an organization called the National Peace Action Coalition. When they finish their meeting the protest will be taken up by another group, the Peoples Coalition For Peace and Justice, which will begin about 10 days of what has been billed as non-violent civil disobedience, including sit-ins to block traffic to various government buildings.

Before the veterans finally gave up their protest, which they called "Operation Dewey Canyon Three — a limited incursion into the land of Congress," they testified at two hastily called hearings on the war, one by Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) and the other by Rep. Jonathan Bingham (D-N.Y.) at which a succession of former officers and enlisted men testified about their war experiences and why they had turned against the war.

Sit-In Trio Found Guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — Rosevelt Douglas, Ann Cools and Brenda Dickonson-Dash have been found guilty and face up to five years in prison for wilful obstruction of the use of the Sir George Williams University computer centre during a 1969 sit-in.

Sentence will be passed April 30.

Douglas, a 29-year-old Dominican, has been on bail of $14,000. Miss Cools, 27, of Barbados and Canadian-born Miss Dickonson-Dash, 25, were on $3,000 bonds.

All three still have to face 11 counts arising out of the 13-day occupation of the computer centre which ended with the arrest of 95 persons Feb. 11, 1969 after fires and a computer-smashing spree left $1.5 million in damage.

Your Good Health

Cold Sores Worry

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes "Cold sores" to appear within a radius of six or eight inches in the same area of the body? I have been getting them in a most inconvenient place to apply medication, the back uppermost part of the thigh.

They sometimes appear at intervals of six months, more or less, and sometimes before one has healed another has started within an inch or so.

What causes them and is there any way to stop this trouble? Doctors have given me ointments.—R.M.L.

I'd call this trouble herpes, or recurrent herpes, rather than "cold sores" which is a term used for such sores near or on the lip.

It is difficult for me to try to be very sure what some trouble is without seeing the patient, but in this case I would suggest a probability: a dormant virus. In other words, it is very similar to shingles, but with the virus having periods of inactivity, then becoming active and affecting a nerve root in the area.

Why does it stay quiet for a time, then break out? Probably because of some temporary lowering of your resistance, whether from fatigue or some other elusive factor. Some women have a similar trouble that breaks out during the menstrual period.

Various remedies are favored by different physicians to relieve itching or pain, but the fact remains that we have no specific medication to overcome virus diseases. The one optimistic thought to keep in mind is that the body itself in time usually conquers the virus even though we have no specific way of doing it.

Our Route Cheaper—Greene

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If money talks, it will be telling the dollar-wise Americans it's cheaper to pipeline their Alaskan oil through inland Canada to Chicago, says Energy Minister Joe Greene, than tankering it down the British Columbia coast to Cherry Point refineries only a few miles south of the Canadian border.

The difference he told the Commons Friday, was considerable — 30 cents a barrel.

This is a new argument the government has put up in its continuing case, being made at Washington, for the Mackenzie Valley route and against the proposal to bring the oil down the West Coast from Valdez by tanker to northern Washington state.

Up to now the Canadian argument has been based largely on the claim the West Coast tanker route would be a monstrous pollution threat to coastal waters and shoreline alike all up and down British Columbia, the Queen Charlottes and Vancouver Island.

The House renewed its concern over the pollution peril of the proposed West Coast route.

The Conservatives suggested that if a high-level official Canadian delegation going to Washington May 3 to argue the case with the United States state department fails in its mission, then an appeal should be taken to the International Joint Commission.

This is the Canadian-American intergovernment group formally charged with the responsibility of serving as an international pollution policeman.

But Greene, oddly, hadn't seemed to have thought about it, and off the top of his head said he didn't think such an appeal would be made.

He was hopeful, he said the external affairs-transport-fisheries-forestry interdepartmental task force going to Washington would win — or at worst not immediately lose — the point.

Detectives Question Man

Boys' Nude Bodies Found At Site of Past Murders

RENTON, Wash. (AP) — Detectives questioned a man Friday about the slayings of two six-year-old boys whose nude bodies were found late Thursday in an area where three other unsolved murders have occurred.

Scott Andrews and Bradley Lyons, both from Renton, south of Seattle, were last seen Tuesday playing near a newly-constructed high school.

Their bodies were found several miles away in a ravine, partly covered with dirt, twigs and ferns, said W. E. Frazee, captain of detectives with the Renton police department.

Helicopters, police dogs, Boy Scouts, firefighters and volunteers had hunted two days for the boys.

Autopsies showed one of the young boys was stabbed, the other strangled, said Frazee.

Three teenagers have been murdered in the same area in the last year and a half, he said.

Stanford Blast Rips Attic

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A bomb exploded early Friday morning in an attic in the president's office building at Stanford University. There was no injury, and the campus fire chief estimated damage at $5,000.

British Rowers Beaten on First Mile

Waves Rule Britannia II

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — British adventurers John Fairfax and Sylvia Cook ended their first attempt to row across the Pacific Ocean Friday, 7,999½ miles short of their goal.

A 20-knot wind booming through the Golden Gate defeated the rowers before they had completed half a mile of their planned 8,000-mile journey.

Fairfax, 33, who rowed across the Atlantic in 1969, and Miss Cook, 32, a London art dealer, pushed off from San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf at 11:15 a.m. after several false starts and a delay of a month on their voyage to Australia.

But half a mile out into San Francisco Bay, the winds pushed so hard against the upraised bow of the 35-foot Britannia II that Fairfax, at the oars, could not keep her headed into the wind.

As newsmen cruised alongside in a motorboat, he finally gave up, turned around the whitecap-dotted bay, and rowed back to his starting place.

Strong tides through the Gate weather and difficulty in lining up supplies had previously delayed the trip for a month. It was supposed to start in mid-March.

The boat was loaded to the limit with provisions. Included were games and recreational equipment, spools of fishing line and other tackle, bottles of Italian wine and a plastic globe about the size of a volleyball which Fairfax said could be used for navigation if necessary.

He and Miss Cook sat on two large padded rowing seats. The craft carried several pairs of spare oars.

Fairfax' 1969 journey across the Atlantic was 3,000 miles. He said he was looking forward to having a companion this time.

"Sylvia's a very good rower — better than I am, and I'd much rather spend the time with girl than with another man," he said.

He was also looking forward to more expertly cooked food, he said, than he managed to prepare for himself on the Atlantic journey.

Miss Cook is an experienced rower.

Fairfax has been asked several times why he likes to do such things.

"Because it's hard to do and no one has done it," he said once. "You Yanks can go up to the moon, but we still rule the waves."

Soviet Orbit Station Will Signify New Era in Space

By DAVID ZINMAN
Colonist Newsday Service

If the Soviets do achieve the first manned orbiting station, it will mark the beginning of a new era in space. Orbiting stations hold out something for everyone who has made it his business to have a stake in space.

For the scientist, it offers an induplicatible observatory to study the universe beyond the distorting veil of the Earth's atmosphere. It is estimated that a 200-inch telescope in orbit could focus on stars a thousand times as effectively as one on the ground. Scientists need only turn their lens around to chart weather, make maps, carry out remote sensing projects, and study the Earth's resources from a new vantage point.

For the astronaut, space stations mean a launching site free from the pull of gravity. He will need smaller and less costly rockets to send flights to the Moon, Mars and beyond.

For the militarist, the space base offers a lookout station for reconnaissance of potential enemies and a command post for missile warfare.

For the technologist, it offers a zero gravity environment in which man can process materials in new and different ways. Some researchers think the space vacuum may enable such engineering accomplishments as perfectly spherical ball bearings and lightweight low-density steels that cannot be processed on Earth.

Medical Laboratory

For medicine, it offers a laboratory which physicians can test the long-term effect of weightlessness on man. Doctors are trying to learn whether duration flights, a key requirement for further advances in manned space, may be far more harmful to the human body than originally believed.

And so the Russians may be opening up the era of the true workshop in space. It is a goal for which they have been pushing hard for some time, perhaps since they realized that they could not win the Moon race. Instead, they have created a substantial lead in another area of space flight — one that may prove more important.

The U.S. may not be far behind the Russians from a technological standpoint. But we are committed to three more Apollo Moonshots through the end of 1972 before redirecting our main efforts toward our own manned orbiting base program. That program, called Skylab, is scheduled to start in 1973. As things now stand, it probably must await the end of Apollo. Skylab's workshop will be fashioned from a third-stage Saturn 5 rocket leftover from Apollo.

How Long in Space?

How long the space station cosmonauts will stay in space has not been disclosed. But the first planned U.S. Earth orbiting lab will support a crew of three for 28 days. After that prototype is proven out, a full-fledged U.S. space station housing 12 men may be the next stage.

By the end of the century, massive permanent orbiting stations could be flying, built out of separately launched vehicles. Astronauts would manoeuvre them to a rendezvous, and assemble them as clusters. They would have living quarters, supply depots, labs and workshops, and would be capable of supporting 50 or 100 men. If that comes about, they would be serviced and new crews sent via space ferries, called shuttles. Those would be vehicles made of heat-resistant materials with the revolutionary capability of reentering the atmosphere.

Paying the Bill

WITHIN THE NEXT day or two, the last of the 1970 income tax returns will have to be mailed to Ottawa if they are to escape penalties for missing the annual deadline of April 30. So the taxpayer is left with another nine months or so before he has once again to face up to the task of finding how much he is going to have to pay for the current year's cost of government.

The present, however, is no time for complacency. Towards the end of next month Finance Minister Edgar Benson is promising to present the government's plan for tax reform, and to a great number of persons and corporations this is going to be a highly important occasion.

In that presentation, Mr. Benson will propose a new tax pattern for Canada, based presumably on the overall, if watered down, concepts of the highly-controversial White Paper proposals of 1969.

Anyone trying to forecast what the government has in mind is clearly only guessing, and at this stage guessing is not likely to be a very profitable pursuit.

The one thing that seems fairly reasonable to assume is that the overall revenue sought by government under the new system will be higher than it has ever been before, and that it is the present government's intention that its influence over all sectors of the economy will grow rather than decrease.

This refers not only to welfare statism, whose requirements are bound to grow under the double threat of inflation and population growth, but also to the current trend towards greater state control over industry and business — as foreseen in the creation of the Canada Development Corporation.

Thus any thoughts that the new tax deal is going to make life easier for the taxpayer can be dismissed summarily. It is the extent of the call on the taxpayers which is causing most concern.

If opposition parties were more united in their policies as regards government spending there might be some hopes that an alternative exists.

Unfortunately, however, it is probably only the right wing of the Liberal party, assisted by some of the Conservatives that can be relied upon to attack seriously and attempt to restrain the concept that Canada cannot exist as a world trading nation unless its tax bill is kept within reasonable limits.

In the past two years since the publication of the White Paper, threats have hung over many segments of taxpayer interest, and it is perhaps unfortunate that despite well-meaning efforts to test public opinion, the government has done little to encourage the nation's industry and commerce to embark upon new undertakings until such time as the new tax pattern has been set. It has created nearly two years in which indecision and doubt have been the key depressants.

On these grounds, if no other, it is desirable that Mr. Benson should proceed with his plans to present his reform to parliament at the earliest possible moment.

Bad though these might be, it is at least better to know.

The Challenge Answered

IN HIS ANNOUNCEMENT on March 16 of the federal government's $57.8 million plan to provide jobs and otherwise keep students occupied this summer, Prime Minister Trudeau left it to the young people to formulate projects and submit them for financing. He was challenging them, he said, "to see if they have the stamina and the self-discipline to follow through on their criticism" of pollution and environmental conditions.

He gave them one month to come up with programs of work they would like to undertake for the good of the country and themselves in their desire to further their education.

Of the $57.8 million fund that was set up, $14.7 million was allocated to the "opportunites for youth" projects. The remainder was for student travel overseas and in Canada, including the setting up of hostels and employment information offices, language training, athletic scholarships and related costs.

In that it was not radically different from the previous year when student unemployment was critical, along with the lateness of its unveling, the program was not received with any great joy.

Nevertheless, the students responded in numbers strong. State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has reported to the Commons that the Trudeau challenge has been met. Work projects were received by the April 15 deadline that would cost 10 times the budget if all were approved. There was a total of 8,600 proposals that would provide 148,000 jobs — only they would cost $150 million and there was only $14.7 million to spend.

Doubtless Mr. Trudeau will wax eloquently on the fine response of the young people. But no matter what he says, the situation points a damning finger at the inadequacy of the summer job plan.

There is every indication that more than 10 per cent of students looking for jobs will not find them, and of those who do find them, a considerable number will not have steady employment for the entire summer.

Industry will take some, but economic conditions will not allow private employers to make much more than a dent in the vast numbers of students whose "job opportunity" programs are going to be rejected in the next few weeks.

And this brings up the question of how the selection is to be made of the student projects. The state secretary has stated the government "must choose rationally among the thousands of worthwhile proposals."

This is a tall order for a government that has allowed the economy to reach a point that Manpower Minister Otto Lang acknowledges is worse than last year when 45,000 university undergraduates were unable to find summer work.

Thousands of young people, already disenchanted, will be falling further into the depths of bitterness at finding themselves victims of a mismanaging government.

Why Polio Killed in a Puritan Village

By SUE MASTERMAN from The Hague

MORE than 30 children are polio victims in a minor epidemic in Holland which should never have happened. They were infected because their parents, members of the isolated strict Calvinist community in and around Staphorst, refused to have their children inoculated.

Inoculation, according to the local preacher, the Reverend Pieter Dorsman, is interfering with a healthy body and anticipating the Will of God. The Bible says that a sick man needs a doctor, but not a healthy man, and thus the majority of the children in Staphorst were not inoculated on February 28 when the local health authorities diagnosed three cases of polio.

Four thousand of the 4,400 children in the area have now been inoculated against polio, but in the meantime three children have died and at least 16 of the young victims will be paralyzed for the rest of their lives. The polio virus which caused this particular epidemic is one of the most dangerous types known to the medical world.

Staphorst, where the inhabitants still wear traditional Puritan costume, is a legend even within Holland. It is a "must" on the tourist program, but the inhabitants flee from the busloads of camera-clicking foreigners who invade the village every summer. The Reverend Dorsman rules his flock with a rod of iron and the fear of the devil. Radio and televison are forbidden, as is such frivolity as dancing and sport. The centuries-old Dutch country custom of courting a girl by climbing through her bedroom window at night and marrying her only when she is pregnant is still followed faithfully. What use is a farmer's wife who cannot produce healthy sons and daughters to lend a hand down on the farm, reasoned their agricultural forefathers.

Until a few years ago Staphorst even took justice into its own hands. Those who offended against the strict moral laws governing the community were brought before a Volksgerecht — a local tribunal. The punishment for those who wanted to marry another than the girl they had courted, or for adultery, was often a ride through the village in the dung cart. Those who were unwilling to comply with unwritten village laws and customs were worked over by the village gang, a risk still run by visitors who are too curious.

The village council put a stop to the Volksgerecht officially five years ago, after its treatment of an eternal triangle relationship hit both national and international headlines. "It's a pity," said a member of the village council this month. "It was a simple form of justice which the villagers understood, and once the 'sentence' had been carried out and they promised to respect the rules of the community it was all over and forgotten. I found it very democratic."

The polio epidemic has shaken the faith of Staphorst's Calvinist inhabitants. In the Netherlands between 90 and 95 per cent of the inhabitants are inoculated against diphtheria, tetanus, polio, whooping cough and smallpox. The small uninoculated percentage is concentrated in a dozen communities near Staphorst in the north or in Zeeland on the isolated islands of the south, where the local church leaders still hold fast to rules laid down hundreds of years ago.

In Holland, inoculation against polio takes place by injection with dead Salk vaccine. Once the polio epidemic in Staphorst broke out the local health authorities offered the inhabitants the live Sabin vaccine, as used in Britain, which can be taken on a sugar lump or in milk. Since this is a less "medical" treatment, hundreds of villagers brought their children. But 400 have still been held back by their parents. In some of the large families — birth control is also frowned upon — three or four children have been infected.

Since the villagers' religious objections also stretch to insurance — "the Lord will take care of His own" — and Holland has no national health service, many of these small farmers will be bankrupted by the cost of their children's illness and will be unable to afford many of the expensive extras necessary for the rehabilitation of a handicapped child. In the small communities like Staphorst even old-age pension contributions and automobile insurance are taboo. The government has allowed the villagers to put together their own fund for these necessities, and have consequently lowered the taxes which they pay.

But the price of three children's lives is too high for those outside this isolated community. The Dutch cabinet is seriously considering making inoculation compulsory, on the grounds that those who do not comply are endangering the lives of others. They are also concerned about the number of parents with no objections who have become too casual and have simply forgotten to get their children inoculated.

Several groups, including humanists, have tried to have the pastor, Mr. Dorsman, brought to trial for murder, manslaughter or causing grievous bodily harm. The local magistrate has ruled that he cannot be prosecuted because he personally has done nothing whatever to the sick children. Mr. Dorsman belongs to a splinter group of the Dutch Reformed Church known as the "Reformed Bond."

There was also criticism of the central synod of the Dutch Reformed Church in the Netherlands, which refused to interfere for three weeks. Only when the 34th ambulance had raced through the village carrying a child to the well-equipped hospitals in a nearby city did it issue a statement begging the inhabitants of Staphorst to accept inoculation and to "make use, now and in the future, of the medical facilities which we may thankfully receive from the hand of God."

★ ★ ★

This statement comes at a time when the health authorities think that they have the epidemic in the village more or less under control. Only the 400 uninoculated children remain in danger. But in the other dozen "Staphorsts" in the country the panic has already broken out. Some secondary schools have been closed temporarily, parents are keeping their children at home, and at some schools children have been told not to touch one another — all measures which are relatively useless compared with the simple remedy which they will not accept.

All or Nothing?

YOUR recent editorial on the monarchy in Canada had all the trappings of the great flag debate, complete with Mr. Diefenbaker's predictions on the impending downfall of Canada.

Your article takes an "all or nothing" approach. If Canada abolishes the monarchy then you see nothing in its place; you point to several countries and intimate that by adopting any other system we will suffer a similar fate. Has it ever occured to you that Canada could retain the concept of the Crown yet abolish the monarchy? The quote from July 1970 "Organization of the Government of Canada" on the constitutional position of the governor-general has existed in Canada for over 30 years.

What it means is that the Crown in Canada is the governor-general — it is he who appoints the prime minister, who calls elections, safeguards rights and who now pays state visits. What would happen if we formalized the situation that exists at present and called the governor-general the Head of State. Would we suffer a multiplicity of governments as did France? Would our judges have to be elected like in the United States, would the politicians rise up and assume complete and unlimited power? There would be no change at all, it would simply be a recognition in law of what exists in fact.

To most people of the world, including Canada, Elizabeth II is Queen of England. Canada as an adult nation should by now not have to share the head of state of another country. I believe younger Canadians especially are questioning whether or not it is about time that we had a head of state that at least lives here.

As I mentioned earlier, your editorial is in the best tradition of the flag debate and I can only hope your fight in this case will be as successful.

Disenchanted

I attended the Cowichan Valley Regional Board meeting on April 14, being interested in the proposed airport at Glenora. I listened attentively, for it was the first such meeting I had attended. It was a depressing experience.

The vacillation and ineptitude made it difficult to realize that this was an important part of our civic government in action. You would really have to see it as well as hear it to get the picture.

It bothers me that this lovely idyllic Cowichan Valley should be bungled as it has been, into such a situation as this airport fizzle, or that the idea of aerial disportment over its homes should ever have been contemplated. That the board could so easily be conned into the dilemma it now faces speaks for itself. As far as the regional board is concerned, it still can see no further than a handful of people directly in the flight path of these noisesome flying crates and another handful wanting to fly them; the real issue completely escapes them.

The quality of thinking at this meeting is far from reassuring, and one cannot but wonder, what next? Unfortunately, the flaccid and uninformative press reports give no clue at all to what is involved in this airport hassle. It is certain that if all the facts were made public, the board might awake to the fact that it has been playing ping pong on a football field.

Tax Test

It is probably fortunate for opponents of the White Paper, and for Finance Minister Edgar Benson, that the debate on tax reform is coming to a head just at a time when the economic situation demands tax cuts.

With the government facing both economic and political pressure to promote private sector spending, it will be a real test of the flexibility of Mr. Benson's tax legislation, due to be introduced in May.

And flexibility was certainly an element missing in the White Paper prototype.

One of the corner stones of the government's White Paper taxation philosophy was an maximum personal tax rate of 50 per cent, to match an across-the-board 50 per cent corporate tax rate.

At present, personal tax rates go as high as 82.4 per cent, and corporate rates, as low as 21 per cent. This disparity, the government felt, encouraged high-income shareholders to defer personal income taxes by retaining earnings in corporations.

It was a shaky foundation upon which to build a tax system. It meant, for example, that someone earning $100,000 a year could look forward to a tax reduction of over $5,000 — a pretty unpalatable reform in the eyes of low income earners.

Secondly, the 50 per cent philosophy ignored the possibility that one or more of Canada's competitors in the international marketplace might substantially reduce its own corporate tax rate, giving its manufacturers a decided edge.

This edge would not be so apparent if the Canadian dollar was still worth only 92 cents U.S., but the dollars are just about even now, and inflation here shows signs of matching that in competing countries.

This is no "What if . . .?" situation. The U.S. corporate tax rate has gone down to 48 per cent, compared to 53.2 per cent paid in Ontario, and the British government plans to reduce its rate to 40 per cent next year.

Consequently, our exporters' competitive position is poor and in danger of getting worse. And with higher corporation tax rates, a worldwide corporation is not going to carry out its most profitable ventures in Canada if it can do so in another country with a more favorable tax system.

The 50 per cent cornerstone of the White Paper did not take these situations into consideration. Economic events have proved it vulnerable to serious fractures, and if it cracked and fell apart, the White Paper system would collapse around it.

Much of the justification for eliminating the split tax rate for corporations, and introduction of the integration concept would simply disappear.

Now, more than ever, the department of finance must discard its white mantle of theoretical purity and don the blue denims of practical taxation — taxation that can be adjusted to suit the economic needs of the country, and the shifting conditions of the international marketplace.

Littering

Increasingly obnoxious these days is the business litterbug who stuffs advertising trash under windshield wipers. The campus at the university was littered with hundreds of blue income tax service sheets last week, while the wind was scattering them further afield. Surely a responsible businessman would be aware of the detrimental effects of this practice. With the increase in awareness today of the need to preserve environmental quality, we should be abolishing this nuisance along with that other source of trash, the doorstep flyer.

Others Too

Mr. Justin Harbord, a government appointee to the board of governors of the University of Victoria, has been much in the news lately. He evidently feels that neither students nor faculty nor the association of university teachers have a legitimate voice in any university decisions. Apparently he believes the university should be operated for the sole benefit of the president and board of governors.

His comments indicate a complete lack of understanding of both the nature and aims of university life. It seems anomalous that despite his obvious lack of qualifications Mr. Harbord is in such an important university position.

It is impossible for anyone in the university or the community at large to have any confidence whatsoever in the board of governors at UVic when one of its appointed members makes such fatuous remarks as Mr. Harbord has done. It is a tribute to the coolness of UVic students that they have not reacted more extremely to his provocations.

In any case it is quite evident that the board of governors needs restructuring so that its members better represent the university and the community. As a start I propose that Mr. Harbord resign and be replace by a representative of the labor movement.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Canadian Press

Gen. Sir Frederick Dobson Middleton was held up in his advance on Louis Riel 86 years ago today — in 1885 — during the Second Riel Rebellion when he met a force of Metis at Fish Creek, Sask. The engagement on the South Saskatchewan River was only a temporary check to his advance and on May 12 he defeated Riel's main force at Batoche and Riel was captured a few days later.

1965 — Constitutionalists revolted in the Dominican Republic against the U.S.-backed oligarchy of Donald Reid Cabral. The U.S. intervened April 28.

1963 — Princess Alexandra married Angus Ogilvie.

1954 — U.S. forces in Germany were armed with six atomic cannon.

1953 — Sir Winston Churchill became a Knight of the Order of the Garter.

1949 — Candy rationing ended in Britain.

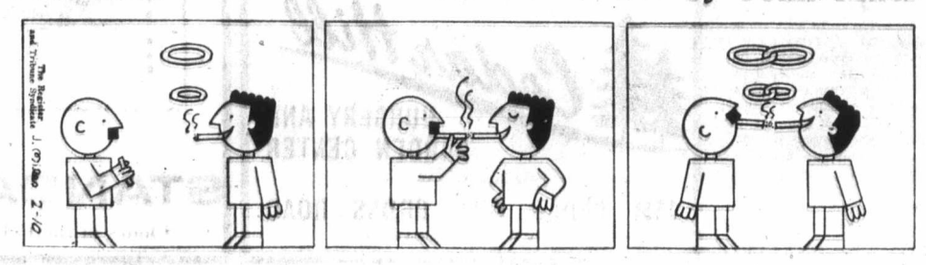

1947 — The use of gas and electricity for heating was banned in Britain.

1942 — The Luftwaffe Baedecker raids began, with Exeter being the first city hit.

1916 — The Easter Rebellion broke out at Dublin.

Rogers Set for Mideast Mission

By ROBERT C. TOTH
(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

WASHINGTON — Citing a presidential mandate for his mission, State Secretary William Rogers announced Friday he will go to the Mideast early next month to try to maintain and even speed up "the momentum for peace."

"President Nixon believes," he told a press conference, "that the United States should seek every opportunity, expend every effort, take every chance . . . in the search for peace in the area . . . in this spirit President Nixon has asked me to take this trip."

This rather unusual invocation of the presidential mantle, together with unnamed risks Rogers said the United States is prepared to run, served as an invitation to Israel and Egypt to also go out on a limb to break the impasse in negotiations on an over-all Mideast settlement.

Progress has been made toward an interim deal on reopening the Suez Canal which, Rogers said, would be "a step toward a final peace settlement . . . we plan to discuss this matter (with Arabs and Israeli leaders) but our purpose on this trip is not to focus just on that proposal. We have a much broader purpose."

"We believe there is an exceptional opportunity, an opportunity that must not be missed," he emphasized. He also declared the United Nations peace effort under Gunnar Jarring "must succeed."

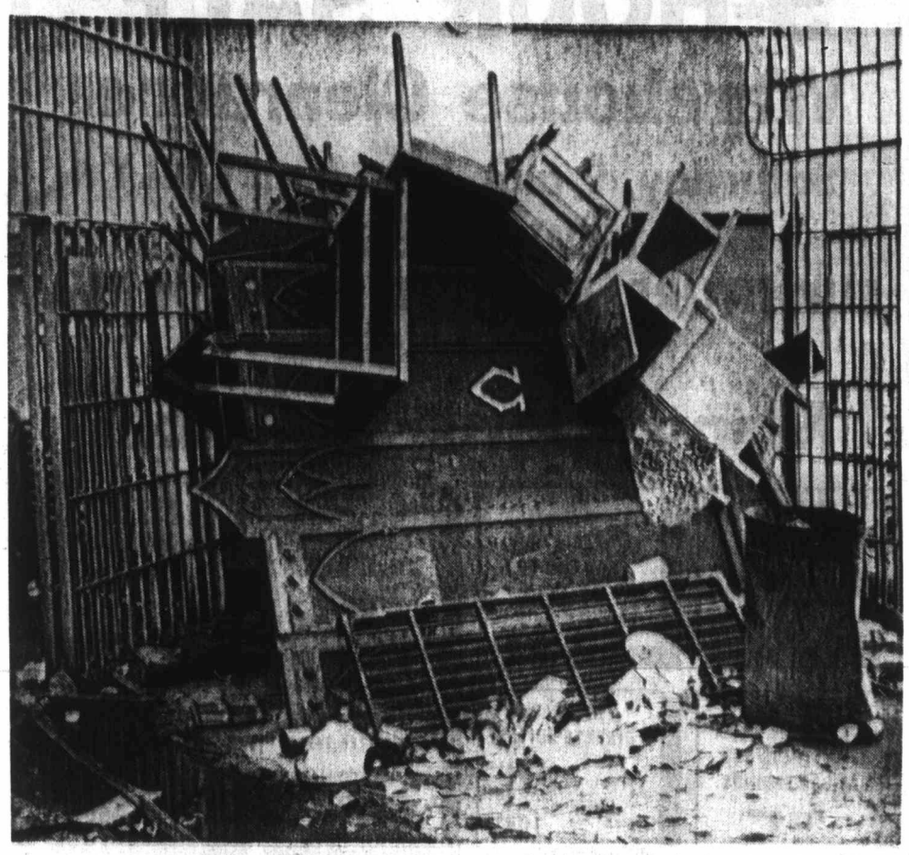

Rogers cautioned against great expectations, saying, "I do not anticipate any dramatic results or breakthrough — we are not the middleman."

But he noted he will be the first American secretary of state to visit the Mideast since 1953, and took the position "the climate has never been better" for a settlement. And in elevating his role to that of presidential emissary, the administration put the president's prestige behind the ideas Rogers takes to the Mideast.

Thus, intentional or not, high hopes will accompany Rogers to four Arab states — Egypt, Lebanon, Jordan and Saudi Arabia — and to Israel the week of May 2.

No signed Mideast agreement can realistically be expected. The most that is anticipated is greater flexibility on both sides, with Israel under the most pressure to change its negative stand of "no withdrawal to the pre-war borders of 1967."

Even a soft-pedalling of the negative, and concentration on the positive accommodations Israel is willing to make for peace, would be progress.

Everything But the Kitchen Sink

As a result of recent rioting at Kingston Penitentiary an entrance to ranges at KP was barricaded by altar, thrown down two floors from chapel area. Also used in barricade was cell door, part of cell-locking system as well as furniture from cells and recreation area.—(CP)

Deeper Next Time

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel's military intelligence chief, making a rare public appearance, said Friday night a renewal of fighting in the Middle East would possibly force a direct confrontation with Soviet forces and trigger an Israel attack deep into Egypt.

The intelligence officer, Maj.-Gen. Aharon Yariv, appeared with the Israeli chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Haim Bar Lev, in a pre-independence anniversary rally in Jerusalem.

Taking into account the quantity and quality and strategic considerations, said Yariv, "the Israeli forces are able to foil any attempt to undermine control of the ceasefire lines."

"We would probably have to confront the Russians if fire is renewed," he continued, "and we shall have to penetrate deep into Egypt."

Oath to Queen Violated?

Monarchist League Demands Resignation of Four Liberals

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Ottawa — Charging they had violated their parliamentary oath of allegiance to the Queen, John Aimers, Dominion chairman of the Monarchist League has called publicly for the resignation of four of the Liberal MP members of the joint Senate-Commons constitutional committee.

This group has been touring the country for months, hearing community and individual representations as to what, if any changes should be made in the British North America Act.

From these meetings have come reports — some partially confirmed, others denied — that the disposition of the committee, or at least some of its members, is to recommend abolition of the monarchy and establishment of a republican form of government.

The four MPs accused by Aimers were committee co-chairman Mark MacGuigan of Windsor-Walkerville, Gilles Marceau of Lapointe, Warren Allman of Notre Dame de Grace and Marcel Prud'homme of Saint-Denis.

Except for MacGuigan, all are from Quebec.

While the "honesty of resignation" seemed the only course open for the four Liberal members of the committee, said Aimers, they should remember, while departing —(as they aren't likely to do) — that not only did they betray their oath of loyalty to their Queen, but disregarded the counsel of their prime minister.

Aimers recalled that when Prime Minister Trudeau in July of last year was asked if he would scrap the monarchy should its abolition make it any easier for Quebec to "accept Canada and Confederation," the record shows the prime minister had answered, in part:

"If it were as simple as that, I suppose, yes."

But it was far from that simple, he went on and concluded:

"I certainly don't want to maintain Canadian unity in the first stage by, shall we say, placating the extreme nationalists in Quebec if it means that we're going to alienate the whole of the rest of the country from Quebec and from the federal government."

The prime minister said, too, there were the two "extremes," as he called them, of opinion on the monarchy.

The minority in Quebec wildly opposed to it.

Another minority in other provinces just as wildly in favor of it.

And in between the two poles, said the prime minister, was a wide band of less intense feeling.

His point: The federal government must do the best it could to represent the majority and the majority wasn't in favor of abolition of the monarchy.

Waffle Surprise

effect. It was quickly defeated.

David Lewis, acknowledged by his opponents to be heading the leadership contest, said it would be a disservice to the party and Canada if any resolution questioned the value and desire of Canadians to live together in one united country.

Candidate Frank Howard said the Quebec resolution on self-determination was close to support for separatism.

Quebec would be the tail wagging the dog if it got the whole convention to support its position.

However, he said he does not question Quebec's right to make its own decisions.

Candidate John Harney said the essence of what Quebec wants is contained in the resolution approved by the convention. He was the only leadership candidate to mention that the Quebec delegation is small.

Lewis also said all Canadian workers, French and English, have been exploited by capitalism. And the two cultures and two languages had been exploited by the Liberals, Conservatives and Union Nationale to divide Canadians.

Lewis, who spent his boyhood in Montreal, said he knows Quebec a great deal better than some of the left-wing young people at the convention who had never even visited the province.

Earlier, the convention approved by a show of hands a resolution calling for increased public investment in resource industries such as petroleum.

The Waffle pulled nearly every device in the convention rulebook to try to win approval for nationalization: demands for a standing vote, challenges to the chair and appeals to rulings by the chair.

The convention approved a resolution on unemployment and inflation which called for a massive public housing program, more anti-pollution programs, tax relief for low-income groups, unemployment benefits tied to the cost of living and funds to increase job opportunities for young people.

David Lewis Offers Self In Last Pitch

OTTAWA (CP) — David Lewis, generally conceded the favorite in the campaign to succeed T. C. Douglas as leader of the New Democratic Party, Friday night made his final pitch to delegates. He pledged to devote all his time, capacity, knowledge and experience to the cause of the party.

Lewis was the first to speak during the evening devoted to the candidates, and amid constant cheering from supporters said that across Canada there is a great opportunity for the NDP.

With growing disenchantment and protest throughout Canada, the poor were flexing their muscles, native people were demanding their just rights, the unemployed felt betrayed, the farmers felt exploited and the organized workers felt victimized.

The NDP, he said, understand the nature of contemporary capitalistic society "and we believe that our goals for Canada are humane and exciting."

Lewis did not discuss his own candidacy through most of his 15-minute speech. But at the end he said:

"If you should honor me tomorrow by electing me your leader, I have a pledge to make."

"I shall devote all my time and capacity, all the knowledge and experience I have gained, to the service of our party and our cause, as I have tried to do all my adult life."

Donald MacDonald, former NDP Ontario leader, won the election for national president against the Waffle candidate, Mrs. Carol Gudmundson of Saskatoon, with 885 votes to 565.

The Waffle group had expected Mrs. Gudmundson to attract only about a quarter the votes of MacDonald.

In later voting, Mrs. Gudmundson was chosen as one of seven vice-presidents.

Joyce Nash of Ladysmith, B.C., was also elected a vice-president.

Howard Favored

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard, NDP member of Parliament for Skeena, is likely to become deputy leader of the party if David Lewis of Toronto is elected leader today, party sources say.

Howard, like Lewis, is a candidate to succeed T. C. Douglas as NDP chief.

If Lewis wins, his likely choice as deputy is expected to be a westerner.

MP Surveillance

Goyer Bugged For Fifth Straight Day

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP Erik Nielsen (Yukon) sought Friday a full-scale inquiry into whether telephones of members of Parliament are being wiretapped by the RCMP.

It was the fifth consecutive day MPs have asked Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer whether members are subject to wiretapping or having dossiers kept on them.

Goyer refused further comment, saying the matter is in the hands of Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux, who promised Thursday to look into the situation.

Nielsen first asked whether Goyer himself has launched an inquiry. When he received no reply, he asked whether Goyer will take steps to ensure he is informed before and after any electronic surveillance of members.

Goyer reiterated there is "no general policy" on such matters. Then he said Nielsen was asking questions on a matter the Speaker is considering.

Roch Lasalle (PC—Joliette) asked whether the RCMP had "bugged" the home of Jean-Marie Cossette, president of the St. Jean-Baptiste Society of Repentigny, Que., and when the Mounties intended to remove the devices. Cossette has said his home was bugged with listening devices.

Goyer said any citizen could install such devices. If Cossette thought he had someone else's property, he should return it.

Asked whether it was RCMP property, Goyer said it would not be in the public interest to reply one way or the other.

Italy's Mail Will Move

ROME (UPI) — Postal workers agreed Friday to end strikes and slowdowns that piled up tons of undelivered mail over the past 10 days and cost the Italian economy an estimated $48 million.

The government said at a meeting of all the striking postal unions, it would meet some of the strikers' demands and study other unresolved issues. The unions then said that normal work operations would resume today.

Safety Device Kills Test Baboon

DETROIT (AP) — A baboon was killed Thursday in an experimental test of a car airbag safety device, but the researcher who conducted the test said the accident would have no significance for human beings using airbags.

Prof. Lawrence Patrick of the Wayne State University mechanical engineering department said the experiment involved a baboon, anesthetized to keep it from moving and held in place by taut cords.

He said that when the airbag, a device designed to restrain car passengers in event of a crash, inflated, tight cords were pressed hard against the animal, crushing its internal organs.

The baboon was used to simulate a child, he said, but because restraints of the type used in the experiment would never be used in an actual car, the experiment has no significance for humans.

"We later ran the same experiments without the restraints — at the instant the airbag deployed we cut the restraints and the animal was not injured," Patrick said.

Patrick said that while much development work remains to be done on the bags, used in at least some 1974 cars to meet stiff new government regulations for crash protection, "I think that for the more severe collisions, they're going to be a real asset."

Most Want Nudity Restrictions

From LAT

LOS ANGELES — Los Angeles police officers recently completed a survey in California which found that 98 per cent of the public favors government restrictions on nudity and sexual activity in live performances, movies and magazines.

Capt. Robert Swensson, commander of the vice investigation division, said the survey was made necessary by a California Supreme Court ruling that officers must establish statewide "community standards" before they qualify as expert witnesses in obscenity or pornography cases.

Two of the policemen involved in the survey, Sgt. Donald Radesky and Officer Sam Barber, said interviews with 1,600 persons had resulted in the following percentages of persons who said their standards were offended by these circumstances:

- Bare-breasted women, 60 per cent in live performances, 57 per cent in movies and 47 per cent in magazines.
- Totally nude women, 81 per cent in live performances, 76 per cent in movies and 66 per cent in magazines.
- Totally nude men, 92 per cent in live performances, 89 per cent in movies and 83 per cent in magazines.

Ninety-nine per cent of those interviewed objected to sexual deviations, such as homosexuality or whipping for sexual gratification, communicated in any form.

The survey was conducted in the California cities of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Sacramento, San Diego, Oakland, San Jose, Santa Ana, Marysville, Nevada City, Tahoe City, Susanville, Red Bluff, Redding, Eureka, Stockton, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara, San Bernadino, Riverside and Palm Springs.

Calgary Teacher Strike

Libraries Jammed With Loose Pupils

CALGARY (CP) — Main city libraries were flooded with requests and jammed with students as 3,900 teachers stayed away from 164 schools in the third day of a strike against the Calgary public school board.

With no settlement in sight Friday, 79,000 students are faced with continuing their studies in preparation for June examinations.

The teachers, mainly concerned about working conditions in their proposed 1971-72 contract, and the board met separately with mediator Henry Libke of Edmonton. However, no announcement was made of a return to teacher-board negotiations.

Board officials say schools will open "the following morning" after a settlement is reached. This means if the strike ends on or before Sunday, schools could open Monday morning.

"Our main downtown library and several large branches have been filled with students at times," says W. R. Castell, chief librarian of Calgary's public library board.

"If this keeps up, we will have to consider hiring extra staff to handle the increased demands."

University of Calgary officials, city police, home and school members and board administrators were trying to solve problems arising from the strike, which erupted from an eight-month contract dispute.

The university's physics department is planning to organize "demonstration classes for students and teachers who want something to do."

Six Critically Injured In Tanker Truck Fire

GHENT, Belgium (AP) — A tanker truck began leaking its liquid gas cargo Friday, then exploded, enveloping itself and eight following cars in flames. Hospital sources said eight persons were injured, six critically.

Motorists Too Much for Machines

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — In the battle of man and machine, humans occasionally can win — if they refuse to co-operate.

The state of California announced Thursday it is junking new automatic toll collecting machines on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge because they couldn't deal with "inexperienced drivers."

On April 30, uniformed toll takers will return to duty in the lanes manned by machines for the past three months.

James Moe, the state public works director, said drivers were pouring 50 pennies on coins wrapped in cellophane into the maw of the automated collectors just to watch the machines digest them.

The machines also were incapable of performing one of the human toll collectors' occasional courtesy services — holding up cars in other lanes so a "wrong way" driver can cut across to make a U-turn and thus avoid a nine-mile journey to the first off-ramp.

All in all, officials concluded, "automatic collection is, at present, not safe and efficient."

2,000 Jobs Threatened By Post Office Cuts?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Cuts in services by the post office department threaten the jobs of 2,000 postmen, Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, said Friday.

Decarie said the post office no longer makes door-to-door delivery in some shopping centres, business buildings and apartments and that this trend probably will increase.

"This is a terrible imposition on the public from a government department that is supposed to be serving the public," he said in an interview.

If the VW 411 with 4 doors isn't big enough, how about one with 3 doors?

If our 411 4-door sedan doesn't solve your transportation problem, there's still another door open to you: The VW 411 Wagon.

Say your main problem is carrying space. Open up its big back door and put all your problems behind you. Because back there is a gaping 24.7 cu. ft. of room. (Fold down the rear seat and you can add another 24 cu. ft.)

Open up the front hood of a 411 Wagon and what have you got? Nothing. (The engine's in the rear.) But that 14.1 cu. ft. of nothing can swallow a lot of luggage, golf clubs, or what have you.

All in all, 62.8 cubic feet of room to carry things in.

True, there are wagons around that carry more. The only trouble is, you have to carry around more wagon.

The 411 is a good 3 feet shorter than most of the biggies, so you won't have to roam the parking lot looking for a big enough berth.

Besides this impressive luggage story, the 411 comes with an impressive list of extras that we don't ask you extra for: Electronic fuel-injection. Front disc brakes. Steel-belted radial tires. Double-joint rear axle. Contoured bucket seats. Electric rear window defroster. Even an electric clock.

VW 411 WAGON The 411 Wagon. $3,440* loaded.

New York Climbs As Toronto Dips

TORONTO (CP) — The market dropped sharply in moderate trading as it posted its fourth successive losing session.

Home A was unchanged at 30, Home B, the voting issue, lost 1¾ to 29¼, Cygnus A ¼ to 5¼ and Cygnus B, the voting stock, 1⅜ to 7⅛.

Consumers' Gas Ltd. which will acquire control of Home lost ⅝ to 20¼.

Falconbridge dropped 1½ to 147, Dominion and Anglo Investments 1 to 19, Canadian Westinghouse 1 to 14½, Placer 1¼ to 34½ and Sherritt ½ to 19¼.

Brunswick slipped 35 cents to 5.80, Kerr-Addison 25 cents to 9.35, Scurry-Rainbow ⅞ to 24⅛ and Great Plains ¼ to 35½.

Chrysler was up 1¾ to 33½, Hand Chemical 1½ to 9½, CPR 1⅜ to 68⅞, Stanley Brock 1 to 19, Patino ⅜ to 22¼, Labrador Mining ½ to 41½, Lake Dufault ⅝ to 14⅛, Canadian Superior Oil ⅝ to 43¼, Pan Ocean ⅜ to 18⅝ and Ranger ¼ to 16.

Falconbridge declined 1 to 148, Hudson's Bay Oil ⅞ to 47¼, International Nickel ⅝ to 41⅝.

Highlighting gains in the industrial sector, Selkirk Holdings was up 2½ to 13, Guaranty Trust 2¼ to 11½, Metropolitan Stores 2 to 40, CPR 1¼ to 68¾ and Credit Foncier ½ to 50½.

Highlighting declines, Southam dropped 1 to 60, Scott-Lasalle 1 to 29½, Steel Co. of Canada ⅞ to 26⅞, Zeller's ¾ to 15¾, Aquitaine ⅝ to 27⅛ and Bank of Commerce ⅝ to 22¼.

Blue Chips Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices shot ahead, led by the blue chips. Trading was heavy.

Early in the session, the market was lower as investors tried to grasp the import of the one-quarter-per-cent increase in the prime lending rate. At first many believed this signalled a sudden sharp increase in the interest-rate structure, analysts said.

A re-evaluation of the situation, however, led many investors to see the bank move as a positive action.

The NYSE index of 1,300 common stocks climbed 0.29 to 57.32.

Control Data, which reported sharply higher first-quarter earnings, climbed 3¼ to 75¼. National Cash Register was up 1½ to 44⅛; Eastern Air Lines up ⅛ to 26⅝; and Chrysler up 1⅛ to 33.

Industrials Rise

VANCOUVER — Strong among industrials were Cominco, Canadian Allied Properties, Doman, Finning Tractor, NWL Financial and PWA.

Losers among oils were BP Oil and Sunlite.

Bathurst Norseman added .12 at 2.73 as a strong spot in mines.

Investors Timid

MONTREAL (CP) — Utilities advanced fractionally to mark the only bright spot in dull and timid trading.

Cominco was up 1 to 22¾ and Texaco Canada ½ to 33.

Transaction Minors Left 'Skim Milk'

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

According to investor estimates the only winner of the deal which will put Consumers Gas of Toronto in control of Home Oil Company of Calgary is R. A. Brown Jr., the president of the oil company.

Brown, who is to get a minimum of $17,000,000 for his shares in Cygnus Corporation that represent control of Home, will in addition be retained by Consumers Gas as the top executive of Home.

When terms of the deal became known, shares of Consumers Gas, the buying company, dropped 62 cents to $20¼. The voting shares of Cygnus dropped $1.37 to $7⅛, and Home Oil B was off $1.75 to $29¼.

In short, initial response of shareholders in the implicated companies didn't think very much of it.

And why should they?

So far as the holders of Cygnus B are concerned, the offer of about $15 a share being made by Consumer's Gas for the 1,400,000 shares held by Brown are not being extended to the minority holders of the other 1,390,000 Cygnus B shares. Nor appears any offer by Consumers to the holders of the remaining voting shares of Home Oil.

In the past few years Canadian and provincial securities commissions and the governors of the verious stock exchanges have indicated they consider it ethical when a controlling block of shares is changing hands at a premium price, other shareholders should — pro rata — also be given a chance to participate.

However, Consumers Gas in this case was asked by the government to make an offer for Brown's stock — to keep Home Canadian — and so far as they are concerned the amount of ownership in Home exerted by Brown is all they want.

So once again, and this time with presumed Government of Canada approval, the minority shareholders are being left lapping the skimmed milk.

Isn't it time minority shareholders of all companies started forming themselves into an investors union — to have a united voice, just as the labor unions do, to fight persecution and injustice?

Judgment Made

Silver Standard's court actions against Jedway Iron Ore Limited, a subsidiary of the Granby Mining Company Limited, have been settled, at least in part, by the payment to Silver Standard of $10,906 by Granby.

Shareholders of Granby were told at the annual general meeting by retiring president L. T. Postle that Granby had accepted judgment of the B.C. Court of Appeal to allow $10,906 as part of the Silver Standard claim.

Another action by Silver Standard, in respect of interest payments in perpetuity on $700,000 at six per cent, had been rejected by the appeal court. However, Postle said further action is possible.

Granby is British Columbia's oldest established mining company and Postle had been its president for the past 16 years. He is succeeded by Robert Matthew formerly vice-president.

Optimism Bared

It is always a pleasure to find out that there are still some optimists among us, even if they may be overly enthusiastic. —

Russell Isaac, who is president of the Great Pacific Fund Ltd. of Vancouver, is among them.

In his report to shareholders for the quarter ended March 31, Isaac says "with inflation under control and an increase in the money supply the economy is in a healthy state and we can look forward to a continued improvement in conditions for the balance of 1971."

Isaac says the net asset value of Great Pacific shares rose 11.22 per cent in the first quarter, which he described as "erasing the previous loss."

Great Pacific Fund is unusual among the mutuals in that its portfolio consists of the shares of other mutual funds, mostly of a growth nature. Its investment counsel is the Vancouver firm of Phillips, Hager and North.

Heavy Loss

The series of problems that struck the B.C. Forest industry in 1970 were felt fully by Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd., the Kootenays firm which suffered additionally through having in addition to break in during the period — its new pulp and lumber facilities at Skookumchuck and Canal Flats.

Crewbrook's net loss for the year was $7,054,430 ($5.25 a share).

Trousers, Deal Sewn Up

TORONTO (CP) — Oakah Jones took two pairs of "bargain" trousers back to a downtown department store Thursday night to have buttons sewn on the back pockets. Then he went to Toronto International Airport to wait standby for a Calgary flight to put the finishing touches on a $20 million deal for Home Oil Co. Ltd. Jones is the 70-year-old chairman of Consumers' Gas Co., which is acquiring a controlling interest in Home Oil.

Pollution Check Progress Made

The B.C. government is making progress in an inventory of sources of land and water pollution to ensure that registration has been carried out as required under the Pollution Control Act.

So far, 1,725 industries, corporations, and individuals have registered.

N. W. Venables, provincial pollution control director, said he has the power to move against any industry guilty of a high degree of pollution whether or not it has a permit.

He said he used this power 10 to 12 times last year to order polluters to improve the quality of their discharges or face a shut-down order.

LAND SURVEYORS

An interesting vacancy is now open with B.C. Hydro to conduct legal and engineering surveys pertaining to land acquisition, for generating, transmission and distribution facilities, flowage, reservoirs and other Hydro developments.

The operating area is the Southern Interior of British Columbia with headquarters in Nelson.

Applicants should be members of the Corporation of B.C. Land Surveyors.

Salary commensurate with qualifications plus excellent fringe benefits.

Coroner Repeats Plea

Falls Danger Signs Urged

Greater Victoria's coroner said Friday he will repeat a recommendation that danger signs be posted around Niagara Falls Canyon in Goldstream provincial park — but it was indicated the action will primarily be for the record.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ruled, after conducting an inquiry, that newly-arrived Victorian, Frank Pretula, 28, met accidental death Tuesday afternoon from injuries received in a fall from a cliff at the top of the 150-foot waterfall.

Pretula, until recently a Toronto resident, had just arrived from a vacation in Europe and was going to live with his mother, Mrs. Donna Pretula, 923 McClure. He was alone when he tried the slippery rocks at the top of the falls. Colwood RCMP never found any witnesses to the event.

Last June 7, West German tourist, Herbert Otto Hohaus, 32, died in a similar fall after he slipped from rocks when he was taking pictures down from the clifftop to the pool at the canyon bottom.

At the time, St. Jorre recommended the posting of signs warning the public of danger on the rocks and around the top of the canyon, and Friday, he said he will repeat that recommendation.

However, provincial parks officials had already stated signs were put up and painted on rocks after the first incident and said the signs were destroyed by vandals and the paintings were worn away.

They said guardrailing every danger point would mean hundreds of miles of rails. They also noted both victims were from out of town and said: "In the end, we each must be responsible for our own safety."

Murders Soar

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago experienced a 105-per-cent increase in homicides between 1965 and 1970, Police Superintendent James Iconlisk said Thursday.

Provincial COURT

A 20-year-old Central Saanich woman who was on probation for an attempted theft earlier this year was sentenced Friday in Victoria Provincial Court to 45 days in jail for shoplifting.

Dawn Elizabeth Fulthorp, 6602 West Saanich, was sentenced by Judge William Ostler after she pleaded guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — four balls of wool worth a total of $3.55 and shoplifted from The Bay at about 11:45 a.m. Friday.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said Miss Fulthorp had been placed on probation Feb. 19 and the judge said to the woman that probation "hasn't deterred you in the slightest ... Well, I am very sorry that it hasn't. You are sentenced to 45 days."

The remarks were made during what Macintyre said, and the judge agreed, was "a bad day for shoplifters" with eight such cases on the day's list — about one-third of the total. Other sentences:

● Martin Ernest Jones, 24, of 435 Durban, was jailed 14 days following his plea of guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of an $18.95 Bostitch tacker March 31 from Woodward's. Jones had a conviction in 1968 for car theft.

● Ralph Thomas Garland, 69, of 2333 Beach, was fined $250 after pleading guilty to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of four $1.35 golf balls Thursday from The Bay.

● Louise Anna Whitehead, 18, of 4989 Lochside, was fined $150 after she pleaded guilty April 13 to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of a pair of sunglasses April 5 from The Bay.

● Felix Patrick Wilson, 17, of Duncan, received a suspended sentence and four-month probationary term following his plea of guilty April 8 to a charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of three clothing items Feb. 27 from The Bay.

Robert McIsaac, 32, of 219 Meade, was committed by Ostler to a higher court for trial following a preliminary hearing on a charge of attempted rape. The charge was laid by Colwood RCMP and dated March 29 in the Colwood area.

□

In traffic court, Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered a $200 fine and a partial three-month driving ban for Mrs. Shirley Lavone Harper, 34, of 1879 Townley, who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving April 6 in Oak Bay with a blood-alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

Top Student

Victoria police Constable Robert Blackie, 28, was honored Thursday during graduation ceremonies in Vancouver as top student among 48 taking 16-week recruit course at Vancouver Police Academy. High scores also were reported for other Victorians taking course, which is mainly for Vancouver force — Thomas Anderson, John Nicholson Smith and Peter Talavs.

Advertising Prejudice Denied

There is no discrimination in advertising of positions at University of Victoria, an administration spokesman said Friday.

Acting information officer Floyd Fairclough was commenting on a broadcast on CBC Friday in which former newsman and broadcaster James M. Minifie said UVic was looking for a dean of graduate studies through American journals.

Fairclough said the advertisement had appeared in the American Association for the Advancement of Science journal first because it publishes more frequently than Canadian or British journals.

Government Employees

Wage Rise Vote Slated

Members of the Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Union will vote next week on acceptance or rejection of their 1971 wage increase.

President of the Victoria branch, H. F. Kent, said Friday the 2,000 member group will hold its ratification meeting at noon Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Provincial Museum's Newcombe Auditorium. He said other branches and locals of the 15,000 member union will also hold ratification meetings next week.

The 1971 increases, announced by the government earlier, give provincial employees pay hikes averaging 6½ per cent. Union negotiating committees had sought increases averaging 9 per cent during wage talks with the Civil Service Commission in January and February.

Kent said results of the wage vote by members of the Victoria branch will be sent to union headquarters for tabulation with the vote by other branches and locals.

Then the union will re-open wage talks with the commission on behalf of occupational and departmental groups voting to reject this year's increase.

Alaska Pipeline: Morton Thinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton said Friday Morton had not decided whether to permit an oil pipeline across Alaska, despite seemingly favorable remarks three days ago.

Excitement Spurs Competition

By BERT BINNY

Some of the most exciting moments in the Greater Victoria Music Festival of 1971 came Friday night.

Following their respective final competitions, the winners of the B.C. Electric Rose Bowl, awarded to the top vocalist, and the City of Victoria Medallion, for the best pianist were announced.

The Rose Bowl was won by soprano Nan Long who had previously taken the oratorio class and received a highly creditable 172 points in the light soprano division.

The other three Rose Bowl finalists were mezzo-soprano Andrea Mellis, soprano Karen Smith and baritone, Robert Hall.

With the Rose Bowl this year goes nomination to compete in the B.C. Centennial finals in Vancouver.

The Medallion winner was Kwok May-ling who also won the senior piano division of the Centennial competition and also proceeds to Vancouver.

Miss Kwok's first performance was rewarded with a standing ovation and cries of "bravo" — the sort of enthusiastic demonstration that doesn't happen very often at the music festival. But it was honestly deserved.

Competing in the Medallion class was Frances Crampton and, in the senior Centennial class, Miss Crampton and Becky Jay.

Four young musicians appeared in the junior Centennial piano class; Miranda Wong, Mary Chard, Jocelyn Abbott and Ron Kilian. Jocelyn was the winner here.

The junior Centennial vocal class was contested by Jennifer Angus, Debra-Crozier-Smith and Helen Wilson with Jennifer finishing at the head of the list.

There was a large audience at Fellowship Hall for these classes and there should be no complaint whatever about lack of artistic value received.

There was also a full house at Blanshard elementary school for the speech arts honor performance.

Only one competition is included in this program, that for the Audrey Johnson Award: a $30 bursary to "a competitor, 21 years or under, who in the opinion of the adjudicator has reached a high standard and who shows promise in the Speech Arts."

This was won by Rosalind Scott who has been very successful in competition all week.

Also announced was the winner of the Helen Smith Award: $25 to the male competitor with the highest aggregate mark in Speech Arts classes, under 12 to under 21 years.

This was won by Blake Carter.

Participating in the honor program were three school speech choirs, a round dozen soloists, a duo and a trio.

First in line for other awards are the following:

Highest mark in piano, under 15 classes, Walter Prossnitz with 88.

Highest mark in Canadian compositions class (piano) Maudie van Klaveren and Helene Barker, each with 87.

These awards are donated by the Victoria branch of the Registered Music Teachers' Association.

The Victoria Conservatory of Music bursary of $25 for the highest mark in piano, under 17 classes, went to Heather Pidcock with a mark of 87.

Medallion winner, Kwok May-ling, tops the list for two further awards: the Henry Birks and Sons (B.C.) prize for the highest mark in the concerto classes and the Marion McGovern scholarship of $50 for the highest mark in open piano classes, excepting concerto.

Miss Kwok scored 90 points in both cases.

Catherine John won an anonymous award of $20 as leader in the girls' sacred solo class, 13 or 14 years.

A mark of 88 brought a $15 prize to Jennifer Angus from the R.M.T.A. this for the highest mark in junior vocal solo, specifically, 14, 15 and 16 classes.

The Victoria Musical Art Society bursary of $50 for the highest mark in vocal classes, 17 to 19, finds two contestants tied with 88. They are Teresa Marston and Robin Powell.

The J. Ingram Smith Award for the singer obtaining the top mark in operatic classes was won by Judy Temple with 85.

It should be pointed out, however, that there were other high marks but the competitors concerned failed to adhere to regulations, particularly that requiring that they enter quick study or sight reading classes. This omission simply spells disqualification.

Apart from the Rose Bowl, City Medallion and Centennial contests, competition in vocal and piano classes ground to a halt Thursday evening and Friday afternoon respectively.

And, except for competition in the Audrey Johnson Award which took place last night at the Honor Performance, speech arts classes were also completed Friday afternoon.

But competition remained keen to the bitter end. In the piano division, 41 entrants in 11 classes heard by adjudicator Isobel Rolston at St. John's Memorial Hall all achieved marks between 80 and 88. The sole 88 went to consistently successful performer Walter Prossnitz.

The very young pianists who were adjudicated by Trevor Anthony at Fellowship Hall achieved scores from 77 to 86 and there were 37 of them. The high 86 went to Gloria Wong, also a frequent winner, in the under-9 division.

In speech arts, points hovered between 80 and 87 among 29 performers. Rosalind Scott and Gordon Halkett each secured 87 in the class for dramatic monologues, under-16.

Maida Criddle Merely Incredible

* * * * * * * * *

As shy and nervous as teenager and she's not quite 87

By MAX LOW

Maida Criddle leaned back in the sunshine took a mighty swing and socked the ball more than 100 yards down the fairway.

Nothing too unusual about this — 225 other women were doing just about the same thing in the qualifying round of the Victoria City and District ladies' two-ball foursome tournament at Victoria Golf Club Friday.

It's just that Miss Criddle was making her now-famous annual appearance in the tournament and she will be 87 on May 2.

With much of the shyness and nervousness of a 16-year-old schoolgirl making her first appearance in a big tournament, Miss Criddle said before her partner Muriel Chisholm hit off from the first tee that she was playing to her 30 handicap but hadn't had much practice this spring.

GOOD PARTNER

"I don't expect to get very far, but I've got a good partner this year," Miss Criddle said. "My partner is a much better player than I am. She has a handicap of 24 and I'm scared of letting her down."

Maida Criddle moved to Victoria in 1960 from Manitoba, where she lived near Brandon, and has played in this tournament every year since except in 1969, when she missed because her "handicap was too high."

Last year she played with Alice Crisp, who couldn't make it again this year.

"It was her turn to have a handicap that was too high," Miss Criddle said with a smile.

PLAY HERE FIRST

Miss Criddle hasn't always played golf. In fact, she took the game up at what she says is "relatively late in life" and had her first game ever here in Victoria when she borrowed "one club" and played 18 holes way back in 1928.

Tennis was the first love of her sporting life.

"We played a lot of tennis when we were young and had a court at home," she said, wistfully remembering her early days in Manitoba.

Miss Criddle said she had only played "two games of tennis" since moving to Victoria but added that tennis "is quite different here as we played mostly on grass courts in Manitoba."

Maida isn't the only remarkable Criddle.

There's brother Evelyn. "He gets very vexed when you think he's a girl," Maida says. He's 84 and although he's given up playing regularly, he still goes out and practices golf "and he does a lot of gardening."

And then there's another brother, Dr. Stewart Criddle, who is 83 and who also gardens a lot.

But it's that rip-roaring youngster of the Criddle kids, Talbot (Tully), who sets the blistering pace in the family.

Talbot, Maida says, is "just over 80" and manages to fit in a few sets of tennis in the morning before going out for 18 holes of golf in the afternoon. "And he plays a pretty good game of tennis," his sister says.

For young players hoping to stay trim and play sport until late in their lives, Maida recommends "lots of work and plenty of exercise to keep you limbered up."

SMOKED TWICE

She says, too, that she has only smoked two cigarettes in her life.

"Oh, we smoked as kids of course," she said with a little laugh. "But I only smoked twice as an adult." She recalls she had one cigarette on a dare and the other to celebrate nephew Percy's wedding anniversary.

Almost as she shrugs off the passing years. Maida shrugs off illness and looks on the bright side of things.

"I feel fine," she says — and looks it. "Oh, I had a heart attack in 1951 but I got over it, with the help of the doctor."

Does she find the years have taken toll on any particular part of her game?

"Well, I can't shoot straight any more," Maida said with a wide grin. "But I don't find the distance too much. I did find it a little tiring when I went out for my first 18 holes this spring, but I soon got used to it."

Not realizing some of the finer rules and regulations of women's tournament golf, I asked Miss Criddle if she used the motorized golf carts.

"Oh, those things. Yes, I tried one once for nine holes, they're fun," she said with a girlish giggle.

"I just walk, the distance doesn't bother me."

And she set off.

And, as Maida pulled her golf cart down onto the fairway to play the second shot, Victoria club professional Paul Trapp said: "She's an incredible woman. Last year in this tournament, I watched her walking up the hill to the 18th green pulling TWO golf carts — just to give her partner a helping hand."

Incredible is certainly the word for Miss Maida Criddle.

There is a delicious irony about the Stanley Cup quarter-final which surprisingly made onlookers out of Boston Bruins. Their defeat came in the first playoff after the National Hockey League belatedly decided that a playoff format which permitted a finalist from the expansion division was making the cup final anti-climactic. This is not to say that the 1971 cup final won't be a good one, particularly if it should be between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, but the "wonder" team is out of it and nothing that is left can quite have the impact of the Boston-Montreal series.

Defeat of the Bruins has, temporarily at least, put things in the NHL back in proper perspective. No longer does one have to put up with claims that the Bruins are the greatest hockey club ever assembled, that their Phil Esposito-Ken Hodge-Wayne Cashman line is the greatest attacking unit ever put together and that Bobby Orr, who may eventually deserve it, is the greatest hockey player of all time although he has put in only five NHL seasons and four of those were in watered-down competition.

There are, of course, the statements from the defiantly reluctant that the 78 scheduled games provide the true test and that the better team lost. That has validity, but it is also true there is no greater test than the deciding game of a playoff series and the fact remains that the Bruins weren't up to it although a bad mistake gave them the game's first goal and they also had the big edge of home ice. They're going to have to start all over, and carry on a bit further, before they will again be ranked with the truly great NHL teams.

* * *

But that is only part of it. What is being missed by many is that the Montreal Canadiens who cut down the Bruins weren't just a bunch of lucky stiffs who fell heir to something they didn't deserve because the defending champions stumbled and dropped the cup. The Bruins didn't fall as much as they were pushed. Lost in the excitement of the Boston record-setting was the fact that Canadiens averaged four goals a game for a 27-12-6 post-Christmas showing although they were still plagued with ordinary goalkeeping and still had a veteran or two not operating at full efficiency.

However, and the Bruins recognized and feared it, the potential was there. Canadiens had flopped to miss the 1970 playoffs but left from the club which compiled a 24-5 record while winning the Stanley Cup the two previous years were Jean Beliveau, Yvan Cournoyer, Jacques Lemaire, J. C. Tremblay, Henri Richard, John Ferguson, Jacques Laperriere and Terry Harper. They had some pride to regain, and there to help them were great additions in Pete and Frank Mahovlich and outstanding rookies in Rejean Houle, Marc Tardif, Guy Lapointe, Phil Roberto and, above all, goalkeeper Ken Dryden.

The combination won it fair and square, outhustling the Bruins, showing more poise and producing more series stars than the team which boasted four players who scored more than 100 points this season and 11 players who scored at least 20 times.

* * *

Opinions vary about which of the Canadiens was most responsible for getting Bobby Orr started on his Florida vacation quite a bit earlier than he had planned. There is quite a case for Dryden, who was beaten 26 times in the seven games but got in front of 260 shots to make good for those who have long claimed all the Canadiens needed to come all the way back was good goalkeeping. Dryden, amazingly cool for a fellow who had played only six NHL games before being shoved into a playoff series against a team as potent as the Bruins, was better than good.

And so were Pete Mahovlich, perhaps the best all-round player of the series; Frank Mahovlich, who regained his old-time scoring touch, and Tremblay, an unsurpassed craftsman when he is right who played what was said to be his best game of the season in the decider.

Those were the four Canadiens who caught most eyes most often, but the player who may have contributed the most is Richard. A sometimes moody type and coming off a mediocre season, Richard was determined to wipe out the memory of last season and his inspired play provided the spark his club needed as well as playing a big part in throttling the Esposito line in the last two games through his marking of Cashman.

Nor does the record of outstanding contribution end there. The composite performance chart after six games shows that Lamaire, who checked Esposito in the last two games, was on the ice for nine Montreal goals and no Boston goals. Ferguson was plus eight with 10-2 and Cournoyer, whose reputation as a checker has sometimes been mottled, was 13-4.

* * *

While Canadiens had nothing but heroes, the Bruins had many disappointments. Derek Sanderson and Ed Westfall, usually two of their checking stars, were 5-12 and 4-12, respectively, in goals scored while they were on ice. Esposito was 16-9 but he was on for the power plays and he scored only three times.

As for Orr, the series swung when he was contained in the last two games. He scored five goals and had seven assists but, perhaps tiring, he couldn't provide the looked-for leadership at the finish, failing to get a point and often getting trapped in the last two games as Canadiens tied it at 3-3 and then won that big one in Boston last Sunday.

And what a blast that should bring from Miss K. Kostouros, who noted a comment here last Sunday which reported that Orr had been on the ice for most (15) of the 24 goals Canadiens scored in the first six games of the series, including six of those in that 7-5 second-game win.

"Don't you sportswriters have anything better to do with your time and the space you use in your column than to knock down Bobby Orr?" was the start of an indignant reaction about the four lines and the few seconds they took to type.

There was also an insinuation that I couldn't get on the ice and do the things Bobby Orr has accomplished. That's true, but it isn't news.

No Sign Yet of Red Romp

Occasionally getting pitching and hitting only sporadically, Cincinnati Reds so far have shown no signs of an expected romp in the National League's tough Western Division.

The defending champions got adequate pitching Friday night from Jim Merritt, and rated that a big plus inasmuch as the left hander has had arm trouble. But Merritt's normally hard-hitting mates couldn't do a thing against Claude Osteen and Los Angeles Dodgers took away a 3-0 win.

Merritt was only 0-1 when he left for a seventh-inning pinch hitter but Osteen never lost control and the Dodgers gave him some insurance in their half of the ninth inning when they picked on Joe Gibbon for their last two runs.

Rich Allen, coming along steadily after a slow start, drove in the first run and scored the third as Steve Garvey doubled after Manny Mota and Allen had received ninth-inning bases on balls.

Pete Rose hit a lead-off single, Merritt had a third-inning double, Woody Woodward a fifth-inning single and Rose a ninth-inning double as the Reds managed but four hits.

Defeat left the Reds 4-9 for the season and seven games behind the surprising San Francisco Giants, who wheeled past Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-0, on the five-hit pitching of rookie Steve Stone.

Stone drew a bases-loaded walk in the second inning to force in the only run he needed for his first major-league win. A sacrifice fly by Willie Mays after singles by rookie Chris Speier and Tito Fuentes scored the other run.

Montreal Expos moved within a half game of the Eastern Division lead, squeezing by Houston Astros, 3-2, on a two-run homer by Rusty Staub and steady pitching by Carl Morton.

In other National League games, a 12th-inning single by Ken Singleton delivered the run which gave New York Mets a 7-6 win over Chicago Cubs and home runs by Joe Lis, Willie Montanez, Denny Doyle and Deron Johnson brought Philadelphia Phillies an 8-6 decision over St. Louis Cardinals.

Lions Obtain Tom Wilkinson

B.C. Lions, whose main troubles since the departure of Joe Kapp have stemmed from lack of adequate quarterbacking, are suddenly deep in signal-callers.

Friday, little more than a week after signing Michigan star Don Moorhead, one of the more highly-rated U.S. college quarterbacks, the Lions announced the acquisition of Tom Wilkinson.

Wilkinson, 28, has been with Toronto Argonauts since 1967 after starting his professional career the year before with Toronto Rifles of the Continental Football League.

He was the Toronto regular until last season, when he shared the job with Don Jonas in coach Leo Cahill's two-quarterback system.

Wilkinson, who became expendable when Argos signed Joe Theismann of Notre Dame, completed 80 of 137 passes for 1289 yards and six touchdowns in his last season with the Argos.

The Lions, who are to give up a player as yet unnamed, will throw the experienced Wilkinson into a quarterback battle which will include holdovers Paul Brothers and Vidal Carlin, rookie Pete Fulton from the University of California and, possibly, former Hamilton Tiger-Cat John Eckman.

Moorhead, signed to a multi-year contract, is counted a cinch to be one of the two quarterbacks the Lions will retain. He is rated as an outstanding prospect but the Lions are anxious to have proven experience there while Moorhead is learning professional ways.

The deal sending Wilkinson to the Lions was one of two Argos made Friday with Western Football Conference clubs.

In the other, they sent Bill Swift, a former Lion fullback who has been a fine operative at centre, to Winnipeg Blue Bombers. In exchange the Argos received two Canadians, centre Paul Desjardins and linebacker Peter Palmer.

Barber, Nicklaus Still Lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Veteran Miller Barber rebounded from a triple bogey seven on the first hole and retained a share of the second-round lead in the $165,000 Tournament of Champions Friday.

The 40-year-old Barber had a one-under par 71 for a 36-hole total of 140 and remained tied for the lead with Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus also had a 71 on the demanding 7114-yard La Costa Country Club course that continued to frustrate the field of 35 players, all winners of major tour events in the last 12 months.

South African Gary Player had a 71 for 141.

Masters champion Charles Coody had the day's best round, a 68, and was tied at 142 with Australian Bruce Devlin, who had a 70.

Gene Littler, 71, Dave Stockton, 72, and defending champion Frank Beard followed at 143, putting only eight players under par after two rounds.

PALMER SHOOTS 75

Pre-tourney favorite Arnold Palmer had a 75—including a 40 on the front side — and drifted back in the pack at 145.

But he didn't count himself out of it.

"You can come from anywhere on this course and take over, but you've got to have a good round to do it. If the leader starts hitting it a little wild, well, he could shoot anything."

Barber, winner of the Phoenix Open earlier this year, started off as if he couldn't shoot anything.

He pushed his drive into the deep rough, then put his second in a trap in front of the green. He blasted across the green into the rough, chipped too strongly back across the green again, finally got on in five and took two putts for a seven.

Nicklaus had his troubles, too, taking three one-over-pars on the front side. One came from a trap, another was a three-putt and the third was when he drove in the deep rough.

George Knudson of Toronto, the only Canadian in the tournament, was only one stroke back after the first round. But he carded a 76 Friday for 146.

Book of Sayings Inspires Randy

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Randy Wolff cranked up his confidence from a book of inspirational sayings and shot into the halfway lead in the $60,000 Tallahassee Open Friday, with a nine-under-par 135.

Lee Trevino and four younger golfers were breathing down his neck just one stroke back.

Blustery winds changed the complexion of the satellite tourney from a mass assault on par to an effort to survive among the 50 best scores going into rounds today and Sunday.

Par 144 or better was necessary to stay in the running.

Trevino, who fired a 67, was tied at 136 with Jim Wiechers, Ted Hayes, Bert Yancey and Hubert Green. One stroke further back came Gay Brewer and Steve Reid.

The 26-year-old Wolff, a Texan who attended Louisiana State University, said he takes his inspiration from a book called, As A Man Thinketh, mixed with some aphorisms of his own.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver added a 71 to an opening 67 to remain within three strokes of the leader and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot a 73 for 142. Ben Kern of Toronto, who had an opening 67, soared to 77.

Ferguson Affair Closed—MacNeil

MONTREAL (CP) — Al MacNeil, coach of Montreal Canadiens, said Friday an incident in which left-winger John Ferguson stormed from the team bench during Thursday night's National Hockey League playoff game against Minnesota North Stars is closed.

MacNeil said he met Ferguson before the team workout Friday and "as far as I'm concerned, the incident which took place last night is considered closed."

Ferguson, benched during the third period of the game, stormed from the bench into the team dressing room with 24 seconds of play left in the period. On the way, he rammed his fist into the Canadiens' stick rack.

His premature departure coincided with Minnesota's final goal in their 6-3 triumph over the Canadiens. The win tied the Stanley Cup semi-final series 1-1.

Soccer Playoffs

Division I Semis Set for Sunday

Gorge Molsons, who have already won the Garrison Cup for the league Division I championship, will try to make a sweep of Division I honors when Victoria and District Soccer League playoffs begin this weekend.

At stake for the Division I playoffs is the Price Cup and Gorge meets Jackson Cup finalists University of Victoria Vikings in a sudden-death semi-final match at Heywood Avenue Park at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Victoria West, winner of the Jackson Cup and runner-up in the league championship to Gorge, plays Cosmopolitan Royals in the other Division I semi-final at Topaz Park at 2:15 p.m. on Sunday.

Winners of these games meet in the final for the Price Cup the following Sunday at Topaz Park at 2:15 p.m.

Division II and III playoffs start today with the Division II final being played as a preliminary 1 p.m. game before the Molsons-Vikings clash at Heywood on Sunday.

The Division III final is scheduled for 2:15 p.m. Sunday at Rose Street Park.

Art Jones Most Valuable

SEATTLE (AP) — Art Jones, veteran Portland centre, has been named winner of the Leader Cup as the most valuable player in the Western Hockey League.

It was the second time for Jones, who was also selected in 1968.

Jones, who finished the season with the individual scoring title for the fourth year in a row, will receive $400 in addition to the trophy. He received 181 of a possible 450 points. Seattle's John Hanna received 179 points and Larry Lund of Phoenix 134.

Numbers Assigned For Marathon

A field of 19 runners will set off at 10:30 a.m. Sunday in the combined Western Canada-British Columbia marathon championships.

Officials have altered the original course and the race will not start at Centennial Stadium but will still finish there.

New starting point is on Shelbourne Street about 100 yards from McKenzie. The runners will proceed along Shelbourne, turn into Cordova Bay Road, then left into Blenkinsop, left again into McKenzie and back to the starting point on Shelbourne.

The athletes will make four laps of the course and finish by continuing up McKenzie to Centennial Stadium and making one lap of the track to the finish line.

The distance is a certified 26-mile, 385-yard marathon course and the first-class B.C. Track and Field Association standard time is two minutes and 33 seconds. The Pan-American Games standard is two minutes 22 seconds.

Seven Victoria runners, representing the Evergreen Track Club, Royal Roads Military College, Esquimalt Track and Field Club and the Flying Y, are taking part.

Broncos Opt Out Of Title Series

PENTICTON (CP) — Dr. Arnold Lowden, president of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, has announced that Penticton Broncos would "definitely not" challenge the winner of the Kamloops Rockets-Vancouver Centennials league final.

The Broncos, by a previous league executive ruling, had the option of facing the league playoff winner after playing the Alberta junior champions.

Penticton won the Okanagan Division of the B.C. league and eliminated Kelowna Buckaroos in four straight games in the quarter-finals.

However, the team was forced to drop out of further B.C. playoff action to meet Red Deer Rustlers, the Alberta representative.

The Broncos lost to the Rustlers in a seven-game series and returned to B.C. with a chance to exercise their option.

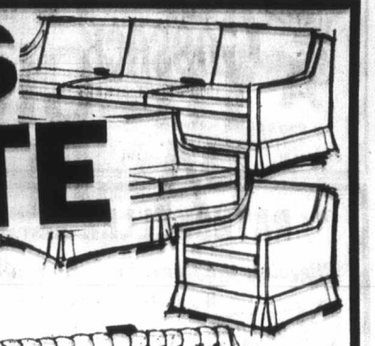

Because of a lack of ice time and "for the prestige of the league," Penticton officials decided not to play the Kamloops-Vancouver winner.

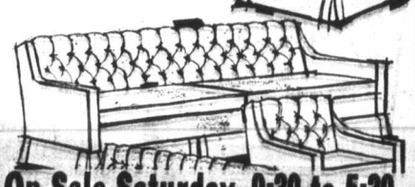

"Things will be different next year," said Dr. Lowden. He did not elaborate.

Symphony Climbs Chart

Mozart Pops Back

(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

LONDON — It took him nearly two centuries but Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart has finally made it.

One of his works is well up on a major pops chart in Britain and a smash hit in several other European countries.

That's right, it's that same child genius who set Europe afire with his music in the 1700s. Most people remember Mozart, who died in 1791, for his church music, his classical symphonies, and his operas Figaro, Don Giovanni, and Cosi Fan Tutte.

That kind of music may have been fine for people in the 18th century but the youth of the 20th century like Mozart's 40th Symphony.

The composer has just hit 12th place on one of Britain's two leading pops charts, a scant two notches back of former Beatle Paul McCartney.

James Johnson, who works on the pop chart, says musicians of Mozart's stature hit the top 20 "very rarely, yes, very rarely indeed."

At the record company responsible for Mozart's new rise to fame, a spokesman recalled that Beethoven and Richard Strauss had made the British pop lists in recent years, but conceded that this sort of thing doesn't happen often.

Mozart's 40th was played by a Spanish orchestra conducted by Waldo de Los Rios, an Argentinian.

For those who know their Mozart, Waldo was faithful to the composer, adding only a rhythm section of harpsichord, 12-string guitar, bass guitar, and drums.

And Here's Dan

HONOLULU (UPI) — Comedian Dad Rowan and two companions arrived at the island of Maui Wednesday night after a three-week voyage from Los Angeles in a battered 27-foot sloop.

Rowan, weary from battling heavy seas, said, "It got pretty hairy out there. The waves were 30-feet high some of the time and we encountered too many squalls to count and a major gale."

Television Use Seen for NFB

OTTAWA (CP) — An announcement will be made shortly of an agreement clearing the way for prime-time use of National Film Board films on the CBC English network.

Sydney Newman, government film commissioner and NFB chairman, told the Commons broadcasting committee Thursday announcement of the CBC-NFB agreement would be made in a matter of days.

The CBC English network had hesitated to use NFB productions in prime viewing hours because of NFB insistence that no commercial breaks be inserted in the films.

After his appointment to the NFB last August, Newman convinced the board of directors to allow the insertion of commercials in films shown on TV.

Navy League Open House

Open house will be held by the Patricia Dufour Navy League Wrenette Corps at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Rainbow Barracks, foot of Robert.

The public will be shown the training received by the Wrenettes, who range in age from 13 to 18, and instructors will be on hand to answer enquiries and accept enrolments.

Classes include sailing, communications, seamanship and rifle shooting.

Payroll Botched By Computer

NIJMEGEN, The Netherlands (UPI) — A city hall computer here paid the salaries of all 800 city employees to only 10 of the staff. One of the overpaid employees, a police cadet, received $30,000 as his first month's slary.

25,000 to 50,000 Watts

Power Boost Sought by CKDA

A power increase for one of Victoria's four radio stations will be on the agenda of a Canadian Radio-TV Commission public hearing due to begin May 18 in Vancouver, CRTC officials disclosed Friday.

Radio station CKDA has applied for permission to increase power to 50,000 watts from 25,000 and a station official said Friday the increase is sought to strengthen the signal in areas already being served by CKDA.

Victoria's two other AM stations — CJVI and CFAX — operate on 10,000 watts each.

The CRTC said earlier applications for licence renewals from 11 Vancouver Island cable-television companies will come up during the hearing, and added these other Vancouver Island matters Friday:

● Victoria Cablevision Ltd., while not being among those seeking a licence renewal, will ask permission to add programs from CFMI-FM in Vancouver to its FM service and change the reception point on FM for the Victoria radio station CFMS.

● Langford-Sooke Cablevision Ltd. will seek authority to increase its monthly service charge to $5 from $4.50.

● Community Video (Nanaimo) Ltd. will apply to start local programming on Channels 11 and 13, change the channel for CBUT, amend its authorized service area and add reception of three radio stations — CHUB in Nanaimo, CFMI-FM and KBIQ-FM in Edmonds, Wash.

Police Seize Chance Boards

An undetermined number of punchboards was confiscated by Esquimalt and Saanich police in separate visits recently to several golf clubs in those municipalities, The Daily Colonist learned Friday.

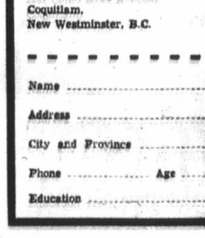

The disclosure was made after an RCMP spokesman confirmed reports that Greater Victoria police forces had been advised to warn golf clubs the chance boards were illegal and subject to confiscation.

There was no indication that any charges would be laid and it was understood the boards have been removed by the clubs.

Census Job Hopes Dashed

The more than 50 Greater Victorians who had hoped for jobs as census takers are out of luck according to Canada Manpower's assistant manager Bill Rapanos.

He confirmed Friday that his office had been compiling a list of those who wanted the work but that the list of census commissioners for Vancouver Island had been released only Thursday.

Already the 400 jobs in the southern Vancouver Island area have been filled and they haven't been advertised yet, he said. The announcement that the 16 census commissioners covering the area from Port Renfrew to Sidney have enough applications to fill the jobs dashed hopes for many who had anticipated work.

It had been said last week from the census commission's Vancouver office that the job would be filled after the naming of the 197 commissioners for B.C. and the Yukon.

Representative for lower Vancouver Island area, Ward Palmer, said because of high unemployment people "somehow" knew who to contact prior to the release of the commissioner's names.

While there are more than 50 people registered with Manpower who would like jobs as census takers, Rapanos said, "the census takers are hired by the commissioners and we are bypassed."

"Census commissioners are excluded from the normal hiring procedures and we are not involved" said Rapanos.

Census takers, with their detailed lists of questions will start calling on Greater Victoria homes May 25. The questions must be answered by June 1.

The normal urban area route covers 200 homes while in rural areas the number is reduced to between 100 and 150.

Tax Trial Adjourned Amid Legal Wrangle

The tax violation trial of lawyer-businessman David Hummel was adjourned until next Wednesday morning after another day of procedural wrangling Friday in Victoria Provincial Court.

Crown prosecutor Robert Hutchison and John Spencer, Hummel's defence lawyer, sparred repeatedly Friday over admission of evidence. Hutchison told court he will prove Hummel evaded taxes through various fiscal manoeuvres, including share trading, while he was involved in complex business ventures with partners Siegfried Marquardt, the late William Osland, and lawyer Frederick Michael Warren.

But Spencer has consistently challenged crown exhibits and documents as irrelevant, and the affairs of corporations, not the accused individual.

Friday, Hutchison said courts "always look through the corporate veil" in tax matters. Judge E. F. N. Robinson agreed, but said he could not admit any document simply because it was connected with some firm in which Hummel was involved.

Hummel is charged with five counts of income tax violation — one for evasion of taxes on $127,921.98, and four counts of making false statements on tax returns.

Court also heard more testimony from Marquardt on various plans by himself, Hummel, and Osland to raise the $100,000 required to buy out former partner Warren in 1964. Some of these plans involved selling penny shares from various projects to "friends" in order to raise the amount, Marquardt said.

Marquardt did not say Friday whether any such shares had actually been sold.

House Fire Kills Four

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — An early morning fire took the lives of four persons — a mother, two sons and a daughter — and sent four other members of the same family to hospital with undetermined injuries.

Dead are Irene Boyce, about 40, her sons Patrick, 18, and Kelly, 14, and a 10-year-old daughter, Laura.

In hospital are the father, Edward, also about 40, Patrick's twin brother Marshall, a daughter Leslie Shannon, 17, and a son Norman, 16.

'First Sign Of Collapse'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Eleven big city mayors toured New York Wednesday, talking to drug addicts and viewing slums that looked to one of them like "the first tangible sign of the collapse of our entire civilization."

New York Mayor John Lindsay showed the city to the visitors, all of them members of the U.S. conference of mayors' legislative action committee.

New Destroyer Launched

QUEBEC (CP) — The last of four helicopter-carrying destroyers constructed for the Canadian Forces' Maritime Command was launched Friday, Mrs. F. R. Sharp, wife of the chief of defence staff, christened HMCS Algonquin at Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. in suburban Lauzon.

McMorran

Postmaster Pioneer Dies at 82

George McMorran, who served as Cordova Bay postmaster for 40 years, died Friday in Victoria at the age of 82.

McMorran, who retired in 1966, was brought to Saanich district in 1890 when he was one year old and is a pioneer of the area.

He is survived by his wife, Ida; four sons, Bruce, Eric, and Richard of Victoria, and David of North Vancouver; and two sisters, Miss Marguerite McMorran and Mrs. Irene Lloyd of Victoria.

A private service will be held at McCall Brothers chapel with the Rev. J. Travis officiating. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park will follow.

Boat Fund Met

The Percy Brown trust fund, started to raise money to pay for a rescue boat for the Beechey Head area, has gone over the top just five weeks after being set up.

Brown said Friday night that the community had now donated the $4,730 necessary to pay for the 17-foot Respect. The last thrust to carry the fund over the top had included a $500 cheque from the B.C. government, he said.

Brown, owner of the Beecher Bay Marina, borrowed the money necessary to buy the boat after he rescued four persons from Juan de Fuca Strait in a 12-foot runabout March 13. The runabout ended up on the rocks.

He then set up the trust fund and asked the community to contribute to the cost of the rescue boat.

Extra funds will be used to supply the boat with first aid equipment.

City Officials May Don Overalls

The large wooden platform on which the Queen will stand during the city's welcome ceremony in Centennial Square, may have to be set up and taken down by the city engineer himself.

"I'll probably have to help and we may call on the mayor and the aldermen to give us a hand," City Manager Bill Hooson told the Colonist Friday.

The reason: The city's 270 outside workers may be on strike by May 3, the day the Queen arrives in Victoria.

If a last-ditch attempt to hammer out an agreement between city and union negotiators fails next Thursday, May 3 is regarded as a likely target date for a walkout.

Mayor Courtney Haddock didn't hesitate a moment when asked if he would help assemble the platform.

"Of course, I would and so would all members of council. If we have to put on overalls, we'll do that too," he said.

A settlement proposal was accepted by city council Thursday, but the union members voted it down earlier. However provincial mediator Clark Gilmour has persuaded city and union negotiators to meet again next Thursday in an attempt to reach settlement.

The workers, members of Local 50, Canadian Union of Public Employees, served 72-hour strike notice on the city some time ago.

But no strike is legal until the mediation officer has submitted his final report which is expected next Friday.

The city's latest offer is almost identical with contracts accepted by the city's inside staff and by outside workers in Saanich. It would provide for an approximate 15 per cent increase over two years.

Plowing Finals

The provincial plowing finals, sponsored by the Saanich Plowing Association, will start at 10 a.m. today at Doug McHattie farm, Keating Cross Road.

Nine entries have been received for the championship event, seven contestants in the open section, and a number of junior plowmen including teams from North Saanich junior high and Claremont senior high schools.

Teams of horses from Vancouver will be driven by Norm Morrow, and two teams from Ellensburg, Wash., by Norm Stewart. Jay Wright of Saanichton will enter his Clydesdales.

Fun Walk Victor Strolls In

It was a fun affair Friday afternoon as the Fleet School at CFB Esquimalt held its annual four-mile walking race which saw Pte. J. Thompson of the communications school step across the finish line after 41 minutes.

A senior officer said about the only rule in the race is there was to be no running or skipping.

"This is entirely a fun affair and has nothing to do with any attempt at Olympic style. It's just a way of getting everybody out in the sun for a while," he explained.

The 243 competitors wound their way along Colville Road to Tillicum, along Tillicum to Gorge Road, then to Admirals Road and to the finish line at the base.

Case Put Back In Oil Charge

GIBSONS, B.C. (CP) — Hearing of an oil pollution charge against the skipper of a Yugoslav freighter has been adjourned until the ship returns to B.C. later this year.

Josef Utenkar, captain of the Goranka, is charged with illegally discharging bunker oil into the water at Port Mellon last Sunday.

A Department of Transport spokesman said the amount of oil spilled is not known.

It was carried out with the tide before it could be cleaned up.

Provincial Court Judge C. C. Mittlesteadt adjourned the case until the ship returns, probably in October.

Civilization Appeals To Hermit

MARIPOSA, Calif.—After 37 years in a makeshift shack in the Sierra Nevada, the Hermit of Horseshoe Bend has returned to civilization—and finds he likes it.

Pietro Angelo Arata, 88, has improved eyesight, a new pair of glasses, a new home, and regular companionship following more than three decades of lonely isolation in his shack above Lake McClure.

The hermit, nearly blind and in failing health, was found near death Jan. 23 by a serviceman and his girl-friend who hiked in to see him. Arata had wandered away from his cabin several days earlier and was unable to find his way back.

He was taken to a federal hospital in San Francisco, where surgeons removed cataracts from his eyes. Arata has moved into a rest home near here, where he is reported eating well and gaining strength.

"I feel better since I come here," said Arata. He previously had resisted efforts to move him out of his remote cabin, which lacked electricity and running water.

"Sleep and fresh air ... I like the place fine and dandy," he said.

Abandoned Car Found In Kidnapping Hunt

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The search for a kidnapped Milwaukee boy was spread over the middle western United States Friday after a borrowed car that police said figured in his abduction was found near a Des Moines, Iowa, suburb.

Sought in addition to the 10-year-old boy, Anthony P. Caputa, was Michael Siler, 28, named in FBI and state warrants.

Siler's 1960 model Oldsmobile was found here late Wednesday, police said, but he borrowed another car and failed to return it. The borrowed car was found late Thursday beside a highway 11 miles northeast of Des Moines, police said.

Authorities said the boy's brother, Carl, 8, watched helplessly as Anthony was dragged crying and kicking Wednesday into a car by a man whom the younger brother identified as Siler.

New Era or Just a Fad?

By BILL THOMAS

It may not be everybody's bag but the water bed is here to stay and is more than a passing fad, according to a man who operates a water bed store in Victoria.

The sleep innovation has been slow to catch on here so far but the storekeeper, Robert Christie, reports a dozen of the giant plastic bags have been sold in the week his Come Together Water Bed store has been open.

The water bed is simply a large plastic bag of heavy-gauge vinyl that is filled with between 200 and 300 gallons of water. Buyers pay $35 for the basic bag but safety and comfort call for a bed frame, foam rubber topping and a plastic liner just in case a leak develops. The liner usually costs $9, a frame starts at $25 and the foam another $10.

Lynn Hilton insists they're fun

Large Stores

So far, the large stores and furnishing supply houses in Victoria haven't moved into the water bed business.

Christie gets expert advice on the aquatic slumber technique from Randy Villa, 209 Superior. Lynn Hilton, who has an apartment in the same building and her own water bed, endorses all he has to say on the subject.

Villa first tried water beds in California and has been solidly sold ever since.

"You have to be sure you are getting a heavy-gauge bed," says Villa, "and don't be misled that there are bargains."

Cheaper versions of the water bed are made from lighter plastic, and high-pressure sales pitches don't include warnings that a frame and liner are necessary.

The customer can walk out of Christie's store at Fernwood and Gladstone with the beds under his arm. Once home, he sets up the frame and installs the safety liner. A good water bed has a double locking valve that will provide a tight fit for a standard garden hose that's needed to fill the bed.

Filling Time

Filling takes about 90 minutes, depending on the size of the bed.

"Fill up with the hose and add at least a cup of bleach," says Villa, "so that you keep the bacteria out. Then work out the air bubbles through the valve. The first night I recommend filling it about three-quarters full, and then adding more water if it's not firm enough."

A full bed poses a weight problem. The complete installation of a king-size bed scales almost a ton. There have been no problems here yet, but in the U.S. where almost 150,000 have been sold, there have been cases of floors collapsing.

In Low Room

Villa says emptying the bed is no problem if it's installed at ground level or above. "Just put the hose back in and the water will siphon away down a drain."

As he was explaining, another water bed owner, Brian Hoyte, 3342 Henderson, Oak Bay, arrived in the store and said, "I put mine in my basement room so I guess I'll have to pump it out if I want to move it."

He confirmed the experience of other water bed owners saying, "It has become a conversation topic for all my parents' friends. People want to see it and try it out. Now my sister wants one."

Water bed owners are partisan. Hoyte and Miss Hilton says they have never slept as well. Both say the beds are the most comfortable they have ever tried.

Charlotte Burley, 1803 Davie, says the beds are not only comfortable but become social centres. "I go over to Brian's house with friends and we enjoy just sitting in the centre of the bed listening to records. I don't think they are just curios. They are very comfortable and I don't think anyone could get a comparable mattress for the same price."

Miss Hilton won't even try another bed after two months of water bed living. "I even want to eat dinner in mine."

Thick Plastic

The thick plastic will stand up to 500 pounds of pressure per square inch and will resist all normal attack except a direct thrust with a knife or scissors.

Even a burning cigarette won't send the water cascading into the liner. The cool water absorbs the heat until the cigarette burns out.

Christie's water bed store is located close to Victoria high school and just to prove a point, Christie had 13 students crowd on one. There were no leaks or seam stresses.

So far no heaters have been approved for use with water beds and Villa warns against buying some which have come onto the U.S. market.

"I understand," he said, "that the Underwriters Laboratory is testing a heater that could be used with water beds, but it's not on the market yet."

Some American water bed owners have found themselves sloshing in tepid water and melting plastic with the U.S. heaters.

The water bed will soon be available as a giant circular bag, eight feet in diameter, and also in a baby's crib size.

Villa is still skeptical about one tentative client who asked, "Can I put goldfish in my water bed?" But so much has happened to strengthen the mythology of water beds, the question may not be so far out.

Advocates say the beds are therapeutic and rock the sleeper out of tension and fatigue. Conventional mattress dealers say they are a fad.

The receptionist at a large downtown store probably expressed the most common attitude to the trend. When asked if her company sold water beds she replied, "Not yet but I sure wish we did. I'd be our first customer."

Just as an afterthought, Villa produced a small packet of patches to cope with minor leaks. "They just stick on like bicycle inner tube patches," he said.

Low-Income Hassle

'Power Play' Loser Gone

By HUBERT BEYER

A power struggle within the Victoria Low Income Group has resulted in the firing or resignation of the organization's executive secretary.

"I resigned," Reginald Clarkson told the Colonist Friday.

"We fired him," Walter Olszewski, president of the group, said in an interview.

"There was a total loss of confidence in Mr. Clarkson at the poverty level," said Olszewski.

"I have been asked by a large number of welfare mothers to withdraw with them from the Low Income Group — I just couldn't refuse," said Clarkson.

Whether he resigned or was fired, the fact is that Clarkson who was instrumental in founding the Low Income Group in 1967 is no longer with it.

He is now project co-ordinator for a group of women who render house-cleaning services under the name of Welfare Mother's House Cleaning Association.

All women in that group, 26, according to Clarkson, but only eight, according to Olszewski, were formerly members of the House Cleaning Rehabilitation Association administered under the auspices of the Low Income Group.

Olszewski said Clarkson was fired Thursday night after a series of emergency meetings which began Monday morning.

"Tuesday night, Mr. Clarkson asked us if we would allow him to resign. We agreed, but he didn't resign," Olszewski said.

"When we didn't have a written resignation by Thursday night, we fired him. It was a unanimous decision by the executive; there were six members present of the seven-member executive," he said.

Elaine Olszewski, vice-president of the group, said Clarkson had lost the confidence of the group's members.

"He continually opposed executive decisions causing much conflict; he also demanded a salary of $19,500 a year for various programs he outlined to us," she said.

'He has been a dictator'

"He has been a dictator. It has been the same problem in other low income groups in Canada where a former social worker tries to take over."

Mrs. Olszewski said Clarkson didn't receive a salary as executive secretary of the group, but he was paid $850 a month as project co-ordinator of the House Cleaning Rehabilitation Association.

This project, she said, was set up by Ottawa last December as a pilot project to help mothers on welfare earn some extra money, and to help them gain self-confidence. A $10,000 grant was made available by the federal government at that time.

"He tried to make a power play and he lost," she said, referring to Clarkson.

Clarkson also used the word "power play," but he applied it to the president and vice-president of the group, the Olszewskis.

"They wanted to retain total control over the welfare mothers, but the mothers didn't agree with that; they wanted some say in the organization," Clarkson said.

"As far as my being fired is concerned, I don't know about that. I resigned Tuesday . . . it's in the minutes of the meeting," he said.

"No, I didn't get around to writing my resignation; it was verbal," he added.

Clarkson has had a turbulent career in the field of social welfare. In 1964, he was appointed Vancouver Island director of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C.

Last fall he was fired from that position.

Wieners, Beans: It's 'Ungracious'

Victoria city hall officials aren't pleased about the idea of a wiener and beans dinner planned by the Victoria Low Income Group to coincide with the Queen's official reception May 3 in Centennial Square.

Ald. Robert Baird, in charge of preparations for the ceremony, seemed somewhat confused Friday.

"I was told they're going to call it off," he said in an interview.

"Well, that goes to show you; these people are way off to the left; if they go ahead with their beans banquet, they'll prove that they can't be trusted," he said.

"They'll put themselves in a very unfortunate position with city council; they just won't get a thing from them in the future," he added.

Baird called the planned wiener and beans dinner "a most ungracious" idea. The Queen, he said, would be placed in a very embarrassing position.

"She has poverty in her own country, but the poor don't demonstrate their plight to her in such ways," Baird said.

City Manager Bill Hooson told the Colonist the group had not applied for a permit to use Centennial Square on that day. Such a permit, he said, was required for use of the square by organized groups.

In the event the group goes ahead with its plans without a permit, "things will have to be played by ear," Hooson said.

"It could be that the police tell them politely to move out of the square, but I really don't know," he said.

To get the permit, he said, the group must write a letter to the city manager's office which would refer it to Group A committee.

"The committee meets next Thursday, so there's still enough time," Hooson said.

But the Low Income Group has no intention of applying for the permit.

"We'd be refused anyway," said Elaine Olszewski, vice-president of the organization.

"Yes, we will go ahead with our Poor People's Banquet," she said.

"We don't want to embarrass the Queen, but we are her subjects, too, and we believe that the Queen is interested in her subjects who live in poverty."

Sometime during the ceremony, she said, a representative of her group was to give the Queen a bouquet of flowers.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau and NDP leader Tommy Douglas have told members of the group in letters they won't be able to attend the dinner.

Fire Damages City Duplex

Damage was estimated unofficially at between $1,500 and $2,000 Friday after a fire that might have been caused by careless smoking struck the rear section of a duplex at 1363 Walnut.

Victoria police were investigating the theft of a clarinet with one loose key from S. J. Willis junior high school sometime between noon Wednesday and noon Thursday. The clarinet was owned by Mrs. Walter Say, of 3218 Alder, police said Friday.

Central Saanich

Big Turnout For Sewers?

A voter turnout of about 700 for today's Central Saanich $900,000 sewage collection referendum was forecast Friday by a senior municipal official.

He said his prediction was based on the turnout at the advance polls held Thursday and Friday at the municipal hall.

He observed there were 15 votes cast Thursday and Friday, 34 voters had marked their ballots.

"When you consider the full municipality is not going to vote on the referendum the advance polls did very well," he said.

Polling stations for the 935 eligible voters will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. today in Brentwood elementary school and at the municipal hall.

Although there are 2,500 voters on the municipal list only the ratepayers in the affected area — Brentwood, Saanichton, and Turgoose Point — will cast ballots.

The collection system would be part of a $1,935,000 sewage setup that is also to include a trunk line, a secondary treatment plant and a 2,000-foot outfall south of Saanichton Spit.

Only the collection system is being voted on because the rest of the system will be built under the authority of letters patent of the Capital Regional Board, and no referendum will be required.

Influenza Bout Possible Even After Recovery

By JOHN MATTERS

A second type of influenza virus has been found in B.C. and there is a possibility that even persons just recovering from one flu attack may also come down with it.

Dr. A. A. Larsen, provincial epidemiologist, said Friday the B.C. public health laboratory in Vancouver this week identified the Hong Kong virus in samples from persons who came down with the flu on the Lower Mainland.

What is commonly called Hong Kong flu is caused by the Hong Kong variant of the Type A influenza virus. Earlier this month, the laboratory found Type B in blood samples collected from persons in several B.C. centres.

The finding of Type B was a surprise, Larsen said, because public health authorities had expected B.C. would have first been hit by the Hong Kong variant, which was in the province last year and during 1969.

Larsen said there was some immunological overlapping of Type B and the Hong Kong variant of A but he doubted if it would be enough to prevent a second attack in every case.

The epidemiologist said it was a problem of whether there was any antigenic overlap. An antigen is a substance that induces the production of antibodies.

The issue that will be resolved is whether the antibodies in persons who have had Type B flu will remain as a defence against the Hong Kong variant of A, Larsen explained.

Larsen said the Type B outbreak could not be described as an epidemic, although it has hit hard on the Lower Mainland and Greater Victoria. Several deaths have been attributed to it on the Mainland but there are no such findings here.

Larsen said he recently reviewed death certificates that are filed with the provincial health department and observed that the youngest flu victim was 59 years old. The ages ranged up to 96.

The flu outbreak resulted in hospitals restricting visitors but Friday night Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg, executive director of St. Joseph's, said the disease appears to be waning and the visiting ban there will be eased starting today.

For the past week, St. Joseph's has forbidden all visitors except those who have special permission from the hospital. However, starting today it will allow spouses or other next-of-kin — but not both — to visit patients.

Royal Jubilee Hospital has had visitor restrictions that will remain in effect this weekend. The hospital has asked anyone who has had the flu, or who has been in contact with a victim, to stay away.

Mount St. Mary Hospital, an extended care centre, at 999 Burdett, will lift its ban on visitors starting Sunday but still asks persons who are not feeling well to refrain from visiting.

UVic Library Addition Will Cost $2.4 Million

A $2.4 million expansion of the University of Victoria's McPherson Library was announced Friday by UVic's vice-president of administration, J. T. Kyle.

Architects for the project, Siddall, Dennis and Warner, have scheduled construction to begin in December, with completion date set for the summer of 1973.

The existing library was completed in the summer of 1964 and has some 470,000 books, far more than it was designed to hold. As a result book stacks have been extended into study areas and reading space, creating an immediate need for expansion.

Financing of the project has been made possible through the $4 million capital development grant to the new university from the provincial government, for 1971-72.

Motor Breaks Youth's Leg

Scott Beazley, 15, of 2120 Millstream, was reported in good condition Friday in St. Joseph's Hospital after suffering a broken right leg Thursday afternoon in an accident at a friend's home at 2585 Millstream. Colwood RCMP said Beazley and the friend had lifted a motor from a car to clean it and put it on a tripod when it fell off, landing on Beazley's leg.

Don't Lose Any Sleep Over It

Spring forward, fall back.

That's the simple slogan B.C. residents need to remember tonight in order to wake up Sunday morning in time with the season.

This is the weekend B.C. moves from standard time to daylight saving time, and to make the change, clocks should be put ahead one hour before going to bed tonight. The province will revert to standard time Oct. 31.

Persons who forget to make the change could find themselves arriving somewhere as everyone else is leaving.

Wrist Band Confirms Baby Swap

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—When a nurse at City Hospital brought Mrs. Patricia Miner her two-day-old son for his afternoon feeding, Mrs. Miner knew something was wrong.

"The baby they brought me had a scratch on the nose and was red in the face — he hadn't been that way a few hours before," she said Thursday.

"I told the nurse the baby wasn't mine, but she didn't listen. Then I found a name bracelet on the baby's leg that said 'Finch.'"

The nurse then returned and took the baby away. Meanwhile, Mrs. Miner said she was furious.

"I was about to hit the ceiling," she said. "I knew they didn't have my baby and I was about to call the police."

Carl and Alma Finch, meanwhile, were introducing the two-day-old boy they had picked up from City Hospital to their home when the telephone rang.

"Somebody from the hospital called, said there had been a mix-up in the bracelets and asked us to return to the hospital," Finch said. "We had no idea that we had the wrong baby."

Paul Alcott, assistant hospital administrator, said the two babies had minor surgery earlier in the day and inadvertently were placed in wrong cribs afterward. Discharge personnel in the maternity section did not check the wrist bands before permitting Mrs. Finch to leave the hospital, Alcott said.

School Dress Code

'Sad Little Chicks' Anger

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a teacher in a school that has no dress code. This is, please note, not a high school — it is a junior high school.

There are 12 and 13-year-old girls here who wear pants that are so tight I don't see how they sit down. The sweaters on some of the girls fit like paper on the wall. No bras.

Some of the girls wear false eyelashes and paint their eylids green, purple and what-have-you. It looks hideous. I sometimes wonder if they leave the house looking like that and, if so, whether their mothers see them.

I have discussed this with our principal. He said the school authorities can do nothing. It's up to the parents. Apparently, most parents don't care. Will you print this for the benefit of the parents who DO care? Thanks.—St. Louis.

Dear S.L.: Parents who DO care don't need to see this letter. Their 12 and 13-year-olds are not going to school looking like chorus girls. The parents who DON'T care are unreachable.

The best hope for these sad little chicks is to be set straight by the girls in their classes who want to help them.

Dear Ann Landers: Please educate parents who insist on butting into their children's arguments instead of letting kids settle things in their own way.

I grew up in a tough neighborhood where we all fought our own battles. Nobody's Pa or Ma got into the act. We are raising our children the same way.

Everything was fine until this new family moved on our block. They have telephoned every parent on this street to tattle. Last week the father was over here and my husband told him to get lost. He invited my husband out in the alley. My husband told him in plain language where to go and what he could do when he got there.

Please print this letter for ALL parents to see. You might be able to get through since you have no ox to gore. Thanks.—Trouble in New Orleans.

Dear Trouble: Wise parents stay out of their children's fights. Kids must learn how to handle their own problems. If Mom and Dad intercede, the kids are denied valuable learning experiences.

Most kid problems blow over and the next day all is forgotten. But when parents get into the act, the trouble gets blown out of proportion.

I am glad you wrote. It gave me an opportunity to say something that needed to be said.

False Alarms Death Factor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A mother of four died in her burning home Thursday as firemen were delayed by three false alarms turned in within 15 minutes before the fire was discovered.

Georgana Hill, 29, died of smoke inhalation as she struggled from a rear bedroom to the dining room where she collapsed.

Edward Wilson, battalion fire chief, said the false alarms were as responsible as the smoke for Mrs. Hill's death.

Indian Crafts Sale Thursday

A sale of Indian arts and crafts will be held by the Homemaker's Social Group from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday in the Douglas Room of The Bay as part of a festival of bazaars.

The Homemaker's Social Group, a small organization, newly formed in Victoria, and composed of Indian women is centred at 503 Government. Its function is to assist Indian families strange to the city, to provide transportation if needed, refer special problems, visit the elderly and lonely Indian people and to generally orient the people to city ways.

The work of artist Tim Maxwell, carver Calvin Hunt, and bead worker Violet Clark will be available at the stall and proceeds from the sale of all arts and crafts will go directly to the craftsmen themselves.

Union Full

Stan Mooney, district manager of Air Canada gave a party at the Union Club Wednesday evening for staffers Duncan Laing, western vice-president, William Garoen, manager, British Columbia, and Walter Koerner, director, all from Vancouver.

Lieutenant-governor John Nicholson was there.

It was a good party. I think every manager of every major business, bank and trust company was there. Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford, Ida Clarkson and myself were the only members of the distaff side and Frances had to leave early to go on to another party at Naden.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock was also present. Met Bert Kennedy, manager of Richardson's and we had quite a talk on what we were going to do on retirement. What brought this about was that he had had a bout of the awful flu that is going around. After being at home a week or so his wife had suggested that he never retire.

Waldo Skillings is very proud that he has quit smoking. More than two months now. I asked him how he did it. "Are you mercenary, Dorothy?" he asked. A Lovelier You

Short

By MARY SUE MILLER

Have you ever been on an early morning bus and had a long mop of musty hair flick across your senses? Most everyone has, including girls with long mops. It's a pretty chilling experience, to say the least.

For special acceptability long hair must be spanking clean and brushed (with a clean brush) to a high gloss. But, you may think, what if your head is too weak and fine for the wear-and-tear of constant shampooing and brushing?

Well, in that fix, hair should be worn fairly short — no longer than the shoulder

Sporting a lovely dark tan, Marg Naysmith is just back from two weeks in Hawaii. Marg who takes two tours for Marwon Travel to Hawaii — one at Easter and the other during Aloha Week in October — says she ran into the best weather ever this year.

"It was just glorious every day — the temperature anywhere from 80 to 84.

"Waikiki is even nicer now that a breakwater has been built out from the edge of the Reef Hotel on the army fort side," says Marg. This has brought about 15 more feet of sand onto what was a narrow strip of beach.

Asked if she did anything spectacular in the sunny isles, Marge thought for a moment and then said, "I met Pat Boone when he was putting on a show in the band-sheil."

In less than two weeks Marg and husband Scotty are leaving on a month's trip to Europe.

They will go to Spain, arriving in Madrid, from where they will take an orientation tour of the country so that Marg will be able to take tours there. They will also be in Morocco before going to the British Isles. Scotty Naysmith, who was born in Edinburgh and left when he was seven years old, hasn't been back since. So Edinburgh is on the agenda — so is Wales, where Marg's mother came from.

Percy Went Hog-Wild

SCUNTHORPE, England (CP) — Percy the pig felt lovesick. So he chased two sows down a main road and started a scare among drivers. But as the 20-mile-an-hour road hog overtook cars on the love trail, Lincolnshire police booked him after complaints of "bad driving" from motorists. Percy and his girlfriends were escorted back to the farmyard.

Spotting Crime Job Of Spies

HERTFORD, England (CP) — Social workers are to be stationed at Hertfordshire's 75 primary schools — to spot potential criminals. Magistrate Leonard Poyser, who proposed the scheme, reckons that a would-be delinquent can be spotted at the age of five. He hopes that such children can be helped before it is too late.

Girl-Watching Ban Fires Up Firemen

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (UPI) — Firemen, supported by their picketing wives, Friday met with the police and the fire commission to protest Mayor Phil Rahoi's order to stop them from girl watching in front of the fire hall.

Rahoi last week charged that the firemen have been "harrassing" women as they walked by. He ordered them to stop sitting in front of the station and to move their chairs inside.

A dozen wives showed their support for their firemen-husbands by picketing the city hall, where the firefighters were meeting with city commission and state labor mediator Walter Quillico.

Centre Shows Latest In Plumbing, Heating

Something new has come to Victoria. Waldo Skillings, minister of industrial development, trade and commerce, officially opened the new Plumbing and Heating Planning Centre at 614 Johnson Friday night.

The centre is a joint management and labor project aimed at giving public service. All the latest designs for new and renovated bathrooms and kitchens are available to the public and all personnel are fully informed and are ready to help with advice.

There are samples and pictures of all that is new for these rooms and related areas and the public is invited to use the service to save both money, time, and headaches.

There is no big sales pitch as it is not a profit making business, although all top quality brand fixtures are on display.

A Bath Bazaar in the building does have items for sale at retail prices. In the bazaar are exclusive domestic and imported accessories for the bathroom, such as fancy towels, racks, and soapdishes.

Shower curtains of see-through vinyl come in a number of fancy designs. Taffeta shower curtains come in a variety of colors but these should have an inside shorter, weighted plastic curtain.

E. H. (Mac) McCaffery, manager of the centre in Vancouver will keep an eye on the centre here until it is well established. The Vancouver centre has been highly successful, he says, but the eyes of the rest of Canada will be watching to see how it goes over here, as Victoria is a much smaller city.

The centre will open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday until Friday and to 5 p.m. Saturday. Wednesday evenings are Red Carpet nights when womens' clubs and other groups are shown what the centre has to offer.

Alex Rawlings, chairman of the Mechanical Trade Pipe Fitters of America, Local 324, will be there days and Percy Owen in the evenings. Rawlings says it is amazing how many new things are coming on the market. He mentioned particularly the cultured marble which has a synthetic resin base and the textured plastic laminated counter tops.

Carol Shoji of the Vancouver centre will come over to help for awhile although Victoria's head designer is Karen Jorgensen. Kathy Runer is hostess.

Mind Blamed

Heartbreak Brings Ills

WINNIPEG (CP) — People who have suffered the "broken heart" of an emotional trauma have increased their susceptibility to heart disease because physical ailments are often products of the mind, a California human relations consultant says.

Dr. William Shutz told a meeting this week of the National Council of Human Relations the suffering of a "broken heart" constricts the muscles around the heart and cuts blood circulation.

But if a person "opens his heart," the muscles and blood vessels relax and the blood circulates more freely.

Shutz, a psychologist with the Esalen Institute at Big Sur, said other physical ailments, including cancer and the common cold, are also products of the mind. Causes and often cures can be found in the intellect and emotions.

A whole new understanding of the relationship between body and mind is being uncovered as a result of recent developments in the field of human relations, he said.

Things that occur mentally or emotionally are usually reflected by physical characteristics.

A Lovelier You

Short Hair on Target

By MARY SUE MILLER

Have you ever been on an early morning bus and had a long mop of musty hair flick across your senses? Most everyone has, including girls with long mops. It's a pretty chilling experience, to say the least.

For social acceptability, long hair must be spanking clean and brushed (with a clean brush) to a high gloss. But, you may think, what if a head is too weak and fine for the wear-and-tear of constant shampooing and brushing?

Well, in that fix, hair should be worn fairly short — not longer than the shoulders. Don't groan, there's no penalty involved. Shorter hair is right on target. Paris mannequins wear short locks, even with their short-short pants.

Once cut, fine hair usually accumulates less oil and grime. A weekly shampoo might prove sufficient. A most beneficial kind of suds to use is a basic texturizing shampoo with protein. The combination makes the hair seem thicker and improves texture. For full results, lather up twice and wait four minutes before rinsing out second sudsing.

As for brushing, once daily suffices to fluff and air fine tresses. A medium soft bristle brush is indicated. For increased circulation in the scalp and its benefits, bend from the waist when brushing, dangle your head and gently stroke from hairline to ends. There is no promise that for the doing hair will grow coarser. Only stronger, and that's good.

Home Unity Sought

An appeal has been issued to all member churches of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches to support the newly-formed Victoria Churches' Group Homes Association.

The association plans to establish a group home for disturbed children up to 19 years of age and primarily of Indian origin.

The association was formed as the result of work done by a steering committee of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches, appointed in April, 1970, at the suggestion of the Family and Children's Service, which will be a partner in the creation and operation of the home.

Purpose of the home is to provide specialized care for children who, because of emotional problems or delinquent tendencies, have alienated themselves from society, and to help these children in getting back into the mainstream of life.

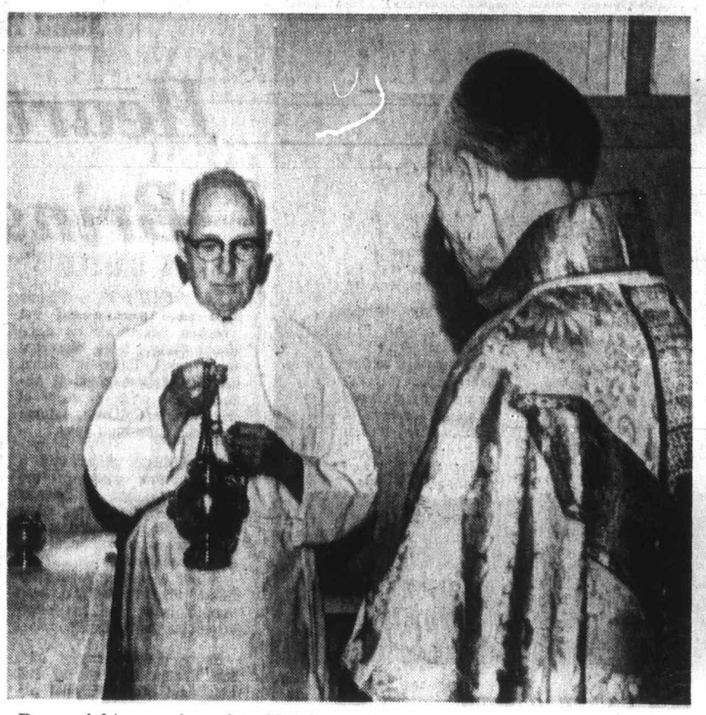

A minimum of six and a maximum of 10 children, in addition to two Indian house parents, will be accommodated, depending upon the success of the appeal.

Canon Hilary Butler, association chairman, said a specific need has been determined and accepted and preliminary negotiations have begun to obtain a suitable property. Target date for opening of the home is Aug. 1, he added.

One-third of the capital cost will be paid by the provincial government when the association has raised 10 per cent, Butler said, with the balance to be financed by a mortgage to be paid by the Family and Children's Service.

The amount needed now is at least $15,000 for the purchase of a house, furnishings and renovations.

Contributions are being received by Patrick Willan, 3050 Beach Drive.

Display to Explain Altar Significance

Chasubles and thuribles, ancient and modern chalices and other communion vessels will be on display in St. Barnabas Anglican Church and hall, Belmont and Begbie, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

"We are trying not to just explain why these things are used but also what relevance they have to Christian life," said Canon Brian Page, the church's rector, this week.

"We want to show that worship has something to do with the way we live. These are not just fancy games we play at church. They have real meaning and relevance to our lives as we live them day by day."

The display, titled Focus on the Altar, will feature, among other itesm, embroidery and a pictorial presentation of the whole course of the Christian year from Advent to Trinity, concluding with the commemorations of All Saints' tide.

Members of the altar and service guilds will demonstrate the preparation of the altar and of the ministers for services. Processions will be held and the various details of the servers' work in the sanctuary will be explained.

During the tea interval there will be a recording of the consecration prayers from six modern liturgies.

The demonstration will end with the celebration of the solemn Evensong of St. Mark.

A chasuble is a sleeveless vestment worn in the celebration of the eucharist. A thurible is a vessel used for burning incense.

United Church's Naramata Centre

Regional Workshop Planned

Top church musicians from Canada and the U.S. will gather at a regional workshop and seminar the first week in August at the United Church's Naramata Centre for Continuing Education.

The centre, which is operated on a completely non-denominational basis, is located nine miles from Penticton. Each summer, as many as 1,500 persons spend part of their holidays there working on study programs.

The August workshop is being arranged by the Choristers' Guild and will be the first such event in Canada and only one of two in North America.

The centre has just published its brochure for this summer, which is available in most Vancouver Island United Churches or direct from the centre.

As in past years the list of topics covers a wide range of church and community concerns, serving at many points to draw the two together. There is, as usual, a strong emphasis on family participation with special programs for children, youth and adults.

Two special weeks for youth are scheduled, one at the beginning and one at the end of summer. During these weeks young people of senior high school age will meet those who give leadership in local communities and together work out a program for the week.

Two weeks in the middle of the summer — July 17 to 24 and July 24 to 31 — will deal in a new way with concerns of people in congregations.

The first of these — Celebration — will feature Dr. Dan Kennedy of Goleta, Calif., one of the leaders in new forms of church life and expression. Working also during this week will be Mrs. Kay Crowe, family life consultant from Montreal: Rev. Don Buteyn of Seattle and Rev. Charles Rarnont of North Vancouver.

Second in this series — Education for Living— will be led by Ivan Cumming, director of Naramata Centre. Kennedy and Buteyn will continue through this week.

Creaitve Arts and Changing Life Styles is the theme for the week of July 10 to 17. Darryl Auten, of the centre staff, will give leadership in examining the creative process and how this can affect life styles. He will co-ordinate a program in which participants will engage in creative activities such as drama, painting, reading, batik, pottery, creative dancing and folk music.

The annual event which provides training and practice opportunities for church school and mid-week group leaders, from July 3 to 10, will include along with the usual items a special workshop on Instroteach. This is a recent educational development which gives teachers and supervisors an accurate measure of their methods and performance. It is finding wide acceptance in both religious and secular educational circles. The workshop will be conducted by Miss Helen Tetley of Toronto.

Your World and Welcome to It is the theme for Aug. 7 to 14. Dr. William Hordern, president of the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Saskatoon will help participants take a look at the world from a theological point of view.

Dr. Morley Tuttle, a physician from Calgary, will lead a group on Biology and Belief; Dr. Harold Skolrood, of the faculty of education at University of Lethbridge, will deal with educational concerns; Dennis Cocke, MLA for New Westminster, B.C., will lead in studying political concerns, and Rev. T. L. Tucker, Africa secretary of the National Council of Churches, will bring a Focus on Africa.

Meditator Joins Church's Hour

An authority on Zen Buddhism and a discussion panel will share the hour-long telecast by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches at 9:30 p.m. Monday on Channel 10.

Guest on Connections, the first half-hour of the program, will be Paul Reps, an American who makes his home in Honolulu when he is not wandering in some remote corner of the world.

Reps received acclaim in 1957 when he compiled several books on Zen Buddhism. Described as a practical mystic and a poet, he is said to advocate Western-oriented meditation.

He will be interviewed by Ann Logie, assistant director of the program.

Heading up the discussion on Journey in Faith at 10 p.m. will be the show's producer, Rev. Gordon Walker, minister of St. David-by-the-Sea Anglican Church, who has conducted similar programs on radio and television in Winnipeg on both CBC and private networks.

Panelists will be Ann Purdon, a young mother; Mabel Sadler, grandmother and churchwoman, and Rev. Norman Archer, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Swank Cars Out for Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Roman Catholic cardinals and other prelates who license their automobiles in Vatican City have been asked not to use ostentatious models, Vatican sources said this week.

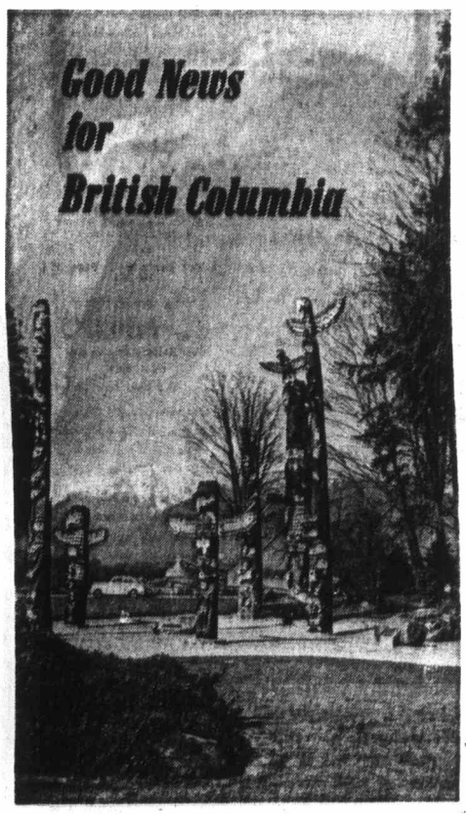

A number of prelates already have traded in their luxury Mercedes-Benz sedans for cheaper Italian-made models as a result of the "request," the sources said.

They added the word apparently came "from the top" — meaning from Pope Paul or his Secretary of State, Cardinal Jean Villot — but was passed on by Cardinal Sergio Guerri, acting president of the pontifical commission which runs Vatican City.

The Pope is usually driven in a black Mercedes with a removable roof. He has several other automobiles in a garage underneath the Vatican gardens, most of them given by Roman Catholic groups.

The Pope said last June 24 the church should not only be poor but should be seen to be poor. "There is ... the desire, almost the need, to see the poverty of the gospel," he said.

Cardinals living in Rome receive a monthly salary of about $1,056 along with a free or low-rent apartment in many cases.

Fish Two Program Designed to Unite Christian Witnesses

Fish Two is the title of a summer program to be sponsored by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. It begins with eight days of activities at Pioneer Pacific Camp on Thetis Island, starting Friday, April 30.

The time at Pioneer Pacific will be taken up with workshops devoted to Bible study and communication, instruction in doctrinal and Biblical subjects, discussions on the practical Christian community and a certain amount of physical labor.

After the camp, the program will continue in Vancouver where participants will have the opportunity of working on Christian-oriented projects such as coffee houses and educational camps.

Last year 21 students shared in a similar experiment sponsored by IVCF, under the name Month of the Fish; hence the name Fish Two for this year's program.

Tony Quon, of the University of Victoria branch of the fellowship, said it was hoped a group of students would volunteer to give May and June "to the development of their ministry."

He said the aim of the fellowship was to unite men and women who, in university life, earnestly desire to extend Christ's kingdom at home and abroad.

The guiding objectives and principles, he said, are:

- To witness to the Lord Jesus Christ as God incarnate, and to seek to lead others to a personal faith in Him as Saviour.
- To deepen and strengthen the spiritual life of students and others by the study of the Bible, prayer and Christian fellowship.
- To emphasize the essential duty and privilege of every Christian to take a definite interest and share in world-wide missions—to give, pray and serve where God directs.

Further information on Fish Two is available from Quon at 385-6935 or from Ed Field at 477-4324.

Profit Behind Sex, Drugs

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean Cardinal Danielou of France says the Roman Catholic Church should not make concessions "to those modern tendencies which are leading to the decomposition of our society."

Drugs, eroticism and excessive sexuality, he told a news conference Wednesday, are really only manifestations of profiteering.

Group Aims to Place Bible in Every Home

The Centennial '71 project of the Canadian Bible Society is the distribution — free of charge — to each household in the province — of a copy of Mark's gospel with the title Good News for British Columbia.

It is estimated that there are 500,000 households in B.C. The cost of these gospels will be $20,000.

In Greater Victoria the distribution of 70,000 copies of the gospel is being arranged by a committee, consisting of two members of the Victoria branch of the Bible Society, the Evangelical Pastors' Fellowship and the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Churches, groups and individuals are being asked to share in the cost of the booklets.

Donations may be sent to Charles Ellington, 608 Yates — marked for B.C. Centennial Mark Project.

The Bible Society reports that English language copies of the New Testament in paperback have outsold all other paperbacks including Valley of the Dolls and Rosemary's Baby.

Cult Find

By CHARLES HILLINGER
(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

APPLEGATE, Calif. — William Corecco, 89, is president of the most exclusive religious cult in America. Only he and his 91-year-old brother Steven are members.

"We knew the membership would be limited but never expected it to be as small as this," said the president.

The prime requisite for joining the century-old Esoteric Fraternity is "absolute abstinence from sexual activity."

Corecco said that in its nearly 100 years of existence the fraternity "has had at most no more than two dozen members. Very few have been willing to make the sacrifice."

Last Female

Last month Corecco and his brother buried the last surviving female member, Luvenia Sublette, 83.

Fraternity headquarters is a four-storey, 19th-century aerie at the end of a dirt road that winds up a 360-acre heavily wooden hill owned by the cult.

"To join," the octogenarian explained during an interview in the headquarters' library, "it is necessary not only to live a life of a celibate, but also to give all of your money and worldly possessions to the fraternity. My brother and I are terribly disappointed there are not more members."

The Esoterics believed they were to be the order of Melchisedek as prophesied in revelations in the Bible.

As he talked, William Corecco, fourth president and 70 years an Esoteric, swayed back and forth in a creaky old rocker beside a potbellied stove that warmed the musty library.

Their Hope

"The Bible says when 144,000 persons establish the Order of Melchisedek, the Kingdom of God will be established on Earth. That was our hope . . ."

Founding president and author of several books describing the sect's peculiar philosophy was Hiram Erastus Butler, who died in 1916 and is buried outside the library window.

"Hiram Butler was a Pennsylvanian," said Corecco, "a simple, self-educated man who worked in a sawmill.

"He lost several fingers in a mill accident and became a hermit. For 14 years he lived in seclusion, never speaking to another person.

Had Revelations

"It was during this period of his life he received several revelations from God."

Butler revealed his revelations in a series of lectures in Boston. In 1889, the bearded mystic and a dozen followers — all single men and single women — pooled their resources and moved to the West Coast.

Here they homesteaded the lonely hill overlooking the American River. They built the 18-room headquarters building and living quarters from timber cut on their land and made the furniture still used in the square yellow building on top of the hill.

They raised crops. They tended a small herd of stock. They meditated. And they printed philosophical and religious books in their own publishing house at the bottom of the hill.

Mail Pours In

Although its membership is down to two very old men, mail continues to pour into Applegate (population 300) addressed to the Esoteric Fraternity, reports the local postmaster.

And William Corecco keeps busy filling orders for the 19 books and pamphlets published by the cult throughout its long history. His brother has been ailing in recent years.

One publication, Practical Methods To Insure Success, written by Butler in 1893, a pamphlet selling $1, is in its 45th printing.

"Esoteric publications are sold in bookstores across the nation, in England, France, Italy and Germany. We have German and Italian-language editions."

Central Theme

Throughout all 19 publications, there is one central theme — to believe in and accept God, one must live the life of a celibate.

Corecco said this would not result in no people left on Earth.

"Of course there would be no more children," he said. "But there would be no more sickness. No more disease. No more death if man gave up sexual activity.

"When man gives up the sex act, the Kingdom of God will be established on Earth. When that happens we all become sons of God."

He said an Esoteric Fraternity existed among the Jews, years before the birth of Christ.

"But it was lost. It was restored by Christ, but lost again by the Christians.

"That is precisely what we have been attempting in our group. We believe we were the chosen ones, that this time the Order of Melchisedek would finally be achieved . . . that we, the true believers, would inherit and rule the Earth for all eternity.

"Esoteric teachings," he went on, "are interpretations of the true meaning of the Bible.

"The Bible gives us to understand unless a man retains his seed— his substance of procreation and does not cast it forth as do other animals of the Earth, he cannot achieve the more refined life, the Holy Spirit.

"Christ's purpose concerning man is not that he should spend his existence in endlessly reproducing his kind."

The cult preaches reincarnation.

"We've all lived on Earth hundreds of times before. The population of the world," Corecco maintains, "remains constant. Souls that leave at death reappear in the newborn."

Stand on Celibacy To Precede Synod

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian bishops will announce their position on priestly celibacy before the Synod of Bishops meets in Rome next September, Msgr. Joseph-Aurele Plourde, president of the Canadian Catholic Conference, said Thursday.

Msgr. Plourde told a news conference that while recent consultations with nearly all Canada's priests have not produced a definite stand, it is urgent that bishops decide whether or not priests should marry or married men be ordained.

Bishops from across Canada meeting here this week have also discussed the possibility of granting absolution to groups "in certain circumstances" and the problems of university chaplains.

While he could give no details of how large numbers of people at religious ceremonies, such as Christmas and Easter mass confessions, would be absolved, Msgr. Plourde said it would definitely not change the sacrament as such.

Absolution now is granted only to individuals privately after confession, though a form of general absolution is given to soldiers, he said.

Most Rev. Philip Pocock, archbishop of Toronto, told reporters that university chaplains are concerned about their role at institutions "in crisis" where "new social and political schemes take shape without any reference to Christian values."

The chaplains told the meeting of bishops they wanted a more ecumenical approach to their work.

Pope Seeking Priests, Nuns

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul has made an impassioned appeal for more young persons to serve as priests and nuns at a time of sharply declining vocations throughout the world, the Vatican announced this week.

The 3,000-word appeal was written for the World Day of Vocations, which the Roman Catholic church marks May 2.

Divorced Get Church Boost

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — The recommendation by an Anglican commission that divorced persons should be allowed to remarry in church receives a generally favorable reaction today from a significant segment of the British press.

But The Daily Telegraph says in an editorial that there should be no blurring of what it calls "the principle of lifelong union."

"A wedding is a public matter, an occasion on which the church should state its doctrine of marriage," The Telegraph says.

"It is this vital function which the commission report dangerously under-rates."

The Times, in its reaction to the report filed with the Archbishop of Canterbury, says the Anglican Church should determine to act in a more radical way than that set out by the commission.

The group's recommendations suggest that any remarriage ceremony should be preceded by a "discreet but adequate inquiry" about the background and intentions of the partners in such cases.

The Times says the church should "as a general rule be prepared to marry those who seek its blessings as they set out on a personal course that is no less hazardous because they are attempting it for the second time."

"Those who do not take marriage seriously at all are comparatively unlikely to want to go to church for their second or subsequent wedding," The Times adds.

The Guardian offers a similar view, saying evidence shows "a second marriage may be a successful one and rich in spiritual fulfilment."

"The archbishop's commission detects a growing moral consensus in favor of remarriage in church and sees no theological objection," the paper says.

Church Chronicle

Sermon Series Plan Advances Sunday

The third in a series of ecumenical sermons will be given at 11 a.m. Sunday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The speaker will be C. E. Horwood, chairman of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada. Other speakers in the series have been Anglican Bishop Roy Gartrell and Msgr. Michael O'Connell of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral.

□

A missionary with the Sudan Interior Mission in Nigeria — Mary Johnson — will give an illustrated talk on her work at 7 p.m. Sunday in the First Church of the Nazarene, 2563 Quadra. A graduate of Prairie Bible Institute, Three Hills, Alta., Miss Johnson first went to Nigeria in 1947 and will return there in June where she will continue to teach in a Bible school. She is visiting her sister, Mrs. Margaret Hannay, 1322 Hillside.

□

The Greater Victoria Citizens' Counselling Centre will hold its annual meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Room 103 of the Metropolitan United Church Annex. All those interested are invited to attend.

□

Doris Baker, who is in Victoria on furlough from the leprosy mission hospital in West India, will give an illustrated talk on her work at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the lower hall of St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra and Mason.

□

Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall will be the scene of a buffet luncheon and bridge at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday, arranged by the Victoria Multiple Sclerosis Golden Key Auxiliary. Lunch only is $1; lunch and bridge, $1.50. All proceeds go for patient aid.

□

Mary Poaps of the Binder Amazonia Hospital Foundation will present a film and talk on the foundation's work in Peru, at 10 a.m. Thursday in the assembly room of Metropolitan United Church, off Quadra Street. The foundation is based in Etobicoke, Ont.

□

The annual art auction of the Unitarian Church of Victoria will be held at the church, 106 Superior Street, on May 1. Art will be on display from 2 p.m. and the auction will begin at 8 p.m.

□

The Church's Ministry of Healing will be the subject of a talk by Rev. H. C. M. Taudin-Chabot, at 2 p.m. Thursday in the lower hall of St. John's Anglican Church, Quadra and Mason.

Taudin-Chabot is rector of St. Chad's Anglican Church, Vancouver, and president of the B.C. Council of the Canadian Guild of Health. The Victoria branch of the guild has arranged for his appearance here.

The guild, an inter-denominational organization within the church, is endeavoring, by study and teaching, to further the ministry of healing in the church.

□

Opportunities for progress will be emphasized at 9:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday in First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever," states one of the scriptural verses in the lesson-sermon on Probation After Death.

This citation from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy will also be read: "Progress takes off human shackles. The finite must yield to the infinite. Advancing to a higher plane of action, thought rises from the material sense to the spiritual, from the scholastic to the inspirational, and from the mortal to the immortal."

Reformists To Stage Convention

About 350 members are expected to attend a one-day convention of the Ladies Societies of the Christian Reformed Churches of Southwestern British Columbia Wednesday in the Christian Reformed Church at 661 Agnes in Saanich.

The convention will lost from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many relatives and friends for their help, comfort and sympathy and many acts of kindness in the loss of our dear husband and father. Special thanks to Dr. Lamplugh and the nurses and staff of St. Joseph's Hospital for their unfailing care.—Mrs. George B. Dixon, Marjorie and Helen.

9 IN MEMORIAM

McLAUGHLIN — In loving memory of "Paddy," William Thomas McLaughlin, my dearly beloved husband, who departed this life April 22, 1969.

"Each dawn when I awake
I see thy strong and smiling face,
And you assure me of —
That Elysian Place
Almighty God, my thanks
To Thee I give each day —
For Thy Gift of a dear
And precious Husband —
Who led me along Thy Way."
—With everlasting love, Dorothy Jean.

SZEGEDI — In loving memory of Frank and Liv, who passed away April 24, 1969.

Nothing but memories as we journey on.
Longing for a smile from loved ones gone;
None knows the depths of our deep regret.
But we remember when others forget.
—Always remembered by your six children.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

There are certain kinds of indiscretion that inexperienced declarers commit and experienced declarers don't, and one is that of tackling the trump suit too early.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 ♡
3 ♠	4 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead: Queen of spades.

Consider this deal where South ruffed the second spade, dislodged the ace of trumps, ruffed the spade return and played a second trump.

With trumps 4-1, South found himself out of business. He needed all his remaining trumps to draw East's with, and he had yet to establish the clubs. No matter how he proceeded, he could not prevent the defenders obtaining a setting trick in the shape of either a long spade — if he drew trumps — or a trump (if he didn't draw trumps).

Once you've encountered this situation a few times, you soon learn there are better ways of handling it. Let's return to the scene of the crime.

Quite clearly South has little chance of making the contract unless the opponents' clubs are 3-2. Therefore, after ruffing a spade at trick two, it costs nothing to play off the A-K-x of clubs before tackling trumps.

This makes quite a difference. It the opponents return anything but a trump, South wins and proceeds to ruff two winning clubs, making the hand regardless of how the trumps break and regardless of whether East overruffs or not.

If the opponents return a trump when in with their club trick, South can draw trumps and cash the established clubs. Either way, he makes the contract.

LAKE HILL-REYNOLDS PARK
4 BEDROOMS, $27,900

There are always a lot of people who have been looking and waiting for a home just like this one—So make sure you act quickly! The area, of course, is excellent; it is one of quality homes and is very handy to schools, shopping and transportation. This attractive and very charming 1½ storey full basement home is "settled in" on beautifully treed grounds, with a really lovely, completely fenced rear yard. The large living room with fireplace is very very comfortable and there is a guest sized separate dining room. This fine house has been well maintained and extensively renovated, including a brand new kitchen and handsome white stucco exterior. There's even an underground sprinkler system to keep those tree-shaded lawns green and lush. For further information and to view call

WHERE DO I START??

It's GORDON HEAD and has SWEEPING SEA, MOUNTAIN AND VALLEY VIEWS—But, when everything about this fine, 3 level and basement, family home is SO TERRIFIC, where do I start? The impressive slate entry, perhaps — with high, beamed cathedral ceiling extending through the huge 17½x24 ft. family room. A winding stairway leads to the living room, a beautiful and practical kitchen, a large dining room and a tremendous sun deck over the double carport. This is a quality home of unique design, making it both extremely appealing and interesting. 3 bedrooms, 2 vanity bathrooms and separate utility room plumbed and wired for washer and dryer round out 1875 sq. ft. of modern living space. It's a lot of home! The asking price is $37,900 and you should see it right away!!

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICH
Sale of Municipal Land

Sealed tenders, clearly identified as "Tenders for Service Station Site" will be received by the Lands Commissioner, Municipal Hall, 770 Vernon Avenue, Victoria, B.C., up to 2:00 P.M., FRIDAY, 28th of May, 1971 for the purchase of Lot 1, Section 72, Victoria District, Plan 24108, situated at the intersection of Gordon Head Road and McKenzie Avenue.

This property containing approximately .39 of an acre, is zoned for service station use and is located in an area calling for servicing to a high standard. Particulars regarding the Municipal requirements in any proposed development of this site may be obtained from the Planning Department.

All offers must be accompanied by a certified deposit cheque in the amount of 10% of the offered price.

The highest or any offer will not necessarily be accepted.

F. E. HARRIS,
Lands Commissioner.

FISHERIES RESEARCH BOARD OF CANADA
VANCOUVER LABORATORY, VANCOUVER, B.C.
CHARTER
Collection, Chilling and Freezing of Groundfish and Salmon in Coastal Waters

The Fisheries Research Board of Canada will charter a vessel to collect groundfish and salmon in coastal waters. Preference will be given to vessels which can be equipped for fishing long line.

The vessel, which should be approximately 70 feet in length, will be required for the following period:

(1) June 2 to July 28, 1971, inclusive.

The Board is anxious to make the best possible selection of vessels for these operations and invites all interested parties to apply.

For detailed information and charter forms, please write to:

The Executive Assistant,
Fisheries Research Board of Canada,
Vancouver Laboratory,
6640 N.W. Marine Drive,
Vancouver 8, B.C.

Bids will be received not later than May 7, 1971. The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Dayliner

Higher Fares Protested By Mayors

Several Vancouver Island mayors are opposed to an application by CP Rail to increase passenger fares on the E & N dayliner from Victoria to Courtenay, they said Friday night.

The railway announced earlier Friday in Ottawa it had filed a new tariff with the Canadian Transport Commission asking for increases in passenger fares on various inter-city train services, including the E & N.

The announcement said the new fare levels averaged 11 per cent increase and would go into effect June 1.

Courtenay Mayor George Hobson, Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock and Parksville Mayor Ray Young told the Colonist they were opposed to any increase in the rail fares. Hobson and Young said their councils would probably formally protest the increase.

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife said that, while he did not like the increases, he felt they were "not unjustified" and the public would probably have to accept such increases if the E & N was to keep operating.

N. D. Whittet, E & N vice-president, said he knew nothing of the proposed fare increases and was not even aware CPR had applied for them.

Haddock said he felt the fare between Victoria and Courtenay on the dayliner was "already too much" and a further increase would be "just ridiculous."

He suggested that, instead of increasing fares, E & N should reduce them which would probably increase the amount of traffic on the trains.

Young said that fares were already "very high" for Parksville residents to travel to Victoria and should not be raised further.

Hobson said Courtenay would probably oppose the increase on "general principles", particularly the fact that, even though CP Rail might lose some money on the dayliner, it more than made up for it with profits gained from timber and mineral rights.

Quaife said he felt the fare increases to be much better than shutting the E & N down altogether, which, he added, might be the case if fares remained at their present level.

Two Spot's back to work

Old Two Spot Chuffs Along Museum Rail

DUNCAN — Old Two Spot is steaming, puffing and running again. However, instead of pulling a logging train she is working as a show-piece at Granger Taylor's Sleepy Hollow Museum, near Duncan, where her range is limited to a short piece of track.

The old locomotive was built in 1910 by Climax Locomotive Works at Corry, Pennsylvania. Her colorful career as a logging locomotive on Vancouver Island came to an end during the Second World War.

Granger moved the engine from bushland behind Deerholme to his father's property on Inverarity Road.

That was almost two years ago. Now, Two Spot has come to life again after Granger spent countless hours restoring the locomotive.

He said he had to rebuilt part of the engine, boiler, cabin and undercarriage.

Granger said that Two Spot would form part of his museum which will also feature a small logging train, a self-propelled steam crane and steam yarding machine.

Minimum Wage Hikes Watched

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial labor ministers have agreed to conduct detailed studies of what happens to employers and employees when minimum wage levels are increased.

The homework assignment — "the social and economic significance of the minimum wage" — resulted from a two-day federal - provincial conference of labor ministers which ended Friday.

At a news conference, federal Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said the ministers had reviewed minimum wage levels across Canada and examined some of the factors to be considered when minimum rates are being set.

The matter is of concern because legislation now in the Commons would empower the cabinet to raise the federal rate at its own discretion.

Among the specific proposals Mackasey put forward is the possibility of an automatic increase of 3 per cent a year to make up for increases in the cost of living.

The federal minimum wage is to rise July 1 to $1.75 from $1.65.

J. R. Chabot, newly-appointed labor minister in B.C., said that at the next round of talks in Quebec later this year he would like to recommend an in-depth study of inflation.

Bamfield Station Plea

Study Team Arriving To Discuss Grant Plea

An investigating team from the National Research Council will be in British Columbia next month to negotiate a grant that would allow purchase of the abandoned Bamfield Cable Station for use as a marine biological research centre.

Members of the team, whose names will not be announced in advance, are expected to meet with presidents of the five universities that have requested the grant. The universities — Victoria, British Columbia, Simon Fraser, Alberta and Calgary — have organized themselves as the Western Canadian Universities Marine Biology Society and would, as such, be operating the station.

UBC professor, Dr. N. J. Wilimovsky, B.C. representative on the society's management council, said in a telephone interview that dates for the visit have not been made final, but that two or three days would likely be required.

While in B.C., the team will fly to Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island, for an on-site investigation.

Wilimovsky said the council's report would probably be released in June. The marine station would be a major installation and such grants were always negotiated.

At present, the cable station is owned by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation, a crown corporation. Negotiations for the purchase have been continuing for more than two years.

The society hopes it will be able to offer its first courses at the station in summer, 1972.

The marine station would be the first on the west coast as opposed to three on the east coast in addition to a Canadian station in the Barbados.

Trustees Study Future

PARKSVILLE — More than 100 people went to Island Hall Hotel, Parksville, Friday for the start of a weekend conference which will study education in the future.

The conference, a trustee leadership development program, is being attended by school trustees, teachers, students and community representatives from Vancouver Island and the south coast.

Chairman is Peter Bunn, Greater Victoria school trustee, and resource personnel is Dr. John Wiens, director of instruction for Greater Victoria school board.

Delegates were given a four question paper and, on the basis of their answers, were organized into "completely heterogeneous" groups, said an official.

They will remain with the same groups throughout the weekend.

First session this morning will deal with the future world, methods of government etc.

Yacht Crew Plays Today

Some of the men aboard Her Majesty's yacht Britannia venture ashore for the first time in a sporting capacity today when a team from the yacht takes on Esquimalt Rebels in an exhibition field-hockey match.

The Esquimalt team, a member of the Greater Victoria Field Hockey League, will take on the British seamen at Pemberton Park. Game time is 2 p.m.

South Africa Eases Bar

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Premier John Vorster has announced a slight relaxing of South Africa's color bar in sports.

Vorster told parliament that ranked competitors would be able to take part in international tennis, track and field, swimming and all Olympic sports in the country regardless of race or color.

Domestic sports on the national, provincial and club level will continue to be segregated, Vorster said.

South Africa has been left out of the Olympic movement and several international sports because of apartheid.

Pool Player Hits Jackpot

LONDON (Reuter) — The world's biggest-ever solo soccer pools win — £400,000 $1,060,000 — went this week to a non-drinking, non-smoking truck driver who says he never has seen a soccer match.

Bert Crocker, 58, who earns £18 a week, lives with his wife Ivy in a tiny village in southwest England.

He is too shy to go to London to accept the prize from Littlewoods Pools, so he will receive it in Plymouth near where he lives.

The cheque will be presented by the manager of Plymouth Argyle, the football team Crocker keenly follows.

A 54-year-old factory worker in Scotland who won £150,000 on the pools refused to reveal his identity. He said he was terrified his two daughters might be kidnapped and held to ransom.

Spot Opens For Rookie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies traded veteran baseball outfielder John Briggs to Milwaukee Brewers Thursday for a pair of rookies.

The Phillies received right-hand pitcher Ray Peters and outfielder-catcher Pete Koegel from the American League Brewers in the inter-league deal, made possible when all National League teams waived on Briggs.

Briggs, eight years with the Phillies, has a major league career batting average of .252. He hit .182 in the Phillies first 10 games this season and was being platooned in left field with rookie Joe Lis.

Phillies manager Frank Lucchesi said the trade meant that Lis, who hit .324 with 36 home runs and 137 runs batted in with Eugene last season, will get a full shot at the left field job.

Hospital Bodies Modernized

The provincial government has proclaimed effective May 1 two pieces of legislation designed to modernize the administration of Vancouver General Hospital and broaden membership in hospital societies. Membership will be open to anyone for a $2 fee.

Sea Call

UCLUELET — Two Canadian Forces ships, HMCS Chignecto and HMCS Fundy, will dock Monday at Ucluelet and give schoolchildren a ride from Ucluelet to Tofino. The ships will be open to the public from 5 to 6 p.m. Monday.

Nanaimo Lawyer Disbarred

NANAIMO — British Columbia Bar Association said Friday that Nanaimo lawyer Arthur William Verchere has been disbarred for misappropriation of trust funds.

An association spokesman said the funds were replaced, but he would not disclose further details of the incident.

Night Out Ends Well

NORTH GALIANO — A 16-month-old boy was found unharmed Friday morning after spending the night lost in bushy terrain on Galiano Island.

Eric Duncan, youngest son of Mrs. Patricia Duncan, wandered away from his home at Coon Bay near North Galiano about dusk Thursday night. Mrs. Duncan wasn't immediately aware the child was gone, RCMP said.

She and friends searched the immediate area all night long, apparently not realizing Eric had gone so far away.

Early Friday morning the searchers were joined by a Canadian Forces helicopter, a Canadian Coast Guard hovercraft and RCMP from Galiano and Ganges.

The baby was found about 9:30 a.m. in dense bush and was taken by hovercraft to Chemainus hospital for a checkup before going home, RCMP said.

Favor Flavor

In his most interesting book Pleasant Valley, author Louis Bromfield tells how he tried to make his Malabar Farm in Ohio a self-sufficient retreat, but failed, for this is an age of specialization.

We just can't manufacture our own boots, repair out own teeth or instal our own plumbing — we must call in specialists to do these jobs for us. The same holds good, to quite a degree, to the growing of our own food.

If there is any point at all in growing our own fruit and vegetables, surely it is to secure freshness and flavor, for the specialist can certainly grow them cheaper.

It is true that certain produce, notably strawberries, raspberries, tomatoes, corn and some of our tree fruits taste better from the home garden than from the store, and this is partly because the home gardener doesnt' have to pick his produce on the green side for shipment to distant markets, and partly because he can select his varieties for their flavor rather than for their sales appeal.

With flavor such an important point then, it seems to me we should be paying a little more attention to our fertilizing and manuring program.

Nutrition experts tell us that the vitamin and mineral content and the flavor of our fruits and vegetables are influenced to quite a degree by the condition of the soil in which the produce is grown.

Sunshine has an important bearing on flavor, and other things being equal, fruit and vegetables from a sunny and exposed garden will be sweeter and richer in flavor and higher in food values than those grown in areas of low sunshine.

Flavor is influenced by variety also. Wearing a blindfold, anyone can tell a Delicious apple from a Gravenstein or a Jonathan, and the floury texture of a Netted Gem potato is quite unlike the firm, waxy-fleshed Pontiac. These differences are a matter of genetical inheritance and breeding.

Outside of these two factors — sunshine and variety — the most important influence on food flavor is the fertilizer program.

It is generally agreed that flavor is enhanced by maintaining a high level of organic matter in the soil, such as manure, compost, seaweed or chopped straw, but one point often overlooked is that these materials should be well rotted.

It is overly fresh dung and certain other raw, undigested organic material that produced rank, sulphurous-smelling cabbage or the unduly earthy potato. The offending element is the form in which the nitrogen is present.

In fresh manure it is in the form of ammonia, conferring a rank odor to the plants. In well-rotted material, the nitrogen appears in a benign nitrate form, without any taint.

Too much nitrogen in any form makes for coarse, rank growth, and with it goes a flat, insipid taste lacking sweetness and flavor. Too little nitrogen gives its sweeter produce, but smaller specimens and lower crop yields.

To get full value from your fertilizer, nitrogen must be balanced with potash, and this is especially important in the manuring of fruit.

Eating apples need as much potash as nitrogen, while cooking apples can take a little extra nitrogen to increase the size of the fruit — sweetness isn't so important here. Ample potash is vital to good cropping in raspberries and gooseberries.

Potatoes need potash, too, but it should be in the form of sulphate of potash. The muriat form, although less expensive, has been known under certain conditions to impart an unpleasant soapy flavor to potatoes.

Phosphates play a part in food flavor too, although its role is not too well understood. It is essential to good ripening and good storage qualities, and to seed formation in peas, beans and corn; on phosphate-deficient soil we get soft flesh, acid flavors and potatoes that mush in the boiling.

Calcium, in the form of lime, plays a most important part in plant chemistry, and especially in our leafy vegetables such as celery, lettuce, spinach and cabbage, and a lack of lime is a common cause of bitter flavors. For crisp, firm, leafy vegetables with a sweet, nutty flavor, the lime content of the soil must be checked and maintained.

Phone Tap Status

WASHINGTON — Washington is a status town, but the trouble is that status has a way of changing all the time. A few months ago, you rated in the capital if you received a telephone call from Martha Mitchell after midnight.

But that's old hat now because almost everyone in Washington has gotten a midnight call from Martha Mitchell. The new status symbol is to have your phone tapped by the FBI.

The other day I put in a call to Broadbeam, who writes a newsletter on Tropical Fish for pet stores all over America.

As soon as Broadbeam picked up the phone, he said, "I told you never to call me at the office."

"Where should I call you?" I asked him.

"I'll give you the number of a telephone booth at Wisconsin and O streets. I'll be there every night between five and six. Let the phone ring three times and then hang up. I'll call you back."

"But, Broadbeam. Why all the mystery?"

"I'm sure the FBI is tapping my phone. Listen. Do you hear it?"

"I don't hear anything."

"Exactly. Most phone lines in this country are filled with static. "Don't you think it's odd that we have a perfect connection?"

"Well, now that you mention it, it does seem odd. But why would the FBI want to tap the line of someone who puts out a newsletter on tropical fish?"

"Why would they want to monitor the speeches of Senator Muskie and the other people who spoke on Earth Day? Who knows why the FBI does things?"

"But Broadbeam. All I called about was that my guppies have been getting sick and I thought you might know why."

"I can tell you why," Broadbeam said. "The quick brown fox jumped over the white fence."

"What are you talking about?"

"That's code, stupid," Broadbeam said. "It will take them days to figure that one out. They can tap me all they want to, but I'm not going to make it any easier for them."

"Look, Broadbeam. You may be going to a lot of trouble for nothing. Suppose the FBI isn't tapping your line?"

"That's a dirty thing to say," Broadbeam said angrily. "Don't you think I'm important enough to have my phone tapped?"

"I didn't mean that. But I just never thought the FBI would have much interest in someone who writes a newsletter about tropical fish."

"That's how much you know. Just yesterday I was followed for four blocks by two men wearing raincoats."

"What's so strange about that?" I asked.

"It wasn't raining," he shouted.

"Oh. I didn't know that. I guess they are interested in your after all."

"Listen, about your guppies," he said, "I'll leave a message for you under the fifth column of the Jefferson Memorial facing the White House."

"Thanks Broadbeam." I hung up.

A few minutes later, my wife called. "Do you know what your son Joel did with my car this morning?" she said.

"For god's sake." I cried, "Don't tell me on the phone. They're tapping Broadbeam's phone and now that I called him, they're probably tapping mine. Put a note in a sealed envelope and hide it in the cherry tree and I'll read it when I come home."

Sydney Harris

Not Dad's Mould

Listening to my favorite FM station the other night, I heard an old recording of Leslie Chabay, the former Metropolitan tenor, and recalled a dinner I had with him and his wife in Aspen many years ago.

His little boy of five had wandered in to kiss his parents good-night, and when the lad had left, Chabay told us how he had decided that the boy was not going to be a musician.

For several weeks Chabay had sung the boy to sleep with a lovely old German lullaby. One night, instead of singing the words, he merely hummed the tune, and asked his son, "What is this I'm humming?"

The boy promptly replied, "Jingle Bells."

More fathers should make such simple little tests before trying to squeeze their sons into a mould of the father's choosing. I shudder to think how many inept doctors and lawyers (and musicians) we have just because fathers refuse to admit that their sons might not have the same capacities, tendencies and temperaments as they.

They think this is love, but it is the exact opposite — pride of possession. Love accepts a person for what he or she is; the proud parent is not content to have the child grow up in conformity with his natural bent, but projects his own desire for glory into the child.

The classic case in English biography is that of Lord Chesterfield, the polished man of affairs, who utterly ruined his son's life, and was the worst possible parent with the highest of intentions.

Those who have read Chesterfield's letters to his son — which seem such a model of worldly instruction — ought to know that the boy was emotionally crippled for life by his father's efforts to make his son as much like him as possible.

"Be not too much a parent," was Emerson's terse advice, which has never been improved upon. This does not imply that the child should grow up without direction or discipline, but that the discipline should encourage the child to become who he is — to develop in the way most natural to his talent and personality.

A child's need for acceptance is as deep and basic as his need for security and affection. Such acceptance is more often found in poor or non-achieving families than in affluent and goal-oriented ones, and it is hardly remarkable that most rebellious adolescents today spring from the latter type of family.

Our modern mania for sending children to college to fit them for vocations that may be far beyond their capacities is not kindness, but cruelty, like forcing a kitten to crawl up a barbed wire fence. It's a wise parent that knows, and accepts, a child's limitations.

MARILYN BECK

Even if All in the Family fails to cop an Emmy on May 10 awards night, Bob Finkel, producer of the telecast, has seen to it that that series won't be ignored during the festivities. The Family cast has been singled out to do a surprise bit before the cameras, a spot invariably reserved for one of the industry's favorite shows.

One thing not in its corner is the fact that it's been picked up for the new season. The TV industry usually honors cancelled shows, almost as if it's thumbing its nose at the networks and public responsible for the crime.

In 1962, Bob Newhart grabbed honors for outstanding field of humor. His show had been cancelled. And in 1964, the axed East Side, West Side won the Best Direction Emmy.

In 1969 Don Adams was honored for the by-then-axed Get Smart, and Barbara Bain clutched a Mission: Impossible Emmy—though she had by then left the series under rather frigid circumstances, and the fallen Smothers Bros. show won writing honors. Along with Hope Lange who was named Best Actress for Ghost and Mrs. Muir, a series cancelled by NBC and later picked up by ABC, Dick Cavett wasn't forgotten, that year. His cancelled daytime show took honors.

The 1970 Emmys were just as far out. The cancelled My World and Welcome to It was deemed best comedy series, best actress once more — now that Ghost and Mrs. Muir was and its lead, William Windom, best actor. Hope Lange was permanently shelved.

Even if Frank Sinatra sticks to his retirement vow, look for him around the action scene. Frank is happy that the picture he shot of the Clay-Frazier fight was used on the cover of Life, and says he'd like to play photographer for other magazines. Which is ironic when you consider the cameras he's busted over the years.

Red Skelton spends his days, now that he doesn't have to worry about a TV taping schedule, preparing his book, The Witty Sayings of Seagulls, which will feature the witty sayings of his video-famous seagull friends, Gertrude and Heathcliff.

Rock Hudson has a spanking new vacation trailer. Luxurious? I'd say. Rock has it decorated down to a half-sized pool table.

Veterans Toss Medals Away

By STUART LOORY
(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

WASHINGTON — About 600 Vietnam veterans returned their Indochina war medals and papers to the U.S. government Friday — some vengefully, some contemptuously, but most with simple resignation.

They hurled them over a wood and wire barricade onto the Capitol grounds in protest against the war in which they had fought and many had been wounded.

When they finished the two-hour ceremony, a statue of John Marshall, the first chief justice of the United States, and the plaza in front of it was strewn with a pile of Distinguished Service Crosses and Navy Crosses (the second highest military honor of the U.S.), gold stars contributed by wives and mothers, Silver and Bronze Stars, dozens and dozens of Purple Hearts, Air Medals, a drill sergeant's badge, various types of commendations, ribbons, certificates of promotion, commissions, identification cards, pieces of uniforms, discharge papers, a helmet, aiguillettes, smashed toy M-16 rifles, one bar of soap thrown with the hope that President Nixon use it "to clean his mind," and one pair of black Viet Cong pyjamas.

She Couldn't Let Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — All she has left to remember Alberto are six bright medals in a box and the flag that covered his coffin.

Those treasures in her arms, his mother marched with 1,000 Vietnam war veterans Friday to cast down their medals on the steps of the Capitol to protest the Indochina war.

Then, when the time came, she couldn't let go.

And she couldn't watch as the veterans plucked ribbons and badges from their chests, hurling the m over a barricade to clatter against the statue of Chief Justice John Marshall.

Evelyn Carrasquillo of Miami, Fla., didn't know of the planned gesture when she decided to join the veterans' march from a dustycamponthemall.

"This is what I have left of Alberto," she said, clutching the flag and the case of medals, including the Bronze Star.

"Here is Alberto.

"I don't want to turn it back to them. I just wanted to talk to the people who can stop the war."

Anna Pine of Trenton, N.J., wanted to discard her dead son Fred's medals.

But she hal already turned away crying when the first ex-soldier announced, hands trembling, "and so we cast away these symbols of dishonor, shame and inhumanity."

The other parent in the demonstration, Wade Olsen of Russel, Pa., played the Last Post on a tarnished bugle in memory of his son William.

"Bill knew this war was a fraud from the start. He wouldn't want the damn things," he said of the medals.

Space Builders May Be Joined by Fleet

Cosmonauts Shatalov, Yelisyev, Rukavishnikov

MOSCOW (UPI) — The commander of the three-man Soviet space ship Soyuz 10 fired it into a new orbit Friday, heading toward a rendezvous with an unmanned Sputnik to begin construction of the first orbiting space station.

Moscow sources said two or three more manned ships would be launched to participate in the construction of the station.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Col. Vladimir Shatalov, the ship's commander, manually fired the engine for a mid-course correction that sent the capsule into a new orbit after he received instructions from the ground.

A ground controller told the cosmonauts prior to the adjustment, "We have thrown you up a little too high, but that's okay."

The government newspaper Izvestia, giving new details on the space flight, said Soyuz 10 and the unmanned capsule Salute were equipped for joint use of their scientific instruments, which would open up "wide prospects" for exploration of the Earth, the sun and surrounding outer space.

Izvestia said Soyuz 10 was equipped with a powerful engine and fuel reserve sufficient to manoeuvre widely near the Earth or soar to a height of 931 miles above the Earth.

Soyuz 10 blasted off from Baikonur space centre in Soviet central Asia just before dawn, carrying the most experienced space crew ever assembled. Two of its crew members were on their third ventures into space.

Moscow sources said shortly after the launch as many as three other spacecraft would go up within the next few days. They predicted the manned ships would link up into the first manned orbiting space platform — perhaps forming a cartwheel shape with Salute as the hub. The United States does not plan such a venture before 1973.

Cosmonaut Alexei Yeliseyev, the flight engineer aboard Soyuz 10, confirmed officially this was the maiden voyage for such a space construction program, in a televised interview aired Friday.

"We have started a new stage in space exploration, connected with the preparation of orbital stations," he said.

The other member of the Soyuz roster is test engineer Nikolai Rukavishnikov, the only rookie.

Keep Out Tankers —Bennett

Premier Bennett said Friday the provincial government wants giant tankers proposed for transportation of Alaskan oil to keep "well out to sea" and away from B.C.'s coastline.

He also suggested that the tankers stay right out of Juan de Fuca Strait and as an alternative, deliver crude oil to California from where it could be piped back to Puget Sound, if required, for refining.

The premier made the suggestion after a 25-minute talk with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, which Bennett described as a "meeting of the minds."

"We both want to make sure that we protect the environment of Canada's West Coast," Bennett later told reporters.

Bennett said he was alarmed by the prospect of oil transportation on a major scale down the West Coast.

"We have the only Pacific coast that Canada has, so we are vitally concerned with protecting our environment," the premier said.

"If the United States decides in its wisdom that it needs their own oil in Alaska, and they wish to keep control themselves and not go through a foreign country, then they should keep it well out to sea and not come into areas close to British Columbia.

"They could take it down to California and then pipe it from there."

He said B.C. expects to be represented "at the specialist level" at any meetings between the Canadian and U.S. governments over transportation of Alaskan oil from Valdez to the Cherry Point refinery in Puget Sound.

Conservationists, so far, have managed to delay the construction of the proposed

600,000 Flee To India

From AP - Reuter

NEW DELHI, India — The number of East Pakistanis crossing into India to escape the advancing Pakistan army passed the 600,000 mark Friday.

India requested UN aid for refugees, and the Red Cross planned mass innoculations to control an outbreak of cholera and smallpox among them.

Waffle Power Surprises In Quebec-Issue Defeat

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party leadership convention voted 853 to 423 Friday against a joint move by the Quebec and radical Waffle wings in favor of self-determination for Quebec.

The Waffle's strength appeared surprisingly strong on the issue. It is generally credited with having not more than 20 per cent of delegate strength. There are only 36 delegates from Quebec ridings.

The convention favored by a big majority, with a show of hands, a compromise resolution calling for a united Canada but instructing the party's 100-member federal council to draw up an unambiguous and lasting agreement on relations between French and English Canada.

The convention also called for more public ownership of resource industries but rejected the Waffle's tough fight for a harder line on nationalization.

All five candidates for the party leadership — the voting starts at 2 p.m. today — spoke on the Quebec issue.

Only the Waffle's James Laxer favored self-determination for Quebec. He called for a new alliance between Quebec and the people of Canada and referred to French and English Canada as "both of these nations."

Candidate Ed Broadbent said the union must be preserved but also that Quebec must have the right to decide whether or not it remains in Confederation.

A Broadbent supporter, John MacMillan of Ottawa, moved a resolution to this

Downtown Toronto

Roadside Full of Lead

TORONTO (UPI)—Disturbingly high lead contamination levels have been found in soil and vegetation adjacent to high density traffic streets in downtown Toronto, a University of Toronto scientist reported Friday.

Samples of soil taken at Queen's Park, the downtown seat of the Ontario legislature, showed 2,000 parts per million of lead, said Prof. Tom Hutchinson, of the university's botany department.

Average lead content of soil is 40 ppm.

Lead is poisonous if taken in certain concentrations, though scientists are not agreed on the precise amounts. Lead poisoning affects the nervous system, interfering particularly with the ability to think.

Hutchinson said abnormally high concentrations of cadmium, another poisonous metal, have also been found in downtown soil.

Average cadmium content of soil is .1 ppm. Traffic road levels of 6, 7 and 8 ppm have been found.

By MAX LOW

Maida Criddle leaned back in the sunshine took a mighty swing and socked the ball more than 100 yards down the fairway.

Nothing too unusual about this — 225 other women were doing just about the same thing in the qualifying round of the Victoria City and District ladies' two-ball foursome tournament at Victoria Golf Club Friday.

It's just that Miss Criddle was making her now-famous annual appearance in the tournament and she will be 87 on May 2.

With much of the shyness and nervousness of a 16-year-old schoolgirl making her first appearance in a big tournament, Miss Criddle said before her partner Muriel Chisholm hit off from the first tee that she was playing to her 30 handicap but hadn't had much practice this spring.

GOOD PARTNER

"I don't expect to get very far, but I've got a good partner this year," Miss Criddle said. "My partner is a much better player than I am. She has a handicap of 24 and I'm scared of letting her down."

Maida Criddle moved to Victoria in 1960 from Manitoba, where she lived near Brandon, and has played in this tournament every year since except in 1969, when she missed because her "handicap was too high."

Last year she played with Alice Crisp, who couldn't make it again this year.

"It was her turn to have a handicap that was too high," Miss Criddle said with a smile.

PLAY HERE FIRST

Miss Criddle hasn't always played golf. In fact, she took the game up at what she says is "relatively late in life" and had her first game ever here in Victoria when she borrowed "one club" and played 18 holes way back in 1928.

Tennis was the first love of her sporting life.

"We played a lot of tennis when we were young and had a court at home," she said, wistfully remembering her early days in Manitoba.

Miss Criddle said she had only played "two games of tennis" since moving to Victoria but added that tennis "is quite different here as we played mostly on grass courts in Manitoba."

Maida isn't the only remarkable Criddle.

There's brother Evelyn. "He gets very vexed when you think he's a girl," Maida says. He's 94 and although he's given up playing regularly, he still goes out and practices golf "and he does a lot of gardening."

And then there's another brother, Dr. Stewart Criddle, who is 83 and who also gardens a lot.

But it's that rip-roaring youngster of the Criddle kids, Talbot (Tully), who sets the blistering pace in the family.

Talbot, Maida says, is "just over 80" and manages to fit in a few sets of tennis in the morning before going out for 18 holes of golf in the afternoon. "And he plays a pretty good game of tennis," his sister says.

For young players hoping to stay trim and play sport until late in their lives, Maida recommends "lots of work and plenty of exercise to keep you limbered up."

SMOKED TWICE

She says, too, that she has only smoked two cigarettes in her life.

"Oh, we smoked as kids of course," she said with a little laugh. "But I only smoked twice as an adult." She recalls she had one cigarette on a dare and the other to celebrate nephew Percy's wedding anniversary.

Almost as she shrugs off the passing years, Maida shrugs off illness and looks on the bright side of things.

"I feel fine," she says — and looks it. "Oh, I had a heart attack in 1951 but I got over it, with the help of the doctor."

Does she find the years have taken toll on any particular part of her game?

"Well, I can't shoot straight any more," Maida said with a wide grin. "But I don't find the distance too much. I did find it a little tiring when I went out for my first 18 holes this spring, but I soon got used to it."

Not realizing some of the finer rules and regulations of women's tournament golf, I asked Miss Criddle if she used the motorized golf carts.

"Oh, those things. Yes, I tried one once for nine holes, they're fun," she said with a girlish giggle.

"I just walk, the distance doesn't bother me."

And she set off.

And, as Maida pulled her golf cart down onto the fairway to play the second shot, Victoria club professional Paul Trapp said: "She's an incredible woman. Last year in this tournament, I watched her walking up the hill to the 18th green pulling TWO golf carts — just to give her partner a helping hand."

Incredible is certainly the word for Miss Maida Criddle.

Colwood Pair Wins Medal

Two Annes — Anne Thomson and Anne Shields of Royal Colwood Golf Club — won medal honors Friday in the qualifying round of the Victoria City and District two-ball foursome championship tournament at Victoria Golf Club.

The Colwood pair shot a gross 90 for a net 70½ to finish 2½ strokes ahead of nearest rivals, Evan Mackie and Betty Stoneham of Victoria Golf Club, and lead a field of 16 pairs into championship flight match-play at Cedar Hill Golf Club on Monday.

Defending champions, Jean Christie and Lil Thirlwell of Uplands Golf Club, were among the casualties as the large field of 113 pairs struggled to make it into the elite top 16.

The Uplands pair, playing to a combined handicap of 14½, fired a 98 gross to finish with an 83½ net and make it into one of the five flights.

Lowest handicappers in the tournament, Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale and Joan Lawson of Uplands, playing to a combined 6½, also failed to make the 77½ net cutoff for the championship flight. They came in with an 89 gross for a net 82½.

Ninety-six pairs start match-play Monday in the championship and five other flights at Cedar Hill. Monday's draw will appear in Sunday's edition of The Colonist.

There is a delicious irony about the Stanley Cup quarter-final which surprisingly made onlookers out of Boston Bruins. Their defeat came in the first playoff after the National Hockey League belatedly decided that a playoff format which permitted a finalist from the expansion division was making the cup final anti-climactic. This is not to say that the 1971 cup final won't be a good one, particularly if it should be between Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers, but the "wonder" team is out of it and nothing that is left can quite have the impact of the Boston-Montreal series.

Defeat of the Bruins has, temporaryily at least, put things in the NHL back in proper perspective. No longer does one have to put up with claims that the Bruins are the greatest hockey club ever assembled, that their Phil Esposito-Ken Hodge-Wayne Cashman line is the greatest attacking unit ever put together and that Bobby Orr, who may eventually deserve it, is the greatest hockey player of all time although he has put in only five NHL seasons and four of those were in watered-down competition.

There are, of course, the statements from the defiantly reluctant that the 78 scheduled games provide the true test and that the better team lost. That has validity, but it is also true there is no greater test than the deciding game of a playoff series and the fact remains thattheBruins weren't up to it although a bad mistake gave them the game's first goal and they also had the big edge of home ice. They're going to have to start all over, and carry on a bit further, before they will again be ranked with the truly great NHL teams.

* * *

But that is only part of it. What is being missed by many is that the Montreal Canadiens who cut down the Bruins weren't just a bunch of lucky stiffs who fell heir to something they didn't deserve because the defending champions stumbled and dropped the cup. The Bruins didn't fall as much as they were pushed. Lost in the excitement of the Boston record-setting was the fact that Canadiens averaged four goals a game for a 27-12-6 post-Christmas showing although they were still plagued with ordinary goalkeeping and still had a veteran or two not operating at full efficiency.

However, and the Bruins recognized and feared it, the potential was there. Canadiens had flopped to miss the 1970 playoffs but left from the club which compiled a 24-5 record while winning the Stanley Cup the two previous years were Jean Beliveau, Yvan Cournoyer, Jacques Lemaire, J. C. Tremblay, Henri Richard, John Ferguson, Jacques Laperriere and Terry Harper. They had some pride to regain, and there to help them were great additions in Pete and Frank Mahovlich and outstanding rookies in Rejean Houle, Marc Tardif, Guy Lapointe, Phil Roberto and, above all, goalkeeper Ken Dryden.

The combination won it fair and square, outhustling the Bruins, showing more poise and producing more series stars than the team which boasted four players who scored more than 100 points this season and 11 players who scored at least 20 times.

* * *

Opinions vary about which of the Canadiens was most responsible for getting Bobby Orr started on his Florida vacation quite a bit earlier than he had planned. There is quite a case for Dryden, who was beaten 26 times in the seven games but got in front of 260 shots to make good for those who have long claimed all the Canadiens needed to come all the way back was good goalkeeping. Dryden, amazingly cool for a fellow who had played only six NHL games before being shoved into a playoff series against a team as potent as the Bruins, was better than good.

And so were Pete Mahovlich, perhaps the best all-round player of the series; Frank Mahovlich, who regained his old-time scoring touch, and Tremblay, an unsurpassed craftsman when he is right who played what was said to be his best game of the season in the decider.

Those were the four Canadiens who caught most eyes most often, but the player who may have contributed the most is Richard. A sometimes moody type and coming off a mediocre season, Richard was determined to wipe out the memory of last season and his inspired play provided the spark his club needed as well as playing a big part in throttling the Esposito line in the last two games through his marking of Cashman.

Nor does the record of outstanding contribution end there. The composite performance chart after six games shows that Lamaire, who checked Esposito in the last two games, was on the ice for nine Montreal goals and no Boston goals. Ferguson was plus eight with 10-2 and Cournoyer, whose reputation as a checker has sometimes been mottled, was 13-4.

* * *

While Canadiens had nothing but heroes, the Bruins had many disappointments. Derek Sanderson and Ed Westfall, usually two of their checking stars, were 5-12 and 4-12, respectively, in goals scored while they were on ice. Esposito was 16-9 but he was on for the power plays and he scored only three times.

As for Orr, the series swung when he was contained in the last two games. He scored five goals and had seven assists but, perhaps tiring, he couldn't provide the looked-for leadership at the finis: failing to get a point and often getting trapped in the lasttwo gamesasCanadienstiedital3-3andthenwonthat last two games as Canadiens tied it at 3-3 and then won that big one in Boston last Sunday.

And what a blast that should bring from Miss K. Kostouros, who noted a comment here last Sunday which reported that Orr had been on the ice for most 15 of the 24 goals Canadiens scored in the first six games of the series, including six of those in that 7-5 second-game win.

"Don't you sportswriter have anything better to do with your time and the space you use in your column than to knock down Bobby Orr?" was the start of an indignant reaction about the four lines and the few seconds they took to type.

There was also an insinuation that I couldn't get on the ice and do the things Bobby Orr has accomplished. That's true, but it isn't news.

No Sign Yet of Red Romp

Occasionally getting pitching and hitting only sporadically, Cincinnati Reds so far have shown no signs of an expected romp in the National League's tough Western Division.

The defending champions got adequate pitching Friday night from Jim Merritt, and rated that a big plus inasmuch as the left hander has had arm trouble. But Merritt's normally hard-hitting mates couldn't do a thing against Claude Osteen and Los Angeles Dodgers took away a 3-0 win.

Merritt was only 0-1 when he left for a seventh-inning pinch hitter but Osteen never lost control and the Dodgers gave him some insurance in their half of the ninth inning when they picked on Joe Gibbon for their last two runs.

Rich Allen, coming along steadily after a slow start, drove in the first run and scored the third as Steve Garvey doubled after Manny Mota and Allen had received ninth-inning bases on balls.

Pete Rose hit a lead-off single, Merritt had a third-inning double, Woody Woodward a fifth-inning single and Rose a ninth-inning double as the Reds managed but four hits.

Defeat left the Reds 4-9 for the season and seven games behind the surprising San Francisco Giants, who wheeled past Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-0, on the five-hit pitching of rookie Steve Stone.

Stone drew a bases-loaded walk in the second inning to force in the only run he needed for his first major-league win. A sacrifice fly by Willie Mays after singles by rookie Chris Speier and Tito Fuentes scored the other run.

Montreal Expos moved within a half game of the Eastern Division lead, squeezing by Houston Astros, 3-2, on a two-run homer by Rusty Staub and steady pitching by Carl Morton.

In other National League games, a 12th-inning single by Ken Singleton delivered the run which gave New York Mets a 7-6 win over Chicago Cubs and home runs by Joe Lis, Willie Montanez, Denny Doyle and Deron Johnson brought Philadelphia Phillies an 8-6 decision over St. Louis Cardinals.

Nanaimo Needs Service Industry—Planner

NANAIMO — The chief planning officer for the municipal affairs department told Greater Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce meeting Wednesday that tertiary industry will be most important for the region.

By teritary industry Don South said he meant services to people living in an area.

Tourism and provision of services for retired people are part of this, he said.

He said the city of Victoria derives benefit from retired people, since they produce an economy equal to that of a shipyard employing 6,800 people.

To induce people to live in the area, he suggested, "Make it a good place to live for the people living here already, and the word will get around."

He said he wouldn't despair about lack of an overall plan for the region.

Encouragement is being given to development of plans within the region, and he said two or three years is likely for this area.

Planners must deal with immediate issues of concern to the populace and at the same time look at a larger picture.

Guidelines are possible but no more does the department make "the rigid pretty map."

Distribution is an important part of Nanaimo's economy, and because there is the need of people in this industry to use facilities at the centre of town, he questioned the need for a by-pass route.

Elected as three-year directors of the chamber were Robert Chase, Ald. Mrs. G. L. Hall, Alan Pearse, Russ Dixon, Len Wilson and Doug Skillings. Elected for a one-year term was Mrs. Marg Fuller.

Retiring directors are Bruce Coleman, Joe Lawlor and Robert McHallam.

Canada Geese Find High-Water Homes

DUNCAN — The recently-completed Operation Canada Geese at Quamichan Lake is showing its first successful results.

Several weeks ago the Cowichan Fish and Game Association under the guidance of conservation officer Jack Fox placed a number of man-made nests on the small bird sanctuary island in the lake.

Association president Walter Latter reports that six Canada geese are sitting on the prepared nests, and a total of 32 eggs were found recently by Fox.

Latter said if it had not been for the nests, made of cut barrels and hay, the birds could not yet have found nesting places because that particular area is still under water.

"We just placed the nests in the nick of time. Once more we want to warn people to stay off the island. If anyone is found on the island we shall prosecute," Latter said.

Cafeteria Class Delivers Goods

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — At least 100 persons need no further convincing that cafeteria management students at Alberni District high school are learning a great deal from their classes.

Twelve teenagers — five boys, who did all the cooking, and seven girls who served, put on a dinner in the school cafeteria that had the guests lingering over coffee and dessert until the last possible minute before attending the official opening of Mount Klitsa Junior high school on the other side of town.

During a social hour before the dinner, guests enjoyed a variety of canapes, worthy of a fine hotel. The tidbits were served with glasses of chilled fruit and vegetable juices in keeping with the policy of no alcohol on school premises.

In the dining room, guests were seated at beautifully appointed tables, where the girls had also created attractive flower arrangements of daffodils and scarlet tulips.

Under the supervision of their instructor, chef Dieter Bauer, the boys prepared and the girls served a meal that began with cream of asparagus soup, followed by a crisp combination salad.

Port Alberni Ship Ahoy

Efforts by many residents to have a ship named in honor of the city of Port Alberni have been successful.

Harbor master Captain Don Brooks has announced that a letter has been received from Sir William Reardon Smith and Sons of Wales, telling of their intention to name a 26,000-ton vessel Port Alberni City when it is delivered next year.

The attempt to have a ship named for the lumber port was made after a similar ship named Prince Rupert City visited a few weeks ago.

"If a city the size of Prince Rupert can be so honored, why not us?" was the question taken up by groups varying from city council and Chamber of Commerce to elementary school pupils.

ISLAND SCENE

Trolling Starts

The commercial trolling season is off to a "reasonably good" start in the central part of the Strait of Georgia, the federal fisheries department reports from Nanaimo.

Between 50 and 55 Mainland and Island-based trollers are fishing spring salmon between Active Pass in the south and Lasqueti Island, and catches have run as high as 40 fish a day. The season opened last Thursday.

Fish were described as mostly small, less than 10 pounds.

Some of the best fishing was reported in waters off Nanaimo between Snake Island and Winchelsea Islands.

Liquor Store

A self-service liquor store will open May 1 at Terminal Park Shopping Centre in Nanaimo, Mladen Zorkin, developer and general manager of the shopping centre, said.

The store will be closed Monday and Tuesday for renovation.

Youth Program

Malaspina Regional College has entered a total of 28 projects for consideration by the Federal Opportunities for Youth program.

Total amount of money requested by the Nanaimo college for the projects is $139,307. The various proposals would provide employment on a full-time basis for 105 Malaspina students and for 10 on a part-time system.

Students from other areas might also be employed if required.

Wharf Work

Changes are coming to Fulford Harbour as tons of earth and rocks are being dumped into the sea to cover a rock promontory near the ferry dock for Swartz Bay.

A driveway and parking room for vehicles that will eventually use the new area are being built.

Mayer Company of Duncan is in charge of the fill-in, which has to come up to the level of the ferry wharf. Then the new ferry wharf will go under construction.

Projects range from a proposed study of financial aid and student financial budgeting, at a cost of $17,500, employing 10 students, to a summer community theatre project which would employ six full-time students and would cost an estimated $7,280.

Proposals such as a travelling exhibition employing four full-time students and two part-time, preparation of a collection of indigenous plants to be preserved and mounted and a plan to clear the lifesaving trail in the new Pacific Rim National Park at an estimated cost of $15,210 are also included.

Regional Budget

The district of Campbell River and Gold River, one town, one city and four villages in addition to 10 electoral areas, will contribute a total of $283,001 by means of tax requisitions to the Comox-Strathcona District.

Other special regional functions such as fire protection, government grants and bulk water sales make up a total budget of $562,166. The budget was adopted Thursday by regional directors.

The budget shows a 1970 surplus of $17,385 and a total of $138,743 estimated in water sales this year, in addition to revenue of $595 for main rental on the back road between Courtenay and Comox. The region sells bulk water to Courtenay and Comox.

The 1971 requisition for the Comox Valley Exhibition Association amounts to $8,600 and is shared by Courtenay, Comox, Cumberland and electoral areas B and C.

Musical Ride

The RCMP's musical ride will perform in Victoria Aug. 16 and 17, the B.C. Centennial committee announced Wednesday.

The ride will also be seen in Nanaimo Aug. 19, in Port Alberni, Aug. 21 and in Courtenay Aug. 23.

The Island stops are part of one of two trips the ride will make to B.C. this year in connection with centennial celebrations. During the two trips, which will be a total of 43 days long, 21 cities and towns will be visited.

Music for the ride will be provided by British Columbia musicians, led by the RCMP bandmaster. During May the Mounties concert band will make a separate tour of the province.

MOCCASIN MILES will mount up next month as August Jack, 107, of Westholme, joins Cowichan-Malahat MLA Robert Strachan, North Cowichan Ald. Donald Morton and President Gordon Elliott of Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation for first mile. Tentatively set May 1, walk will start at Somenos Longhouse and end in Victoria.

Two Spot's back to work

Old Two Spot Chuffs Along Museum Rail

DUNCAN — Old Two Spot is steaming, puffing and running again. However, instead of pulling a logging train she is working as a show-piece at Granger Taylor's Sleepy Hollow Museum, near Duncan, where her range is limited to a short piece of track.

The old locomotive was built in 1910 by Climax Locomotive Works at Corry, Pennsylvania. Her colorful career as a logging locomotive on Vancouver Island came to an end during the Second World War.

Granger moved the engine from bushland behind Deerholme to his father's property on Inverarity Road.

That was almost two years ago. Now, Two Spot has come to life again after Granger spent countless hours restoring the locomotive.

He said he had to rebuilt part of the engine, boiler, cabin and undercarriage.

Granger said that Two Spot would form part of his museum which will also feature a small logging train, a self-propelled steam crane and steam yarding machine.

Dayliner

Higher Fares Protested By Mayors

Several Vancouver Island mayors are opposed to an application by CP Rail to increase passenger fares on the E & N dayliner from Victoria to Courtenay, they said Friday night.

The railway announced earlier Friday in Ottawa it had filed a new tariff with the Canadian Transport Commission asking for increases in passenger fares on various inter-city train services, including the E & N.

The announcement said the new fare levels averaged 11 per cent increase and would go into effect June 1.

Formal Protest

Courtenay Mayor George Hobson, Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock and Parksville Mayor Ray Young told the Colonist they were opposed to any increase in the rail fares. Hobson and Young said their councils would probably formally protest the increase.

Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife said that, while he did not like the increases, he felt they were "not unjustified" and the public would probably have to accept such increases if the E & N was to keep operating.

'Too Much'

N. D. Whittet, E & N vice-president, said he knew nothing of the proposed fare increases and was not even aware CPR had applied for them.

Haddock said he felt the fare between Victoria and Courtenay on the dayliner was "already too much" and a further increase would be "just ridiculous."

He suggested that, instead of increasing fares, E & N should reduce them which would probably increase the amount of traffic on the trains.

'Very High'

Young said that fares were already "very high" for Parksville residents to travel to Victoria and should not be raised further.

Hobson said Courtenay would probably oppose the increase on "general principles", particularly the fact that, even though CP Rail might lose some money on the dayliner, it more than made up for it with profits gained from timber and mineral rights.

Quaife said he felt the fare increases to be much better than shutting the E & N down altogether, which, he added, might be the case if fares remained at their present level.

Nanaimo Lawyer Disbarred

NANAIMO — British Columbia Bar Association said Friday that Nanaimo lawyer Arthur William Verchere has been disbarred for misappropriation of trust funds.

An association spokesman said the funds were replaced, but he would not disclose further details of the incident.

Richmond Fisherman Drowned

PORT ALBERNI — A 45-year-old fisherman from Richmond drowned Friday when he fell overboard in the Bamfield area, Port Alberni RCMP reported.

RCMP identified the victim at Tatfuo Hikida and said he was apparently trying to remove some debris from his nets when he fell overboard.

He radioed to another boat fishing a few miles away that he had something caught in his net but could remove it on his own, RCMP said. A few minutes later, just after noon, the other boat radioed him back, but got no answer.

When the second boat reached the scene, they found Hikida floating in the water, picked him up and took him to land, but he was dead on arrival at hospital.

Sea Call

UCLUELET — Two Canadian Forces ships, HMCS Chignecto and HMCS Fundy, will dock Monday at Ucluelet and give schoolchildren a ride from Ucluelet to Tofino. The ships will be open to the public from 5 to 6 p.m. Monday.

Building Permits Down

Five Business Licences Issued at Courtenay

COURTENAY — Five new business licences were issued in March, city council was informed this week.

The building inspector, who also handles business licences, reported that 13 building permits were issued last month for a total value of $144,910.

The number of building permits was down by four from March last year, and comparative figures for the three months accumulative period shows this year's figures down from last year.

Total revenue from the dog pound was also down, according to another report, with $227 revenue shown for March, 1971, compared to $388.75 for March, 1970.

The number of licences issued was down, as was the number of dogs impounded.

RCMP investigated 149 complaints last month, recovered five bicycles and found one more article than was reported as being lost. The municipality gained $2,090 in fines. RCMP transport covered 1,543 miles during the month.

During the month, a school was entered and $58 in cash taken.

A total of 139 meter and other violations were committed, one meter required major repair and five suffered minor damage.

released and destroyed. Seven of the dogs destroyed were submitted voluntarily, and seven were impounded and remained unclaimed.

Although the number of fires in the area remained low, damage was relatively high due to one fire which destroyed a cottage containing musical instruments as well as furnishings.

A careless smoker was named as the cause of one blaze, faulty wiring caused another, and a third began from an electrical appliance.

Galiano Club Seeks Dump

The Galiano Club of Galiano Island has asked the Capital Regional Board to arrange for a garbage disposal area to replace the present one at Bluff Park.

The club would like to discontinue use of the dump from May 1, 1972.

The club also sees a need for an area for disposal of septic tank waste, since Bluff Park garbage dump can no longer accommodate the waste.

Trustees Study Future

PARKSVILLE — More than 100 people went to Island Hall Hotel, Parksville, Friday for the start of a weekend conference which will study education in the future.

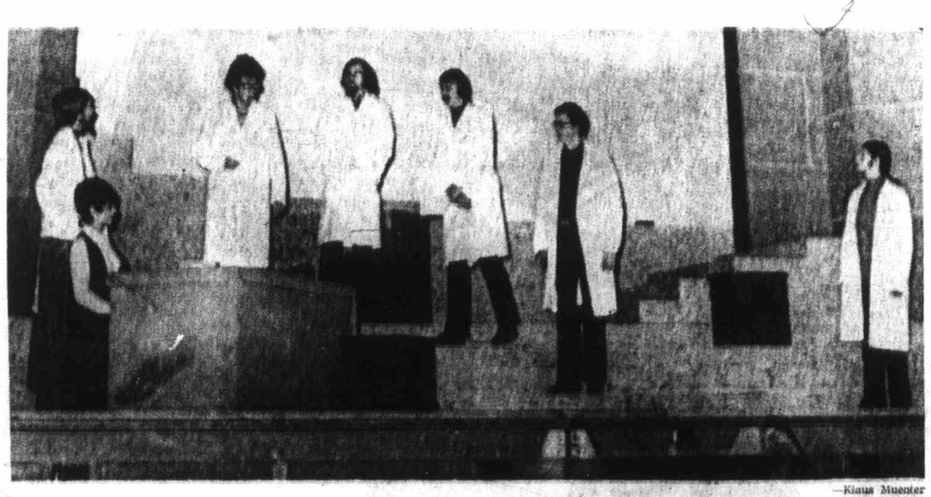

The conference, a trustee leadership development program, is being attended by school trustees, teachers, students and community representatives from Vancouver Island and the south coast.

Chairman is Peter Bunn, Greater Victoria school trustee, and resource personnel is Dr. John Wiens, director of instruction for Greater Victoria school board.

Delegates were given a four question paper and, on the basis of their answers, were organized into "completely heterogeneous" groups, said an official.

They will remain with the same groups throughout the weekend.

First session this morning will deal with the future world, methods of government etc.

Robots match humans on Duncan stage

Machine World Challenges Actors

DUNCAN — Students from Cowichan senior high school's theatre division are busy on rehearsals for the three-act play RUR — Rossum's Universal Robots.

The play, by Czechoslovakian authors Karel and Joseph Capek, will be the division's major production this year. It will be presented nightly at 8:15 p.m. from Tuesday until May 1. Director is drama teacher John Getgood.

"During the 1920s two startling plays were produced in London, New York and other centres," said Getgood Friday.

"They were written by the brothers Karel and Josef Capek. Josef died in Belsen concentration camp in 1945.

"The brothers Capek were idealistic and certainly nonconformists. They presented their ideas and thoughts on human behavior through their two plays."

Getgood said the RUR was their visionary idea of a world in which humans became total slaves of the machine.

"Robots are manufactured to such perfection that it is difficult to tell the difference between the robot and the human.

"Someone tinkers with the formula and, quite by accident, robots are produced with the power to think for themselves. It is a crime to think for oneself in Rossum's world. The result of this process forms the basic idea for an outstanding piece of theatre."

Bamfield Station Plea

Study Team Arriving To Discuss Grant Plea

An investigating team from the National Research Council will be in British Columbia next month to negotiate a grant that would allow purchase of the abandoned Bamfield Cable Station for use as a marine biological research centre.

Members of the team, whose names will not be announced in advance, are expected to meet with presidents of the five universities that have requested the grant. The universities — Victoria, British Columbia, Simon Fraser, Alberta and Calgary — have organized themselves as the Western Canadian Universities Marine Biology Society and would, as such, be operating the station.

UBC professor, Dr. N. J. Wilimovsky, B.C. representative on the society's management council, said in a telephone interview that dates for the visit have not been made final, but that two or three days would likely be required.

While in B.C., the team will fly to Bamfield on the west coast of Vancouver Island, for an on-site investigation.

Wilimovsky said the council's report would probably be released in June. The marine station would be a major installation and such grants were always negotiated.

At present, the cable station is owned by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation, a crown corporation. Negotiations for the purchase have been continuing for more than two years.

The society hopes it will be able to offer its first courses at the station in summer, 1972.

The marine station would be the first on the west coast as opposed to three on the east coast in addition to a Canadian station in the Barbados.

Tonight's the Night For Time to Fly

Spring forward, fall back.

That's the simple slogan B.C. residents need to remember tonight in order to wake up Sunday morning in time with the season.

This is the weekend B.C. moves from standard time to daylight saving time, and to make the change, clocks should be put ahead one hour before going to bed tonight. The province will revert to standard time Oct. 31.

Persons who forget to make the change could find themselves arriving somewhere as everyone else is leaving.

There are certain kinds of indiscretion that inexperienced declarers commit and experienced declarers don't, and one is that of tackling the trump suit too early.

Consider this deal where South ruffed the second spade, dislodged the ace of trumps, ruffed the spade return and played a second trump.

With trumps 4-1, South found himself out of business. He needed all his remaining trumps to draw East's with, and he had yet to establish the clubs. No matter how he proceeded, he could not prevent the defenders obta shape of either a long spade trump (if he didn't draw tr

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

There are certain kinds of indiscretion that inexperienced declarers commit and experienced declarers don't, and one is that of tackling the trump suit too early.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	3 ♡
3 ♠	4 ♡	All Pass

Opening lead: Queen of spades.

Consider this deal where South ruffed the second spade, dislodged the ace of trumps, ruffed the spade return and played a second trump.

With trumps 4-1, South found himself out of business. He needed all his remaining trumps to draw East's with, and he had yet to establish the clubs. No matter how he proceeded, he could not prevent the defenders obtaining a setting trick in the shape of either a long spade — if he drew trumps — or a trump (if he didn't draw trumps).

Once you've encountered this situation a few times, you soon learn there are better ways of handling it. Let's return to the scene of the crime.

Quite clearly South has little chance of making the contract unless the opponents' clubs are 3-2. Therefore, after ruffing a spade at trick two, it costs nothing to play off the A-K-x of clubs before tackling trumps.

This makes quite a difference. If the opponents return anything but a trump, South wins and proceeds to ruff two winning clubs, making the hand regardless of how the trumps break and regardless of whether East overruffs or not.

If the opponents return a trump when in with their club trick, South can draw trumps and cash the established clubs. Either way, he makes the contract.

Veterans Toss Medals Away

By STUART LOORY
(Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service)

WASHINGTON — About 600 Vietnam veterans returned their Indochina war medals and papers to the U.S. government Friday — some vengefully, some contemptuously, but most with simple resignation.

They hurled them over a wood and wire barricade onto the Capitol grounds in protest against the war in which they had fought and many had been wounded.

When they finished the two-hour ceremony, a statue of John Marshall, the first chief justice of the United States, and the plaza in front of it were strewn with a pile of Distinguished Service Crosses and Navy Crosses (the second highest military honor of the U.S.), gold stars contributed by wives and mothers, Silver and Bronze Stars, dozens and dozens of Purple Hearts, Air Medals, a drill sergeant's badge, various types of commendations, ribbons, certificates of promotion, commissions, identification cards, pieces of uniforms, discharge papers, a helmet, aiguillettes, smashed toy M-16 rifles, one bar of soap thrown with the hope that President Nixon use it "to clean his mind," and one pair of black Viet Cong pyjamas.

She Couldn't Let Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — All she has left to remember Alberto are six bright medals on the steps of the Capitol to ered his coffin.

Those treasures in her arms, his mother marched with 1,000 Vietnam war veterans Friday to cast down their medals on the steps af the Capitol to protest the Indochina war.

Then, when the time came, she couldn't let go.

And she couldn't watch as the veterans plucked ribbons and badges from their chests, hurling them over a barricade to clatter against the statue of Chief Justice John Marshall.

Evelyn Carrasquillo of Miami, Fla., didn't know of the planned gesture when she decided to join the veterans' march from a dusty camp on the mall.

"This is what I have left of Alberto," she said clutching the flag and the case of medals, including the Bronze Star.

"Here is Alberto.

"I don't want to turn it back to them. I just wanted to talk to the people who can stop the war."

Anna Pine of Trenton, N.J., wanted to discard her dead son Fred's medals.

But she had already turned away crying when the first ex-soldier announced, hands trembling. "And so we cast away these symbols of dishonor, shame and inhumanity."

The other parent in the demonstration, Wade Olsen of Russel, Pa., played the Last Post on a tarnished bugle in memory of his son William.

"Bill knew this war was a fraud from the start. He wouldn't want the damn things," he said of the medals.

Space Builders May Be Joined by Fleet

Cosmonauts Shatalov, Yeliseyev, Rukavishnikov

MOSCOW (UPI) — The commander of the three-man Soviet space ship Soyuz 10 fired it into a new orbit Friday, heading toward a rendezvous with an unmanned Sputnik to begin construction of the first orbiting space station.

Moscow sources said two or three more manned ships would be launched to participate in the construction of the station.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Col. Vladimir Shatalov, the ship's commander, manually fired the engine for a mid-course correction that sent the capsule into a new orbit after he received instructions from the ground.

A ground controller told the cosmonauts prior to the adjustment, "We have thrown you up a little too high, but that's okay."

The government newspaper Izvestia, giving new details on the space flight, said Soyuz 10 and the unmanned capsule Salute were equipped for joint use of their scientific instruments, which would open up "wide prospects" for exploration of the Earth, the sun and surrounding outer space.

Izvestia said Soyuz 10 was equipped with a powerful engine and fuel reserve sufficient to manoeuvre widely near the Earth or soar to a height of 931 miles above the Earth.

Soyuz 10 blasted off from Baikonur space centre in Soviet central Asia just before dawn, carrying the most experienced space crew ever assembled. Two of its crew members were on their third ventures into space.

Moscow sources said shortly after the launch as many as three other spacecraft would go up within the next few days. They predicted the manned ships would link up into the first manned orbiting space platform — perhaps forming a cartwheel shape with Salute as the hub. The United States does not plan such a venture before 1973.

Cosmonaut Alexei Yeliseyev, the flight engineer aboard Soyuz 10, confirmed officially this was the maiden voyage for such a space construction program, in a televised interview aired Friday.

"We have started a new stage in space exploration, connected with the preparation of orbital stations," he said.

The other member of the Soyuz roster is test engineer Nikolai Rukavishnikov, the only rookie.

Keep Out Tankers —Bennett

Premier Bennett said Friday the provincial government wants giant tankers proposed for transportation of Alaskan oil to keep "well out to sea" and away from B.C.'s coastline.

He also suggested that the tankers stay right out of Juan de Fuca Strait and as an alternative, deliver crude oil to California from where it could be piped back to Puget Sound, if required, for refining.

The premier made the suggestion after a 25-minute talk with Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, which Bennett described as a "meeting of the minds."

"We both want to make sure that we protect the environment of Canada's West Coast," Bennett later told reporters.

Bennett said he was alarmed by the prospect of oil transportation on a major scale down the West Coast.

"We have the only Pacific Coast that Canada has, so we are vitally concerned with protecting our environment," the premier said.

"If the United States decides in its wisdom that it needs their own oil in Alaska, and they wish to keep control themselves and not go through a foreign country, then they should keep it well out to sea and not come into areas close to British Columbia.

"They could take it down to California and then pipe it from there."

He said B.C. expects to be represented "at the specialist level" at any meetings between the Canadian and U.S. governments over transportation of Alaskan oil from Valdez to the Cherry Point refinery in Puget Sound.

Conservationists, so far, have managed to delay the construction of the proposed

NEW DELHI, India — The number of East Pakistanis crossing into India to escape the advancing Pakistan army passed the 600,000 mark Friday.

Waffle Power Surprises In Quebec-Issue Defeat

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party leadership convention voted 853 to 423 Friday against a joint move by the Quebec and radical Waffle wings in favor of self-determination for Quebec.

The Waffle's strength appeared surprisingly strong on the issue. It is generally credited with having not more than 20 per cent of delegate strength. There are only 36 delegates from Quebec ridings.

The convention favored by a big majority, with a show of hands, a compromise resolution calling for a united Canada but instructing the party's 100-member federal council to draw up an unambiguous and lasting agreement on relations between French and English Canada.

The convention also called for more public ownership of resource industries but rejected the Waffle's tough fight for a harder line on nationalization.

All five candidates for the party leadership — the voting starts at 2 p.m. today — spoke on the Quebec issue.

Only the Waffle's James Laxer favored self-determination for Quebec. He called for a new alliance between Quebec and the people of Canada and referred to French and English Canada as "both of these nations."

Candidate Ed Broadbent said the union must be preserved but also that Quebec must have the right to decide whether or not it remains in Confederation.

A Broadbent supporter, John MacMillan of Ottawa, moved a resolution to this

Downtown Toronto

Roadside Full of Lead

TORONTO (UPI)—Disturbingly high lead contamination levels have been found in soil and vegetation adjacent to high density traffic streets in downtown Toronto, a University of Toronto scientist reported Friday.

Samples of soil taken at Queen's Park, the downtown seat of the Ontario legislature, showed 2,000 parts per million of lead, said Prof. Tom Hutchinson, of the university's botany department.

Average lead content of soil is 40 ppm.

Lead is poisonous if taken in certain concentrations, though scientists are not agreed on the precise amounts. Lead poisoning affects the nervous system, interfering particularly with the ability to think.

Hutchinson said abnormally high concentrations of cadmium, another poisonous metal, have also been found in downtown soil.

Average cadmium content of soil is .1 ppm. Traffic road levels of 6, 7 and 8 ppm have been found.

Sealed tenders, clearly identified as "Tenders for Service Station Site" will be received by the Lands Commissioner, Municipal Hall, 770 Vernon Avenue, Victoria, B.C., up to 2:00 P.M., FRIDAY, 28th of May, 1971 for the purchase of Lot 1, Section 72, Victoria District, Plan 24108, situated at the intersection of Gordon Head Road and McKenzie Avenue.

This property containing approximately .39 of an acre, is zoned for service station use and is located in an area calling for servicing to a high standard. Particulars regarding the Municipal requirements in any proposed development of this site may be obtained from the Planning Department.

All offers must be accompanied by a certified deposit cheque in the amount of 10% of the offered price.

The highest or any offer will not necessarily be accepted.

F. E. HARRIS,
Lands Commissioner.

VANCOUVER LABORATORY, VANCOUVER, B.C.
CHARTER

Collection, Chilling and Freezing of Groundfish and Salmon in Coastal Waters

The Fisheries Research Board of Canada will charter a vessel to collect groundfish and salmon in coastal waters. Preference will be given to vessels which can be equipped for fishing long line.

The vessel, which should be approximately 70 feet in length, will be required for the following period:

(1) June 2 to July 28, 1971, inclusive.

The Board is anxious to make the best possible selection of vessels for these operations and invites all interested parties to apply.

For detailed information and charter forms, please write to:

The Executive Assistant,
Fisheries Research Board of Canada,
Vancouver Laboratory,
6640 N.W. Marine Drive,
Vancouver 8, B.C.

Bids will be received not later than May 7, 1971. The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Single Branch for Area

Victoria Endorses Library Project

The concept of one large branch library for Greater Victoria's proposed Centennial 71 project was endorsed Thursday by Victoria city council.

Alfred Hood, chairman of the Greater Victoria Library Board, was also told by council that the city wouldn't insist on a specific site for the branch.

There are two possible locations. One near the Hillside shopping centre, in the city of Victoria, and the other near the Town and Country shopping centre, in Saanich.

Hood appeared before council asking for permission to negotiate for either site with Saanich council. Time was rapidly running out, he said, and the matter would be delayed if Victoria insisted on a site with which Saanich might not agree.

Four other choices consisting of smaller branches in various locations were also listed by the library board, but Hood said this was less desirable than the single large one.

Originally, the Centennial 71 branch library project was to consist of small branches in each of Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay, at a total cost of $377,000.

Hood said in an interview after the meeting that the single-branch concept had not ruled out one in Oak Bay, which he said, "was long overdue in any case."

Oak Bay would get its library out of the centennial funds, he said.

Aldermen Undismayed By Threat of Strike

By HERBERT BEYER

If the city of Victoria's 270 outside workers go on strike, they may find that the majority of aldermen aren't too distressed.

Faced with an anticipated increase in the city's mill rate that could go as high as 7 mills, aldermen — unofficially — are eyeing the possible potential savings in event of a strike.

Approximately $150,000 in wages would be saved during each month of a strike; that represents about one mill.

At least four aldermen have stated, off the record, they wouldn't mind a six-month strike at all.

Even on the record, aldermen had harsh words for the workers Thursday when council approved the city's latest offer which was rejected Tuesday by an overwhelming majority of the workers.

"This is it. We'll stand by our guns even if it takes six months to get the garbage collected," said Ald. Percy Frampton, chairman of the city's finance committee.

"Why do we have to inflict this sort of thing on the pocketbooks of our taxpayers, many of whom are retired and on fixed incomes?" said Ald. Tom Christie.

The contract dispute involves the members of Local 50, Canadian Union of Public Employees. The local served 72-hour strike notice on the city some time ago.

But provincial mediator Clark Gilmour is still trying to bring about a settlement and there can be no strike until he's made his final report.

Another meeting of both sides has been scheduled for this morning.

The city's offer is basically the same as that provided in a recent contract for Saanich outside workers, City Manager Bill Hooson told council.

He also said it was based on the recent settlement with the city's inside workers which provided a 7½ per cent increase in each of two years.

Attached to the city's offer, for the information of council, was a letter from Hooson to all outside staff employees.

The letter urged all employees and their families to consider the financial losses they would incur in case of a strike. It said the city's offer "is an extremely fair and beneficial one."

No further increase can be justified, the letter said.

Meanwhile, council has been assured that all essential work will be carried on by department heads and other non-union employees if the outside workers go out on strike.

The outside workers handle such services as garbage collection, sewer and road repair, street cleaning and park maintenance.

Loyalty to Monarchy Motion Withdrawn

Ald. Percy Frampton moved Thursday that Victoria city council "reaffirm its loyalty to Queen Elizabeth and the monarchy," but withdrew his motion after less than a minute's debate.

Frampton told council the motion was triggered by recent news reports indicating the possible abolishment of the monarchy in Canada."

Ald. Peter Pollen said the motion would presuppose the "lack of loyalty."

Ald. Robert Baird said he would rather "let sleeping dogs lie."

Ald. Ove Witt, who had seconded the motion, said he would withdraw his support for it.

And finally, Frampton added, "That's what I was going to do, withdraw my motion."

Waterfront Land Use

Inner Harbor Control Near

Victoria city council took a major step Thursday toward control of land use at the Inner Harbor.

This control would apply to all property along the waterfront from Johnson Street Bridge to (but excluding) Bapco Paint. In the south, the area is bounded by Belleville, in the east by Wharf.

Control would be achieved under special development area provisons of the Municipal Act, amended by the B.C. Legislature in the last session. In accordance with the amended provisions, council Thursday approved in principle the designation of the area as a special development one.

If council approves the proposed bylaw now being prepared by the city solicitor, here's how it would affect future development at the Inner Harbor:

● Any prospective developer within the special development area (C-3) will be permitted to build according to existing zoning regulations, but that's all.

● A developer seeking special concessions such as easing of zoning regulations will be required to build under the special development area provisions.

● In that case, the city may impose any number of restrictions on any proposed development. If the developer agrees, the restrictions will be registered as covenants and the developer must adhere to them.

No public hearing is required to designate the area in question as a special development area, but a public hearing must be held before council approves any specific development under the scheme.

(Before amendments passed at the last legislative session, two hearings were necessary; one for the designation of an area, and another for the specific developments.)

Ald. Harold Olafson, chairman of the city's community development committee, told council additional safeguards for proper development of the Inner Harbor district would be proposed in about six to eight months.

By then, he said, a report on projected land use in the city's core, including the Inner Harbor, would be completed.

Preparing the report is Harold Spence-Sales who was recently appointed to that task by the city.

Pool Player Hits Jackpot

LONDON (Reuter) — The world's biggest-ever solo soccer pools win — £400,000 $1,060,000 — went this week to a non-drinking, non-smoking truck driver who says he never has seen a soccer match.

Bert Crocker, 58, who earns £18 a week, lives with his wife Ivy in a tiny village in southwest England.

He is too shy to go to London to accept the prize from Littlewoods Pools, so he will receive it in Plymouth near where he lives.

The cheque will be presented by the manager of Plymouth Argyle, the football team Crocker keenly follows.

A 54-year-old factory worker in Scotland who won £150,000 on the pools refused to reveal his identity. He said he was terrified his two daughters might be kidnapped and held to ransom.

Yacht Crew Plays Today

Some of the men aboard Her Majesty's yacht Britannia venture ashore for the first time in a sporting capacity today when a team from the yacht takes on Esquimalt Rebels in an exhibition field-hockey match.

The Esquimalt team, a member of the Greater Victoria Field Hockey League, will take on the British seamen at Pemberton Park. Game time is 2 p.m.

South Africa Eases Bar

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Premier John Vorster has announced a slight relaxing of South Africa's color bar in sports.

Vorster told parliament that ranked competitors would be able to take part in international tennis, track and field, swimming and all Olympic sports in the country regardless of race or color.

Domestic sports on the national, provincial and club level will continue to be segregated, Vorster said.

South Africa has been left out of the Olympic movement and several international sports because of apartheid.

Impetuosity Wins Prep

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Wendell P. Rosso's Impetuosity, swinging into the lead in the turn for home, scored an impressive victory Thursday in the $34,525 Blue Grass Stakes, the last major prep of the Kentucky Derby.

The bay son of Vertex, purchased for $30,000 here at Keeneland by the West Virginia grocery chain owner, put down a field of 11 other Derby nominees and one interloper, Code Of Honor.

Twist The Axe, Pastorale Stable's stablemate of Impetuosity, finished second with Greentree Stable's Dynastic third and Knight Counter, flying Robert Huffman's colors, fourth.

Devotees Lose

Cricket Parking Ends July 15

There'll be no more watching cricket matches from parked cars in Beacon Hill Park starting July 15.

Victoria city council approved a recommendation Thursday from its parks committee to ban parking on the grass surrounding the cricket field adjacent to the park's nursery.

The blow to cricket enthusiasts didn't go unchallenged.

"I've enjoyed the privilege of watching cricket for many years," Ald. Tom Christie said.

"It's part of the Victoria scene," said Ald. Robert Baird.

Ald. Percy Frampton, emphasizing the need for shelter of cricket match spectators "which are mostly elderly people," said, "It's pretty cold out there with the wind tearing right across."

Ald. Peter Pollen said he felt called upon, "perhaps as spokesman of the automobile industry, to point out that this beautiful park is being overrun by vehicles."

When the voice vote was called, there were three audible nays — those of Christie, Frampton and Baird.

Night Out Ends Well

NORTH GALIANO — A 16-month-old boy was found unharmed Friday morning after spending the night lost in bushy terrain on Galiano Island.

Eric Duncan, youngest son of Mrs. Patricia Duncan, wandered away from his home at Coon Bay near North Galiano about dusk Thursday night. Mrs. Duncan wasn't immediately aware the child was gone, RCMP said.

She and friends searched the immediate area all night long, apparently not realizing Eric had gone so far away.

Early Friday morning the searchers were joined by a Canadian Forces helicopter, a Canadian Coast Guard hovercraft and RCMP from Galiano and Ganges.

The baby was found about 9:30 a.m. in dense bush and was taken by hovercraft to Chemainus hospital for a checkup before going home, RCMP said.

Spot Opens For Rookie

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies traded veteran baseball outfielder John Briggs to Milwaukee Brewers Thursday for a pair of rookies.

The Phillies received right-hand pitcher Ray Peters and outfielder-catcher Pete Koegel from the American League Brewers in the inter-league deal, made possible when all National League teams waived on Briggs.

Briggs, eight years with the Phillies, has a major league career batting average of .252. He hit .182 in the Phillies first 10 games this season and was being platooned in left field with rookie Joe Lis.

Phillies manager Frank Lucchesi said the trade meant that Lis, who hit .324 with 36 home runs and 137 runs batted in with Eugene last season, will get a full shot at the left field job.

Hospital Bodies Modernized

The provincial government has proclaimed effective May 1 two pieces of legislation designed to modernize the administration of Vancouver General Hospital and broaden membership in hospital societies. Membership will be open to anyone for a $2 fee.
